EVOLUTION BATTLE TO GO TO CONGRESS; NEW LAW IS SOUGHT

Blanton Says Move Will Be Made to Convert 'Rider' Into Permanent Legislation.

HE PREDICTS IT WILL PASS

Meanwhile District of Columbia Officials Prepare to Ask Dismissal of Wittner Suit.

BRIEF IS DECLARED FAULTY

Accused Teacher Denies That "Disrespect for Bible" Is Taught in Washington Schools.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—The battle between evolution and fundamentalism will be fought out on the floors of Congress next Winter. Realizing that Congress would ultimately be forced to settle the issue of whether the teaching of evolution should be allowed in the public schools of the District of Columbia, the officials of the District took steps today to ask for a dismissal of the action brought by Loren H. Wittner, the Treasury clerk whose sudden move so astonished them yesterday.

Meanwhile Representative Thomas A. Blanton of Texas, ranking Democrat of the District of Columbia Committee of the House, announced that he expected to see enacted into permanent law the provision now in the District appropriation bill prohibiting teaching of "disrespect for the Holy Bible."

Representative John W. Summers, author of the amendment embodying this clause, would certainly seek to make it a law for all time, asserted Mr. Blanton, and the Texan declared that he believed that the House would support the attempt by a large majority. Although both Mr. Wittner and the District of Columbia authorities seem determined to carry the case to the Supreme Court of the United States, if necessary, the opinion of legal experts and also precedents of the Supreme Court appeared to show definitely that the case could not reach that body, and that, therefore, another reason would be added why the task of solution would be laid at the door of Congress.

"Rider" Passed Unnoticed.

Study of the Congressional Record reveals that the Summers amendment went through the House with practically no discussion on a Saturday afternoon in May, 1924, but Mr. Blanton today laughed at the idea that the amendment could be considered a "joker." There were forty or fifty well-informed men on the floor at that time, he said.

But no matter how many men were there or how vigilant they were, there is no doubt that when the Summers amendment comes up again next Winter—as it certainly will—the attention of every member will be focussed upon it, with the promise of a prolonged and lively debate. Because no attention whatever was paid to the "rider" when it went through the Senate the antagonisms and arguments there are expected to be dramatic. There was an intimation today that Senator McKellar of Tennessee would back the amendment with the help of such conservatives as Senators Willis and Fess of Ohio and Sheppard of Texas.

The only direct move in the Wittner evolution case today occurred when Corporation Counsel Francis H. Stephens announced that he would seek a dismissal of the suit Monday on the ground that there were many technical flaws in the brief upon which Justice Siddons yesterday issued his order directing Frank White, Treasurer of the United States; Daniel J. Donovan, District Auditor, and James R. Lusby, District Disbursing Officer, to show cause July 28 why they should not be restrained from paying the salaries of Dr. Frank W. Ballou, Superintendent of Public Schools, and William P. Hay, head of the Department of Biology and Chemistry, on the ground that they taught "disrespect of the Bible" in the public schools.

New Suit May Be Possible.

Mr. Stephens prefers to block the suit in its initial stages, despite the fact that he recognizes there is opportunity for a new action, flawlessly drawn up and entered, so long as the clause in question remains in the Appropriation act. Mr. Stephens said today that he prefers to leave the matter to Congress in the expectation that the clause either will be removed from the next Appropriation act or inserted only after full consideration and debate.

Personally Mr. Stephens believes that none of the material alleged in the brief to be taught in the public schools here constitutes "disrespect" for the Bible, although everything hinges on the word "disrespect," the interpretation of which would develop upon a Judge or jury.

At the outset the point is raised in the brief that the teaching of the evolutionary theory, to the effect that life evolved originally from a single protoplasmic cell, denied the story of the creation of life as recounted in Genesis and consequently is "disrespectful." This would hardly hold in law, Mr. Stephens said, unless in teaching evolution the instructor called attention to the discrepancies between the scientific doctrine and Genesis and attempted to argue with the pupils that the two were incompatible.

The case is especially weak, he holds,

London Pigeons Steal Water From War Memorial Flowers

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Co.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 23.—The pigeons which are a familiar sight round the Royal Exchange, St. Paul's and other buildings in London are threatened with partial extermination and for a peculiar reason. They have been making too free with the water in flower vases placed around the war memorial outside the Royal Exchange.

When the memorial was erected the girls employed in the Bank of England near by made a petition that they be put in charge. It was granted, and ever since out of their pocket money they have provided flowers for its base. But as soon as they arrange a new set of blooms, hundreds of pigeons fly down from their roosts in the high buildings, nearly knock out the flowers and drink all the water.

The city fathers today compiled a string of misdemeanors against them and a committee of the City Corporation is considering the case.

UNION CONGRESS MEDIATES

Its Council to See Premier Baldwin—135,000 Textile Workers Walk Out Today.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 23.—England drew a step nearer to an industrial crisis, arousing the gloomiest foreboding, when the executive of the Miners' Federation decided tonight to instruct the miners in all districts to cease work on July 31. If these instructions become effective only the minimum number of men sufficient to insure the safety of the pits and feed the mine ponies will continue their duties.

[In early July the number of workers at the coal mines of Great Britain was estimated at 1,280,000.]

Tonight's action by the Miners' Federation followed the posting at the pit heads in South Wales and elsewhere by the mine owners of revised terms of employment to become operative Aug. 1, which are most unpalatable to the employes.

Despite the pessimism here, tonight's action does not mean that hopes of settlement by negotiation must be definitely abandoned. The miners have placed their case unreservedly in the hands of the General Council of the Trades Union Congress, which has requested an interview with the Prime Minister. In view of the Government's anxiety to bring the warring miners and employers together, there is a possibility that an agreement may yet be reached before the strike, which might prove a catastrophe, definitely starts.

Owners to See Bridgeman Today.

It is understood tonight that the First Lord of the Admiralty, W. C. Bridgeman, who is seeking to reconcile the rival camps, has requested the coal owners to see him tomorrow, which invitation they are said to have accepted.

Despite this rosy lining to the cloud, however, pessimists insist that no agreement is likely through the usual bargaining channels since each side is selfishly concerned with its own interests to the exclusion of considerations of general welfare.

The prevailing gloom is well expressed in a London Times editorial, which declares that the strike, if it materializes, will be "a disaster of immeasurable magnitude" which can give satisfaction to none but England's enemies.

"It would be foolish to cherish any illusions or expect any result from a resumption of negotiations," continues the editorial. "The remedy for the present state of the industry proposed by the owners is longer hours and lower wages and the miners will not hear of either. They have made no proposals of their own and their attitude is purely negative. They simply will not listen to the terms put forward by the owners, who decline to offer any others. This

ONE AMERICAN SLAIN, ANOTHER KIDNAPPED BY CHINESE BANDITS

Morgan Palmer Dies Aiding Villagers Against Raiders—Dr. H. J. Howard Is Captured.

OTHER AMERICANS ESCAPE

Palmer's Mother, Howard's Son, Harold Baldwin and Family Are Reported to Be Safe.

WASHINGTON TO PROTEST

Policy Toward China Will Not Be Altered, However, Because of Outrage.

HARBIN, Manchuria, July 23 (AP)—While assisting the inhabitants of a village near his ranch, on the Sungari River, to repulse an attack of brigands on July 20, Morgan Palmer, a native of the State of New York, but long a resident of the Far East, was killed.

A friend of Mr. Palmer's, Dr. Harvey J. Howard, a specialist in eye diseases, attached to the Rockefeller Hospital in Peking, who was visiting the ranch, was taken prisoner by the brigands, and since then no trace of him has been found.

It is supposed that Dr. Howard also was engaged in repelling the attack.

Mr. Palmer's mother, Dr. Howard's son and Harold Baldwin, formerly of Derby, Conn., and his wife and child escaped.

The body of the murdered American was buried on Tuesday night in accordance with his mother's wishes.

Mrs. Palmer at the present time is being cared for by an American customs officer, Mr. Peterson, stationed at Fuchow-Hsien, not far from the ranch.

Couriers have been sent out in search of Dr. Howard, but have not yet reported.

The danger of further outrages of the same nature is not past, and measures are being taken so far as possible to protect the other foreigners in this district.

PEKING, July 23 (AP).—Consular advices, describing the murder of Morgan Palmer in Manchuria and the kidnapping of Dr. H. J. Howard, say that Dr. Howard was still in captivity last night, while the others were "safe for the present," but their whereabouts was not known. The American Consul at Mukden, Samuel Sokobin, has gone to see the Military Governor of Kirin in an effort to effect the release of Dr. Howard.

The Rockefeller Hospital has been advised that Dr. Howard's son James is safe on a customs launch at Fuchin.

Mr. Palmer was connected with the Salt Administration in Peking, but retired some time ago to conduct an experimental farm.

Legation in Peking Protests.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—The American Legation in Peking is making representations to the Chinese Government over the killing by bandits in Manchuria of Morgan Palmer and the kidnapping of Dr. Harvey J. Howard. Announcement to this effect was made today by the State Department.

In addition a protest has already been made to the local native officials by Consul Sokobin.

Officials here were greatly concerned over the tragedy, but indicated that the attack had no connection with the recent anti-foreign demonstrations in Shanghai and elsewhere in China. The region where the outrage took place is infested with bandits, and the Chinese Government has little control over their operations.

While the murder is deeply regretted, it is not expected to have any effect upon the policy of the American Government with respect to China, although it will undoubtedly lead to vigorous insistence upon the protection of the lives and property of Americans in China.

Dr. Alfred Sze, the Chinese Minister, called at the State Department today and informally discussed the situation in China and the assassination of Palmer.

Soviet Executes the Czar's Last Premier, Paris Hears, With 15 Alumni of His School

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 23.—On information received from a private and "reliable" source the Matin tomorrow morning will print a story of the execution July 2 in Leningrad of sixteen alumni of the Imperial Alexander Academy. The execution took place without trial, and among those shot, according to the Matin, was the Czar's last Premier, Prince Nicholas Golitzine, who is 76 years old.

Some sixty other alumni of the school, which for more than a century served as the intellectual training ground of the aristocratic Russian youth, were deported to the extreme north of Russia, where they are imprisoned under conditions that will mean almost certain death for most of them.

The decision of the Bolshevist Government to wipe out all the influence of the Imperial Alexander Academy, by suppressing all its former students, was provoked, the Matin declares, by information, which reached Moscow, concerning the creation in Paris of a fund for the benefit of the alumni of this institution. Most of the alumni belonging to the old Russian aristocracy are in dire misery and a charitable movement in their behalf gained considerable headway in Paris, where contributions were received from the upper classes of other nations.

Soviet spies, however, in reporting the movement to Moscow not only grossly exaggerated the size of the fund, claiming that it totaled more than 10,000,000 francs already, but they also insisted that the fund was to be used principally to overturn the Bolshevist Government. On this information the Soviet Government, says the Matin, immediately spread a net for all the ex-students of the Imperial Alexander Academy who were still in Russia and, irrespective of their age or helplessness, disposed of some by shooting and the others by imprisonment.

Prince Dimitry Golitsine, son of the executed man, was married to Miss Frances Simpson Stevens of New York in the wedding chapel of the Municipal Building in April, 1919. Miss Stevens is the daughter of Mrs. Arthur O. Probst, formerly Mrs. Ellen W. Stevens. The couple returned to Russia after the marriage, but were forced to flee from Vladivostok when the Reds got control. They came back to New York in August, 1920. Lately they have been living in England, where in April it was said she was gathering a string of horses to race on the English turf.

Two Fliers Die, 3 Hurt in 3 Hawaii Crashes; Planes Brush Navy Craft and Hit Live Wire

HONOLULU, July 23 (AP).—Three army airplanes crashed on Oahu Island today, killing two aviators and injuring three others, one seriously. This made four crashes in the last week, with a total of three pilots killed.

The dead were:

First Lieutenant CHARLES L. MORSE, Lancaster, N. H.

First Lieutenant JOHN A. WYATT, Hampton, Va.

Both of the officers left families.

The following were injured: Staff Sergeant Prosper Ter Moullen, Second Lieutenant John F. McBlain, District of Columbia, and Private Hanks, Acting Observer. Sergeant Ter Moullen is the most seriously hurt of the injured.

The three accidents occurred within less than three hours.

Lieutenant Morse took off Luke Field, on the army end of Ford Island, at almost the same time that a navy plane piloted by Chief Petty Officer Frasio arose at the other end of the island. The two pilots evidently did not see each other until their planes were near collision.

Eyewitnesses said both were circling trying to obtain "ceiling" and that Morse apparently glimpsed the navy plane and tried to pull away. As he did so the tail surfaces and control wires of Morse's plane came in contact with the surface of the navy plane, throwing the army plane, which was heavily loaded with live bombs, out of control. The army plane pulled away, then crashed to the earth, striking on the left wing and turning upside down. The bombs did not explode.

Lieutenant Morse was dead when the ambulance arrived. He was a 1915 graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and enlisted in 1917.

Lieutenant Wyatt, accompanied by Sergeant Ter Moullen, was piloting a large De Haviland plane when his engine started to give trouble. Forced to land, he made for a small field on the Waipahu plantation, fourteen miles from here. He overlooked, however, a high tension electric wire, which caught the plane and sent it crashing to the ground.

The pilot was killed instantly. Sergeant Ter Moullen was taken to Tripler General Hospital, where his injuries were declared serious.

Both of these accidents happened within an hour. The third occurred when Lieutenant McBlain, with Private Hanks as observer, went up in another De Haviland to search for Wyatt's plane.

They located the plane, but in landing hit the same wire that caused the Wyatt accident. McBlain received a gash in his neck and possibly internal injuries. Private Hanks was cut and bruised.

Wyatt was 32 years old. He enlisted in March, 1917, and received a commission in July, 1920. He had been in Hawaii two years. His wife and 4-year-old daughter reside here. Lieutenant Morse leaves a wife and two small children here.

15 DIE IN MELBOURNE WATCHING PARADE

Hundreds of Others Are Hurt When Verandas of Theatre Collapse.

FLEET FESTIVITIES BEGUN

Many Entertainments Afoot in Both Melbourne and Sydney for Visiting Americans.

MELBOURNE, Friday, July 24 (AP).—Fifteen persons were killed and hundreds were reported injured today when the packed verandas of a moving picture theatre collapsed.

The spectators were watching a parade on Bourke Street.

[A dispatch to The Associated Press, sent earlier in the morning from Melbourne, said:

"A brilliant spectacle is expected today when 1,800 men from the American fleet are to march the streets in the formal parade."

Popular Welcome to Our Crews.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MELBOURNE, July 23.—The crews of the American warships in the fleet that arrived early today have been made welcome both here and in Sydney and there can be no question that they feel perfectly at home. This was clearly evident when one saw them crowded into hansom cabs—a few of the vehicles remain in these cities—dashing about the streets, slaking their thirsts at many available places or proudly walking up the streets with a girl on each arm.

All this confirmed a definite sign that the American fleet with its 35,000 personnel had reached Australia and that all was well.

The fleet is here for a good time and will not be disappointed. Already the visitors have begun to enjoy Australian hospitality. Theatres have been thrown wide open to men in uniform. Street cars are carrying thousands of them to and from parties given in their honor. This will go on for two weeks.

One little incident occurred that was calculated to interfere with the pleasure Melbourne people themselves feel in welcoming the fleet. Firemen on an excursion boat that had arranged to carry a welcoming party down the bay refused to put on steam unless Prime Minister Bruce signed an apology for his alleged attacks upon the Seamen's Union. None of the visitors knew anything about the incident, but there was much indignation in Melbourne. It was felt that a wrong impression might be made in America.

Newspaper Deplores the Incident.

The Melbourne Argus will say editorially tomorrow:

"There is unhappily in every community an alien element which cannot enter into the spirit of goodwill which moved the people of Melbourne yesterday. The spectacle of a city in holiday mood seems to call into play a churlishness which is uppermost in their nature. A premeditated conspiracy of this despicable nature is attractive to puny and spiteful minds which fondly imagine that underhand cunning imparts spice and zest to the supreme business of striking. When so-called labor leaders brace themselves to a realization of whither this wantonness is leading them they will take their courage in both hands and insist that it shall not go on."

The big time ashore for officers and men began immediately upon the arrival of the fleet detachments here and at Sydney. In Sydney the City Commonwealth Bank delivered £150,000 in gold sovereigns aboard the California and received in return about $750,000 in American gold. In Melbourne a branch of the same bank delivered £135,000 in Australian sovereigns aboard the Seattle and the men of the fleet received cash for the trip ashore.

MRS. VAN RENSSELAER DIES IN 6-STORY LEAP

Ill-Health Causes Newport Woman's Plunge From Doctor's Office Near Fifth Avenue.

BELONGED TO OLD FAMILY

Traffic Blocked in East 40th Street as Crowd Gathers When Body Alights.

In a fit of despondency, supposedly due to ill health, Mrs. Peyton J. Van Rensselaer of 93 Rhode Island Avenue, Newport, R. I., jumped to her death yesterday afternoon at 4:05 o'clock from a sixth-story window of the office building at 9 East Fortieth Street. The window from which she leaped was in the office of Dr. G. Reese Satterlee, her physician, and long a friend of her family.

Mrs. Van Rensselaer, a member of one of the oldest American families, pinned many treasured pieces of jewelry to her clothing next her heart before she leaped to her death. She also pinned to her clothing a note penciled in a nervous scrawl, asking that her physician, Dr. Satterlee, be notified.

The body of Mrs. Van Rensselaer barely missed several persons walking through East Fortieth Street on the north sidewalk between Fifth and Madison Avenues. J. Sobel, clerk at a cigar stand on the ground floor of the building, heard her body strike the pavement.

Sobel ran out to see what had happened. Scores of others pressed around the body. Sobel ran to East Fortieth Street and Madison Avenue and notified Traffic Policeman John Broderick and the policeman sent a call for an ambulance to New York Hospital. When Dr. Bassett arrived he found that Mrs. Van Rensselaer had been killed instantly.

Absence Led to Search.

The tragedy was first known in the offices of Dr. Satterlee and his associates when Mrs. Barbara Blacklock, a telephone operator, went to investigate the disappearance of Mrs. Van Rensselaer from a consultation room known as the secretary's office. The switchboard operator found on the stone window ledge the fresh scratches of a woman's slippered heel. Peering over the sill from the dizzy height she saw the crowd in the street below.

On a table in the room the telephone operator found Mrs. Van Rensselaer's black silk turban, light tan parasol and tan silk handbag. In the handbag the police later counted $1,775 in currency, including $7.75 in quarters and dimes.

The crowd surging around the body of Mrs. Van Rensselaer grew so rapidly that it soon packed East Fortieth Street and completely blocked traffic. It took the best efforts of the police to disperse the curious sufficiently to get traffic to moving again.

Mrs. Van Rensselaer had an appointment at the offices of Drs. Draper, Satterlee and Pope, medical associates, on the sixth floor of the Sheppard Knapp Building, at 2:30 o'clock. She was long overdue when she arrived there a little after 4 o'clock, according to Dr. Redford K. Johnson, X-ray expert, who was to make some X-ray photographs.

According to Dr. Johnson, Mrs. Van Rensselaer went to the offices of Dr. Satterlee for her first consultation last Monday. She went there from a private sanitarium in New York City. He did not recall the name of the sanitarium.

Doctor Describes Her Call.

"She had been in yesterday and the day before," said Dr. Johnson. "Today when she came in Dr. Satterlee was out. He is out of the city.

"Mrs. Van Rensselaer came up, got off the elevator, and asked the elevator operator, Mrs. Blacklock, who was sitting at the switchboard in front of the elevators, if Dr. Satterlee was in.

"Mrs. Blacklock was making a call, and Mrs. Van Rensselaer went right into the secretary's office, opened the window and jumped out.

"As soon as the girl at the switchboard completed her call she hurried into the room because she had heard Mrs. Van Rensselaer open the window. She looked out and saw the crowd in the street, and reported the matter to me.

"I hurried down. I saw there was

CRAIG SAYS SINNOTT FIRM GOT A MILLION ON CITY CONTRACTS

'FROM PEANUTS TO SUBWAY'

Asserts Concern Headed by Brother of Mayor's Son-in-Law Takes Toll Everywhere.

CALLS IT DRAIN ON PUBLIC

Charges That Bonding Will Make One Section of Hylan Tube Cost $172,000 More.

Announcing that his investigation of the relations between Mayor Hylan's office and the bonding and insurance firm of Sinnott & Canty was still in progress, Controller Charles L. Craig declared yesterday that the investigation had disclosed that the amount collected by Sinnott & Canty would probably amount to more than $1,000,000 on city contracts alone. Tabulations thus far made, which do not cover all the operations of the firm, show a total of $716,000 collected in premiums on city contracts, Mr. Craig said, which at the usual 30 per cent. commission would show a direct return to Sinnott & Canty of $215,000.

Mr. Craig said that the foregoing figures applied to only part of the business done by the firm headed by J. Paul Sinnott, brother of Mayor Hylan's secretary and son-in-law.

To sustain his charge that the bonding business of Sinnott & Canty was in some instances at least a direct cost to the taxpayers of the city, Mr. Craig asserted that one section of "Mayor Hylan's $600,000,000 subway" system, now under construction, would cost the taxpayers $172,000 more than it would otherwise have done "because the 'Sinnotts must live.'"

According to Mr. Craig, who indicated that he would make public later details of his investigation, the activity of the Sinnott bonding firm has been far-reaching and has touched nearly every city department. The construction of every ferry boat of those recently added to the municipal fleet and named for political leaders and city officials paid a toll to Sinnott & Canty, he said, and steamship lines which sought the use of city piers in some cases placed their insurance with Sinnott & Canty.

The Controller's Statement.

Mr. Craig's statement follows:

The investigation of the relations existing between the office of Mayor Hylan, at City Hall, and the activities of the collecting agency of Sinnott & Canty, at 80 Maiden Lane, is still being conducted by the Controller's office.

To date the inquiry discloses that the premiums collected by Sinnott & Canty on city contracts alone will probably amount to more than $1,000,000. The tabulations thus far made, which do not cover all of the operations of Sinnott & Canty in connection with the bonding of city contractors, shows a total of $716,677 collected as premiums on contracts with the city of New York. These contracts are with firms that have been examined in the Comptroller's office from day to day during the pendency of this investigation on jobs not yet completed.

On this basis alone, the net return to Sinnott & Canty at the thirty per cent. commission rate allowed by the surety companies generally, amounts to $215,000. This, it should be understood, is only a part of the collections that have been made by the firm of which J. Paul Sinnott, a brother of Mayor Hylan's son-in-law and Secretary, John F. Sinnott, is the head.

It does not include, for example, many thousands of dollars additional collected through that agency from the operators of bus lines and taxicab operators; a subject which is under separate investigation.

Puts Earnings at $250,000 a Year.

The scope of the investigation has been confined mainly to the operations of this firm for the past two years. No attempt has been made to trace all of the operations of Sinnott & Canty since the firm was organized in 1921. Enough has been ascertained, however, to indicate that the annual income of these two young men is now running at the rate of

Giant American Is Drowned at Biarritz Trying to Save Girl; 4 in All Lose Lives

PARIS, July 23.—An American named James Sleem was one of three gallant would-be rescuers of a drowning girl who met death in a turbulent sea at Biarritz today.

Several English women were swimming off the rocky coast, despite warnings of danger. When there arose a cry for help, Paul Fourguet, a lifesaver, brought Mrs. Williams to safety and then set out to save her daughter.

Both the lifesaver and the young woman were drowned. An unidentified Englishman sought to save the girl, and he, too, went down. Then Sleem, who tried to save her, was dashed to death against the rocks, his skull being crushed.

Sleem was a well-known visitor at Biarritz and was remarkable for his height of 6 feet 3 inches. His body and that of Miss Williams were recovered by persons in a motor launch.

BIARRITZ, July 23 (AP).—Prince Nikita, son of Grand Duke Alexander Michaelovitch of Russia, joined others in an attempt to aid Mrs. Williams and Fourguet and was seriously injured in the leg.

Biarritz is a famous French watering place on the Bay of Biscay, near the France-Spanish border. It is noted for its fine beach and is visited by a great many Americans.

Ma Ferguson Protects Girl Sold for $2,700 to Husband

AUSTIN, Texas, July 23 (AP).—A gypsy girl's plea won protection from Governor Miriam A. Ferguson today when the Governor declined to honor a requisition for the return of Mrs. Minnie Nickels to Flint, Mich.

Mrs. Nickels said she was a member of a Rumanian gypsy tribe and that she had been sold by her father to Pete Nickels for $2,700, following a custom of her tribe. She escaped from her home in Flint, came to Dallas and six days ago was arrested on a charge of theft. The charge was preferred by Gus Nickels, father of her husband, who charged that the girl had taken a diamond ring and some clothing in leaving home. She was charged with deserting her husband.

The Governor refused to honor the requisition, it was said, because the girl was wanted "for collection of a debt and for ulterior motives."

HABEAS WRIT STAYS EXECUTION OF SCOTT

Chicago Judge Acts Early This Morning After Governor Refuses Reprieve.

INSANITY PLEA IS MADE

Shepard's Counsel Brought Into Case to Save Man Doomed to Die Today.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Friday, July 24.—Although Governor Small refused at Springfield last night to reprieve Russell T. Scott and thus save him from paying the penalty on the gallows at 6 o'clock this morning for the murder of Joseph Maurer, a drug clerk, the counsel for the condemned man persisted in their efforts and at 2 o'clock this morning (3 A. M. New York time) obtained from Superior Court Judge David, a writ of habeas corpus, staying the execution.

This was granted after hearing a plea by William Scott Stewart, new counsel for the condemned man, who urged that the prisoner was now insane.

In his appeal for Scott Mr. Stewart asserted that the prisoner had been made crazy by his long imprisonment. His refusal last night to have an appeal for his release broadcast by radio was presented as one proof of his insanity.

The stay of execution is indefinite until Scott's sanity may be determined.

The action taken this morning for Scott was similar to the procedure a few years ago to save Gene Gary, a Chicago gunman. Three days before the date fixed for his execution a habeas corpus writ invoked a stay, pending a sanity test and he was later committed to an asylum.

Mr. Stewart and W. W. O'Brien, who were W. D. Shepherd's counsel in his recent trial, were brought into the case late in the evening. It was reported that they had been employed by the Detroit women, acting in behalf of Scott's Detroit and Windsor friends.

Plea Before Governor Had Failed.

The decision of Governor Small not to interfere to stay Scott's execution followed a long conference with members of the Division of Pardons and Paroles after Charles W. Bidwill and Arthur Kettels, the original counsel for Scott, had made a 45-minute impassioned appeal for more time. Mrs. Catherine Scott, wife of the doomed man, had added her words to those of the lawyers.

Mrs. Scott, who had boarded the last train that would get her to Chicago in time to see her husband only to get off again because she could not endure the suspense of going on without knowing the decision, left Springfield about 9 o'clock at night by automobile.

She is expected to cover the 195 miles in six hours and to reach the jail three hours before the time that had been set for the execution.

The lawyers in their plea to the Pardon Board put every effort in their power into their last appeal. They took with them to Springfield a witness from Gary, who testified that he saw Robert Scott, brother of Scott, in the City Hall Pharmacy at La Salle and Washington Streets, where Maurer was killed, some time prior to the shooting.

The witness said Maurer himself had pointed Robert Scott out to him as a

Service Board's Commutation Ruling Coincident With Federal Award.

NEW RATES EFFECTIVE AUG. 1

Prices of Fifty-Trip Family Tickets Also Affected by the Decisions.

125,000 COMMUTERS ARE HIT

Higher Schedules Will Add More Than $1,000,000 a Year to the Road's Revenue.

The long fight of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company for an increase of approximately 40 per cent. in its New York State commutation rates was won yesterday when the Public Service Commission announced that the increase asked for would become effective Aug. 1. Coincident with this announcement word came from Washington that the Interstate Commerce Commission had granted the company an increase of 20 per cent. on all of its interstate passenger traffic. About a year and a half ago the Commerce Commission allowed an increase of 20 per cent., so that the total increase in interstate fares is about the same as that allowed by the State board.

The 40 per cent. increase affects both the commutation rates and the rates for fifty-trip family tickets, with the difference that the average increase in the commutation rates between this city and nine other points averages more than 40 per cent., while the average increase in the family rates is less.

In September, 1922, the company submitted to the Public Service Commission a schedule calling for an increase of 20 per cent. in its rates for the purpose evidently of conforming to the interstate rate increase allowed by the Federal commission. While this matter was under consideration the company withdrew its schedules and submitted others calling for a 40 per cent. increase.

The application stated that the commutation rates here were 40 per cent. below similar rates in Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut and 20 per cent. below interstate rates in those States. Operation of the schedules was suspended and the Public Service Commission held twenty-one hearings beginning Sept. 30, 1924, and ending May 16 last.

Figures filed with the schedules showed the number of passengers carried at the low rates and the revenues derived from the traffic. In 1910, according to these figures, the number of commuting passengers was 4,293,650 and the revenues were $425,853.03. In 1923 the number of passengers had increased to 8,258,728 and the revenues to $1,173,647.45. The number of fifty-trip books sold in 1910 represented 733,860 passengers and a total revenue of $182,178.80, while in 1923 the number of passengers was 1,437,050 and the revenues had grown to $514,545.40.

The report of the Public Service Commission was written by Chairman Prendergast and was concurred in by two of the other five Commissioners with Commissioners Lunn and Van Voorhis dissenting, on the ground that action should be deferred until the Interstate Commerce Commission had acted. They did not know, evidently, that the report was withheld until word had come from Washington saying that the Federal commission had submitted its report.

125,000 Commuters Affected.

It was estimated last night that the two increases would add more than $1,000,000 to the New Haven's revenues, 125,000 commuters in New York State and Connecticut being affected.

The following table shows the present rates and the amount of the increases in New York State:

SIXTY-RIDE COMMUTATION TICKET.

Between New York and	Old Fare.	New Fare	Increase Per Cent.
Mount Vernon	$7.45	$10.62	43.0
Columbus Avenue	7.50	10.94	44.1

Harrison	21.07	29.25	38.8
Rye	22.55	31.79	41.0
Port Chester	23.93	33.88	41.5

A summary of the evidence in the case and the views of the State commission states that the commission holds that an increase of approximately 42.65 per cent. is necessary to pay the actual expenses of the road in supplying the service and a return on any reasonable value of property owned by it. Then the memorandum reads:

"The new rates represent an increase of about 40 per cent. over existing rates and will apply to commuters at Mount Vernon, Pelham, New Rochelle, Larchmont, Mamaroneck, Harrison, Rye and Port Chester.

"Under the new tariffs the average rate per mile for commutation tickets between New York and Port Chester will be 1.1423 cents as compared with 3.6 cents per mile for single trip, regular tickets.

"The railroad company based its claim for increased commutation rates principally on the ground that the present rates failed to meet the cost of supplying the service, but claimed also that there exists an improper discrimination between the rates in New York State and those in other States served by the road. As an illustration of the loss in supplying the service the road submitted tables showing operating figures for the months of June, 1924, when the total cost of carrying the commuter traffic exceeded, it was claimed, the revenues obtained, by $127,693.02."

Commuters Fought Increase.

When the company was ready to appear before the commission to urge the increase there came also delegations of citizens and their counsel and public officials from the various Westchester towns, who entered vigorous protests. They asserted that the present rates were fair and reasonable. They contended that the Harlem tolls agreement, under which the New Haven pays the New York Central Railroad Company for passengers carried over its tracks from Williamsbridge to the Grand Central terminal, was unfair. They also criticised the method of allocating cars, the exclusion of transfer cars, and especially the valuation of the company's physical properties. The commission's memorandum reads:

"In testing the fairness of the proposed rates the commission took into consideration the items of Grand Central terminal expense, Harlem line expense, New York Central distribution system expense, expenses of operation of the New Haven road and return on New Haven property. The commission used the commuters' figures relating to net expenses and taxes of the terminal, that figure being $45,994.58. Actual payments of $54,352.16 paid by the New Haven under the Harlem tolls agreement were considered, as were actual payments of $2,682.69 for New York Central distribution system. The commission allowed the New Haven road $101,282.24 for operating expense and taxes, the items including maintenance of ways and structures, maintenance of equipment, transportation, traffic, general and taxes. This figure was submitted by the railroad and was $4,500 lower than that offered by the commuters."

The counsel who appeared in the case were Charles M. Sheafe Jr. and Benjamin I. Spock for the company; Charles A. Van Auken, Corporation Counsel of New Rochelle; Milo R. Malthie and Godfrey Goldmark for the various municipalities and commuters; J. Raymond Tiffany for the Interstate commuters; Hugh M. Hewson, Corporation Counsel of Mount Vernon; Arthur R. Wilcox and W. B. Lyons attorneys for Port Chester and Mamaroneck.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 23—Officials of the New Haven Railroad said tonight that they had no information of an increase in commutation rates being granted except that contained in press dispatches. They declined to comment on the report until they had seen the official decision.

20 PER CENT. INTERSTATE RISE

Federal Board Allows Increase in Fares to Connecticut Points.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—The Interstate Commerce Commission today handed down a decision authorizing the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, after Aug. 1, to increase its rates for sixty-trip monthly commutation tickets from the Grand Central terminal to points in Connecticut by 20 per cent. The ruling, according to tabulations made by the New Haven, will bring $200,000 additional revenue.

The fight over the proposal to increase the commutation rates has been going on since Oct. 15, 1923. There was a flood of protests from commuters living in Connecticut and the commission held up the increase until Feb. 12, 1924. Since that time the New Haven has voluntarily kept the old rates in effect, pending a formal decision.

In their struggle to keep the commutation rates at the present levels, the Connecticut protestants, according to a statement of the case made today by the Interstate Commerce Commission, declared that the cost of living at suburban points, plus the cost of commutation, approximately equaled the cost of living in New York, or at some suburban point on another line about the same distance from New York, and if the proposed increase were allowed many persons who are now commuters on the New Haven lines would be compelled to move either to New York or to some point where the fare is lower.

Revenue Called Insufficient.

The New Haven Railroad, on the other hand, argued that the number of passengers classified as commuters had increased from 12,804,481 in 1910 to 26,-191,830 in 1922, or 112.86 per cent., the latter figure representing 30.51 per cent. of the total passengers. Where the commutation service formed so large a part of the passenger traffic, it was contended, the lower commutation rates failed to return a sufficient revenue, and it was argued that this situation was in no small part responsible for the fact that the New Haven had been unable to earn a fair return on the tentative valuation used for rate-making purposes.

The decision today directly affected only the commutation rates over the New Haven for points in Connecticut. In describing the many angles to the rate situation affecting commuters on the New Haven and other lines in and out of New York, the commission today said:

"The proposed interstate commutation fares between points in Connecticut and New York, under consideration here, and those proposed for application intrastate in New York, would place these fares upon the same basis as now applies over respondent's system interstate between Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut and intrastate within those States; and also on the same basis as applicable interstate and intrastate generally over other lines in New England."

New Connecticut Schedule.

The distances from Grand Central Terminal to various points, the present and proposed prices of sixty-trip tickets, average cents per ride under the present and proposed fares, and the increased amounts the commuter will be required to pay monthly under the proposed fares are as follows:

NEW HAVEN PLANS BUS LINES.

To Abandon 200 Miles of Steam and Electric Routes at Once.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 23.—Plans for the immediate abandonment of three important branches of the New Haven Railroad system, totaling 200 miles, as routes of steam or electric traffic and substitution of buses over turnpikes, are under consideration. The plans call for giving up the lines from Danbury to Canaan, over the New Housatonic Valley roadway, 62 miles; Waterbury to Middletown, via Meriden and Millidale, 35 miles, and New London and Putnam, via Norwich, Plainfield and Danielson, 63 miles. Six local trains will be discontinued over the Housatonic system, but the express route between New York and Pittsfield will continue.

The Litchfield County region above Danbury will be served by buses. Application has been made to the State Public Utilities Commission for a franchise to cover the Waterbury-Middletown route, over which trains have already ceased to run.

These moves are a part of the plan to gridiron Connecticut, Massachusetts and Rhode Island with bus systems and to abandon local passenger trains. The New England Transportation Company, a subsidiary of the New Haven, is directing the bus traffic.

BRIGHTON BEACH LINE GETS 'TRIPLEX' CARS

B. M. T. Will Use Them Also on Fulton Street When Platforms Are Lengthened.

The "triplex" car, a combination of three cars joined together permanently, made its first appearance yesterday on the Brighton Beach line of the B. M. T. between Brighton Beach and Franklin Avenue, Brooklyn. Two of the "triplex" cars were in use, and it was announced by the company that additional units would be added as rapidly as the twenty-three other cars under construction were ready. They also will be used on the Fulton Street line as soon as the work of lengthening the station platforms is completed.

The underframes and uprights of the new "triplex" car are of steel, it not being possible to go further with steel construction because of the limit to the weight carrying power of the Brooklyn Bridge, over which the B. M. T. elevated cars must travel. Each unit consists of three-car bodies permanently joined together with vestibules eliminated and enclosed passageways provided. Each "triplex" car is equipped with modern safety devices and with sliding doors on the sides.

JUDGES ARE DIVIDED ON LIFE-TERM IDEA

Not All Favor Such Extreme Punishment for Crimes in Which Weapons Are Used.

In letters addressed to W. J. L. Banham, President of the New York Board of Trade and Transportation, Judges express differedt opinions concerning the amendment sought by the organization to provide for a mandatory sentence of life imprisonment in cases of conviction for felonies in the commission of which dangerous weapons are used. A digest of their opinions was made public yesterday.

Judges Otto A. Rosalsky and Francis X. Mancuso of the Court of General Sessions have written in favor of the amendment, while Supreme Court Justice James C. Cropsey of Brooklyn said in his communication that he doubted the propriety of urging its adoption. City Magistrate Joseph E. Corrigan said that the question of crimes of violence was too complicated to be disposed of by the means suggested.

Judge Rosalsky wrote:

"A conference should be called among the various business and civic bodies of this city with a view to joining in a united movement to correct the many defects in the administration of criminal justice."

In his letter Judge Mancuso said:

"It is my opinion that the robbery and burglary statues should be so amended as to conform with the English statutes while provides when robbery or burglary is committed with the use of a firearm that the offender shall be punished by life imprisonment."

Justice Cropsey's letter said:

"Personally, I feel that the punishment in such cases should be severt, but I think the proposed life sentences for a crime which did not result in death would be inconsistent with the punishment now provided by statute for other offenses."

HEAR AMERICAN NURSES.

Delegates to World's Congress in Finland Begin General Sessions.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, July 23 (AP).—After attending the inaugural festivities, which included a garden party given by the Municipality of Helsingfors, the general sessions and round table conferences of the Sixth World's Congress of the International Council of Nurses began today under the Presidency of Baroness Mannerheim.

Professor Adelaide Nutting of New York read a paper written by Professor Isabelle Stewart on the Education of Nurses. An interesting lecture was delivered by Miss Nina Gage, an American woman who successfully organized nursing in China.

Other addresses were made by Miss Ada Eldridge, head of the American delegation, Miss Ada Carr and Miss Mary Roberts, United States, and Miss Ethel Jones, Canada.

The Grand Council decided to admit as new members of the congress the National Societies of Ireland, France, Poland, Bulgaria and Cuba. Five other countries' applications were voted down.

COLOGNE GETS LOAN HERE.

Blair & Co. Head Consortium to Raise $10,000,000.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to The New York Times.

COLOGNE, July 23.—A loan of $10,000,000 will be floated in the United States through a consortium headed by Blair & Co. in the next few days by the City of Cologne.

The interest has been fixed at 6½ per cent., the principal being repayable in twenty-five years.

The money is required for the expansion of the municipal dock and for industrial developments and gas, water and electrical works.

100 POLICE TO WAGE RUM WAR ON PIERS

Enright Forms Waterfront Squad in First District From Precincts All Over City.

AGENTS RAID MORETTI'S

Members of Merrick's Staff Seize Liquor Valued at $2,000—May Start Padlock Proceedings.

Police Commissioner Enright announced yesterday that 100 men, gathered from various precincts throughout the city, had been assigned to river-front duty in the First Inspection District and will form part of a guard about the piers from the Battery to Fourteenth Street that will be charged with suppressing rum-running from vessels in port and the landing of contraband cargoes from small craft. Most of the men assigned were selected from the list of those eligible for promotion to sergeantships. This is taken to mean that, with their names on the promotion list, they will be particularly vigilant to see that there is no violation of the law which would jeopardize their chances of promotion.

The reorganizing of the force in the First District is in progress. Twenty policemen of the Beach Street Station, which takes in part of the river front on the west side, were transferred yesterday. This makes forty men who have been shifted in that precinct within the last few weeks. Another transfer announced yesterday was the shifting of thirty men out of the Charles Street Station on Wednesday.

The Commissioner is practically making over the personnel of the First Division, which includes seven precincts. No reason for the transfer was given except the statement that the Commissioner authorized the changes on the recommendation of Inspector Thomas Donohue, in charge of that district. Within the last few weeks fifty-two men have been transferred out of the Oak Street Station, thirty-five from Pike Street, forty from Old Slip and forty from Clinton Street. Those transferred included Lieutenants and Sergeants.

The transfers have caused much comment within the Police Department, because many of the men shifted had seen years of service in the First District. This was especially so, it was said, in the Oak Street Station, where some of the men had been on duty for ten to fifteen years.

Agents on the staff of Prohibitional Division Chief Merrick raided Moretti's Restaurant, 35 West Thirty-fifth Street, yesterday. They seized, it was said, eighty-five cases of assorted liquors and three bags of sealed, which were found in lockers in the basement. The liquor confiscated was valued at $2,000.

No arrests were made but information was filed at the office of the United States Attorney which the agents expect will be the basis for padlock proceedings. Evidence against the restaurant upon which the search warrant was obtained was gathered by Omar Thorvaldsen of Minnesota, who has been with the prohibition unit about three months. There were several diners in the place when the agents arrived, but the raid was quietly carried out.

Chief Merrick yesterday placed a guard about the old Peter Breidt brewery in Rector Street, Elizabeth. The place was raided on Wednesday. The search warrant for the raid was issued in Newark, but no return has been made on it and information as to the result of the search was not made public.

An automobile overhauled by New Jersey State Troopers on the Chester Road near Morristown on Wednesday night was found yesterday to contain liquor worth $1,000. Harold C. Burbank of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., the driver of the car, is held in the Morris County jail awaiting the action of the Grand Jury. The car, the police said, belongs to a Wilkes-Barre man who has already been in trouble for rum-running.

ILLINOIS DRY CHIEF INDICTED IN WINE GRAFT

P. B. Owen, His Predecessor, Stone, and 5 Others Accused in Fake Sacramental Withdrawals.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 23.—Indictments against Major Percy B. Owen, Federal Prohibition Director for Illinois, and Ralph W. Stone, a predecessor in the same office, were filed today by the Federal Grand Jury and will be returned Saturday morning before Judge Adam Cliffe. True bills also were found against Harry R. Schlau, alleged "fixer and collector," two former prohibition agents and two others whose names were kept secret.

Charges against the men are the outgrowth of a year's investigation of the sacramental wine scandal, in which the total graft is said to have exceeded $1,000,000 in less than eleven months. More than $200,000 graft is reported to be involved in the specific cases dealt with in the current true bills, which are expected to be returned as indictments as parts of a series.

The Grand Jury's investigation began when the attention of Washington officials was called to the fact that Chicago's withdrawals of wine for sacramental use exceeded those of any other community in the country and were far in excess of the sacramental wine consumption before prohibition.

Last year's investigation disclosed evidence of graft in connection with the issuance of wine permits. At the time the direct connection between wine agents and Major Owen was not found. Since then, it is charged, Federal investigators have traced graft money directly to Owen's office.

The Grand Jury voted the true bills, it was learned today, after hearing testimony by Frank Loveland, who is awaiting trial for violation of the Volstead act; Irving Friedman, a free lance salesman; Harry Ex, a wine agent who figured prominently in the first investigation; Morris Zevin, a wine agent, and Irving Royac, a salesman.

The graft was levied, it is charged, by go-betweens, who promised wine dealers to "fix things downtown."

When the alleged graft was working smoothly, wine dealers who were willing to pay the price got permits in the names of non-existent Jewish synagogues, athletics clubs and Protestant congregations, it is said. Many Chicago synagogues, it is alleged, are credited on the Government's books with the withdrawal of hundreds of gallons of wine that they never saw.

Amendola's Wounds Are Healing.

American Legion Fund Reaches $3,500,000; Expected to Total $5,000,000 by October

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—The $5,000,000 fund of the American Legion for aid of World War veterans and their widows and orphans will be in hand by the time the Legion's annual convention opens in Omaha Oct. 5, National Commander James A. Drain prophesied in his address here today at the closing session of the Maccabees' quadrennial convention.

"Subscriptions received total $3,500,000, according to our latest reports," said Mr. Drain. "There are $2,000,000 more in sight and we shall achieve our objective, which is to provide a fund to fill the gaps between existing agencies for relief of veterans and their dependents.

"There are 30,000 veterans still in hospitals and there are more than 30,000 orphans of World War veterans. Five thousand of these orphans are now in need of care. Our motto is that every orphan of an American soldier shall have a home. We want them in homes where they will be one of the family and we shall not stop until we do it."

URGE POSTAGE CUT FOR NEWSPAPERS

Southern Publishers, Before Congressional Subcommittee, Attack Present Rates.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., July 23.—Congress should not increase postal rates on newspapers, but on the contrary should reduce rates on second class matter, according to prominent Southern publishers headed by Major E. B. Stahlman of Nashville and Colonel Robert Ewing of New Orleans, who appeared before the Congressional subcommittee at a session which lasted all day today.

Major Stahlman presented a brief to show the rising costs of newspaper publications and declared that newspapers today do not get enough for their papers to pay postage and white paper costs. He said the cost of publication has virtually doubled since 1914.

Colonel Ewing submitted a brief as representative of a special committee of the Southern Newspaper Publishers' Association.

Others who appeared were C. A. Cobb, editor of The Southern Ruralist; H. G. Hastings, W. R. C. Smith, Harold Huff, Fort Worth Star-Telegram; A. B. Sanford, Knoxville Sentinel, and Urey Woodson, Owensboro (Ky.) Messenger.

In the brief submitted through Colonel Ewing, it is stated that newspapers gradually are ceasing to use the mails because of the present rates and that many publications are using freight service instead of postal service. It was contended that the present rates are too high and should be reduced by Congress.

The brief declared that the Rural Route Service, which cost approximately $87,500,000 in 1923, and the Star Route Service, that cost $12,500,000, "are services that are rendered for national growth and have no right to be charged as operating expenses to the Postoffice Department."

The brief protested against any adjustment that would increase rates and urged restoration of the rates on second-class matter that were in effect in 1920, after the second advance of the War Revenue act.

BOOK BARRED AS EVIDENCE.

Court Enjoins Temporarily Use of "My Life," Seized as Obscene.

A temporary injunction restraining District Attorney Banton and Police Commissioner Enright from using the book "My Life," which was seized as obscene, as evidence in the trial of the partners of the Up-to-Date Printing Company, was granted by Supreme Court Justice Ingraham yesterday. At the same time the Court gave permission to the attorneys for the defendants to re-argue a motion for a permanent injunction against the police authorities.

The defendants, three of whom are members of the printing firm which has its offices at 100 Canal Street, are Nathan Pomerantz, Harry Mishkin, Hyman Mellstein and Esar Levine. The latter is a student, who says he represents Frank Harris, author of the book. They were arrested on June 26 last, and their trial before the magistrate is now held up by the injunction proceedings. After having been granted a temporary injunction previously, Supreme Court Justice Levy on July 18 denied the motion for a permanent injunction.

La Follette Farm for a Memorial.

MADISON, Wis., July 23 (AP).—Formation of a national memorial association to perpetuate the memory of Senator Robert M. La Follette and to convert the La Follette farm in Maple Bluff, near here, into a memorial park similar to Washington's home at Mount Vernon, Va., was favored at a meeting here today. A committee was appointed to confer with the La Follette family as to the homestead.

Denmark Seeks American Treaty.

COPENHAGEN, July 23 (AP).—The Danish Government is understood to be prepared to consider proposals from the United States for a most favored nation treaty with regard to Greenland, such as was negotiated recently with Great Britain. That agreement provides for most favored nation treatment on the east coast of Greenland for British citizens, companies and ships.

WOULD-BE SPENDERS SWAMP SCHEPP OFFICE

Cocoanut Dealer Not to Distribute Any More Funds Until Committee Works Out Plan.

Leopold Schepp, millionaire cocoanut dealer, who announced his intention to devote his millions to charitable work, remained in his Connecticut home yesterday, while letters from persons who wanted to help him spend his money continued to pile up by the thousands at his office, 165 Duane Street, and at the office of his representative, Philip Ritter, 185 Madison Avenue. More than 1,000 appeals arrived in the first mail yesterday and clerks were kept busy arranging them, without any end to their task in sight.

"One of the papers got the impression that we needed office help to handle this job," Mr. Ritter complained. "As a result, we have been mobbed." He said that he wished the newspapers that started the "riot" would stop it. In the form reply, which is to be mailed in reply to all writers, he says:

"While it is true that Mr. Schepp wishes to make the largest possible contribution to philanthropic objects, his main purpose in giving an interview to the newspapers was to invite a careful study of the wisest methods of giving.

"The distribution of Mr. Schepp's funds has been going on for many years, but the amount still available will be held intact until the most practical plans have been worked out by a committee of business and professional men. At that time further announcements will be made in the newspapers."

FOUR DRIVERS GO TO JAIL.

2 Without Licenses Sentenced and 2 Imprisoned for Recklessness.

Jail terms were imposed yesterday in the Traffic Court on four automobile drivers, two for reckless driving and two for driving without licenses. In imposing the sentences Magistrate Charles A. Oberwager announced that hereafter all such offenders would be sent to the workhouse for terms that would not vary.

The severest sentence was imposed on Martin Cohen, 28 years old, of 216 Larkin Street, Far Rockaway, Queens. Detective Czech of the Narcotic Division charged that several nights before Cohen, who did not have a driver's license, had been operating a car with false license plates on it. Cohen received a sentence of thirty days in the workhouse on the first charge and ten days on the other.

A sentence of thirty days in the workhouse was imposed on Jack Stark, 27 years old, of 519 East 150th Street, charged by Policeman Rinehart of the West Forty-seventh Street Station with recklessly driving an automobile several days ago at Broadway and Fifty-sixth Street. Charles Lefferts, 19 years old, of Prospect Place, Hempstead, L. I., who also pleaded guilty to recklessly driving a car at Avenue A and Twentieth Street, received a five-day sentence, but Paul DeBenidis, 39 years old, of 417 East 100th Street, who admitted that he was driving a car at Broadway and Fifty-third Street without a license, got a ten-day term.

2,000 SEE PERLES FUNERAL.

Several Women Faint as Coffin Is Borne Out of Tenement.

Several women overcome by emotion yesterday in the large crowd which gathered in front of 272 East Third Street to view the funeral of 4-year-old Robert Perles who was accidently drowned last Sunday, fainted before policemen under Captain Patrick Kenny of the Fifth Street Station could reach them.

Forty detectives who were conducting a house-to-house search for the little fellow on Wednesday when his body was found in the East River off Tenth Street by a towboat captain, had stimulated unusual interest in the funeral among those in the neighborhood. Yesterday morning a crowd of at least 2,000 men, women and children sympathizers blocked the entrance to the tenement home.

Captain Kenny requisitioned several police automobiles to make a lane through the gathering for his policemen, who then pressed the crowd back so that the funeral cortege could get started. When the little coffin was being placed in the hearse many of the elderly women among the spectators began to moan and pray.

The father of the boy again told the police that he believed Robert had been accidentally drowned while playing near the recreation pier at East Third Street and the East River.

nothing I could do. Mrs. Van Rensselaer had been killed instantly. She was 57 years old and was supposedly suffering from a nervous disorder. I had made X-ray exposures, but they had not been diagnosed."

Dr. Satterlee, in whose hands Mrs. Van Rensselaer placed herself, is a gastro-interologist, according to Dr. Johnson. He had known Mr. and Mrs. Van Rensselaer for a long time and was a close friend of the family. When asked if he believed that Mrs. Van Rensselaer had deliberately jumped from the window, Dr. Johnson said:

"Oh, my, unquestionably."

Dr. Johnson said that Mrs. Van Rensselaer had been under treatment by different physicians for a long time. He did not know precisely how long, but he thought it was for several years.

The window from which Mrs. Van Rensselaer made her fatal leap is a floor above the windows of the offices of the French Consulate General. She barely missed the flagpole of the French Consulate General and the round official shield of the French Government hanging outside the windows.

Patrolman William Mahoney of the East Thirty-fifth Street Station, who made an investigation of the death of Mrs. Van Rensselaer, reported that "while waiting in the office of Dr. Satterlee at 9 East Fortieth Street, on the sixth floor, as a patient who had been left alone in said office, she jumped out window; apparently suicide."

Mahoney said he found pinned to the breast of her black and tan polka dot dress a note asking that her physician be notified. The note was penciled on a corner torn from a business envelope of Dr. Satterlee and bore the return address of the physician.

Securely pinned to her clothing near the note was her jewelry, which, according to Mahoney's inventory, included:

Platinum ring with five diamonds, a gold ring, a gold watch engraved "E. H. P.," gold rimmed glasses and gold spectacle case, gold brooch with twenty-four diamonds and twenty sapphires, bar pin with two yellow stones.

Mrs. Van Rensselaer's body was taken to the East Thirty-fifth Street Station, a little before 5 o'clock, until it was removed to the undertaking establishment at 9:30 o'clock last night it lay, partly covered with a piece of oilcloth, on a stretcher in the back yard of the police station.

Mrs. Van Rensselaer was related only distantly to several of the Van Rensselaer families now living in Manhattan. They were deeply shocked last night when informed of the death of Mrs. Van Rensselaer, but were unable to give much information of her or her husband.

Mrs. Van Rensselaer, before her marriage, was Mabel Gertrude Mason, daughter of Herbert Cowpland and Mary Gertrude Dana Mason of Boston. Her parents were long identified with the history of Boston. Her grandfathers were Jonathan Mason and Samuel T. Dana, who many years ago were leading merchants of Boston.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 23.—Mrs. Peyton J. Van Rensselaer, though a resident of Boston, had long been identified with the Summer colony of this city. Mr. and Mrs. Van Rensselaer leased cottages here each Summer until a few years ago, when they began spending their Summers at one of the fashionable hotels. This Summer, however, they leased the Hayden cottage on Rhode Island Avenue, and had been there since early in the Summer.

They took a deep interest in the city and its institutions, and especially were interested in the Red Cross.

Mrs. Van Rensselaer was in her fifty-seventh year, and besides her husband is survived by a sister in Boston. She went to New York three days ago to consult a physician, it was learned this evening.

Mr. Van Rensselaer left for New York this evening.

ANDREWS CONFERS ON 'DRY' PROGRAM

Back in Washington, He Resumes Consideration of Organization and Personnel.

HE SEES NEW AND WHITE

Rabbi Horowitz of New York Gets Assurance That Churches Will Receive Sacramental Wines.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—General Lincoln C. Andrews, head of the Government's dry enforcement unit, returned to Washington today after nearly a week's absence and immediately resumed conferences with prohibition unit officials concerning details of organization and personnel in connection with the Andrews plan of enforcement which will be made effective on either Aug. 1 or Sept. 1. The Board of Strategy, of which General Andrews is Chairman, held a long session, and between times General Andrews had talks with a number of callers.

Among those who saw the Assistant Secretary was Postmaster General New, who, it is understood, discussed the boundaries of the district in which Indiana has been placed. It was said that he approved the district as it now stands, stating that the assignment of Indiana to a district with Michigan would work out well in practice. This is said to be in opposition to the views on the subject expressed by Senator Watson, who has suggested that Indiana be included in a district with Northern Illinois and Wisconsin.

James White, right-hand man of Chairman Butler of the Republican National Committee, had luncheon with General Andrews, but it could not be learned whether prohibition enforcement was under consideration.

In a conference today with General Andrews Rabbi Horowitz of New York, representing the Jewish Orthodox Church, expressed the hope that the new plan of prohibition enforcement would not interfere in any way with the use of wines for sacramental purposes. The arrangement for Rabbi Horowitz to see General Andrews was made by Senator Wadsworth of New York. The rabbi spent some time in conversation with General Andrews and it is understood he left the department satisfied that the new regulations would not be framed in such a manner as to interfere with the withdrawal of wine for use in religious ceremonies.

The rabbi stated that he desired to import wine from Palestine. The Volstead act prohibits the importation of wines for any purpose as long as the domestic stock is held to be adequate. Up to this time importation of wine for sacramental uses has been denied.

CHILDS ESTATE $1,452,650.

Jewelry and Apparel Worth Only $500—Wife Gets Property.

Samuel S. Childs, head of the Childs Company, left an estate appraised yesterday at $1,452,650. Mr. Childs, who died March 17 last, was a resident of Summit, N. J., and for that reason only $606,422 was taxable in New York State. The New York property included 5,000 shares of the Childs Company, preferred stock, or one-tenth of the total, valued at $552,500, and 180 shares of the Chatham and Phenix Bank, worth $55,620. He held one bond of the Childs Real Estate Company, worth $102.

The New Jersey estate included $282,409 in cash, $30,880 in real estate and $409,679 in Federal, State and municipal bonds. The value of his jewelry and wearing apparel was only $500. He left the entire estate to his wife, Emma F. Childs.

CRAIG SAYS SINNOTT FIRM GOT A MILLION

upwards of $250,000 a year.

The investigation has disclosed that the collections made by Sinnott & Canty from city contractors for bonding city contracts is only a fraction of the total business done by that concern on the strength of their relations with Mayor Hylan.

The evidence obtained during the investigation shows that the business was about evenly divided between city contracts and other business. Much of the other business, however, was obtained from contractors having business or other relations with the city which might make it advisable for them to "stand in" with City Hall.

Many contractors examined in the Controller's office testified that they had placed bonds, liability and compensation insurance, and other forms of insurance, on private jobs through Sinnott & Canty.

Apparently nothing was too small and nothing too large, and nobody so insignificant, nor too closely allied with the "interests," to be overlooked.

Children in the parks must pay toll to Sinnott & Canty when they buy peanuts for the elephants. Every patient in a city hospital is a source of profit to Sinnott & Canty. The little food that they eat, the milk that they drink, the heat supplied them, the blankets that cover them, the beds they lie on, reflect additional commissions to Sinnott & Canty.

Says Toll Is Taken Everywhere.

Every snowstorm which causes a loss to the business men and the inhabitants of the City of New York represents a profit to Sinnott & Canty because they get a rake off on the contract for clearing the snow; the shovels used by the street sweepers have to pass with the stamp of Sinnott & Canty on the bond before they can be used; the trucks carting away the snow and refuse from the city streets, even though supplied by the "interests" and "big business," such as the General Motors Company and the White Truck Company, have paid their toll to Sinnott & Canty. To round out the operation the final disposition plants of the Street Cleaning Department for burning up the refuse collected by the shovels and carted by the trucks has increased the toll of Sinnott & Canty who obtained a percentage of the cost of constructing the refuse disposal plants.

The extent of the connection of this collection agency with public school contracts has only been indicated in the statements heretofore made. When the investigation began only the general contractors of a number of schools were examined. They built the superstructure and they paid their toll to Sinnott & Canty. Now it has developed that everything going into the school building is subject to tax in the form of a fixed percentage payable to the firm of Sinnott & Canty. This includes the heating apparatus, the electrical wiring and fixtures, the hoists for ashes and elevators, the plumbing and sanitary apparatus and even the athletic equipment.

The boys who play hookey from school have not escaped the observant eyes of Sinnott & Canty; they have followed them to the truant school and get a percentage of the cost of the food eaten by the truants at every meal.

From Peanuts to Subway.

At the very time that Sinnott & Canty were "arranging things" for the sale of five cents worth of peanuts in the park, testimony taken in the Controller's inquiry indicates that Sinnott & Canty were attempting to collect their percentage on Mayor Hylan's "Six Hundred Million Dollar Subway Program."

Concerning one contract, in the words of one of the principal witnesses, one section of the subway would cost $172,000 more to the people because "the Sinnotts must live."

At the rate at which the operations of Sinnott & Canty were progressing when this investigation started, whatever subways were to be built under Mayor Hylan's administration would have cost the taxpayers hundreds of thousands of dollars to pay to the firm of Sinnott & Canty in premiums in order that "the Sinnotts must live."

The same thing is true of ferryboats—every ferryboat must be bonded by Sinnott & Canty and has been so bonded. This was facilitated by the exemption from public bidding of ferryboat construction which was entirely in the hands of one of Mayor Hylan's Commissioners. Thus from the small to the large the operations of Sinnott & Canty have been extended evidently in accordance with a definite plan for the collection of enormous incomes for the privilege of doing business with the City of New York.

A classification by groups of municipal activities shows the distribution of Sinnott & Canty's collection on city contracts.

A Table of the premiums.

This table follows:

	Bond Premiums.	First Liability Compensation Insurance.
School construction	$199,788	$7,056
Various municipal construction	173,648	1,618
Subways, Surface Lines and Ferryboats	230,151	48,000
Supplies and equipment	27,240	.....
Paving, grading and misc.	19,496	.....
Total	$674,580	$56,111
		$674,580
Bond and insurance premiums		$718,677

A tax on the business done in the Port of New York was not overlooked as a source of revenue. Steamship lines desiring the use of city piers under the Dock Department have been found that placed their insurance and bonds on government contracts through the firm of Sinnott & Canty. To follow out this source of private graft on the business of the Port of New York would mean with "four years more" of Hylan and Sinnott & Canty the erection of a private custom house levying toll on every bale of shipping and every ton of freight that was delivered at the docks or the piers of the harbors of New York City.

DISMISSED TEACHERS WANT GENESEO HEARING

Two Let Out for 'Radicalism' Demand to Be Heard by Entire Student Body.

Special to The New York Times.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 23.—The little village of Geneseo, noted chiefly as the home of Geneseo State Normal School, will be the scene of another "scopes trial," if Commissioner of Education Frank Graves grants the demand for an open hearing at Geneseo of the charges of radicalism and disloyalty preferred by Principal Winfield A. Holcomb against Dr. Manley Harper, recently deposed head of the department of education at the school, and Harry B. Smith, his assistant, also dismissed.

"Our request is for a searching investigation to determine whether we have been disloyal and radical or whether our dismissal is the result of the workings of the political clique now in control at Geneseo," Dr. Harper said today.

"We believe the hearing should be held at Geneseo where the entire student body and faculty may be called upon to testify if necessary. We do not believe in being dismissed without having the light turned on to ascertain the reasons for this action.

"The charge that questions relating to religion and other personal questions were forced upon the students by Mr. Smith and myself, stirring them to resentment, is ridiculous.

"We merely tried to make them think for themselves. Always they were aided by introduction to the best authorities. The answers given to our questions and the discussions adduced were of the greatest value in determining the growing judgment of the students. It was this modern method which conflicted with the staid ideas of the school administrative head and caused trouble where there should have been none."

Only one member of the school board, John B. Abbott, of Rochester, has so far been aligned with the dismissed faculty members. His ire was aroused when he was informed that a number of students, who had signed a petition asking for retention of the deposed instructors, had been compelled to withdraw their signatures.

Principal Holcomb asserts that he has no fear of a State investigation of his action.

"My attitude toward the two dismissed professors," he said, "was laid before the State Department before they were notified of their dismissal, and my action was in accord with the views of State Department officials. • • • The dismissal was occasioned solely by their unprofessional attitude, their pronounced disloyalty to both Faculty and school and the lack of ability to work with others so essential to a smooth working organization."

East Side Merchants Want Him Nominated for Aldermanic President

A number of east side merchants and members of fraternal organizations met yesterday at the Downtown Chamber of Commerce, 150 Delancey Street, and organized to boom Senator Nathan Straus Jr. for the nomination for Aldermanic President. More than forty men and women representing that number of organizations attended.

Harry H. Schlacht, President of the Downtown Chamber of Commerce, warmly praised Senator Straus in an address, which was received with applause.

LAYS NAVY PLANS BEFORE COMMONS

Baldwin Offers Program for Construction, Which Marks a Victory for the Admiralty.

18 BATTLESHIPS A YEAR

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 23.—The Prime Minister announced in the Commons this afternoon the Cabinet's decision on the cruiser question and laid down a definite naval building program.

It is intended to lay down two cruisers in October, two more in February and three more annually thereafter.

The Cabinet also plans to build annually nine destroyers and six submarines.

This is considerably less than Mr. Baldwin's first Government had declared to be necessary two years ago, and the Premier explained the reduction by saying:

"We found it possible, in view of the peaceful outlook of the world, and the absence of any naval antagonism between the Great Powers, to very largely modify the proposals adumbrated two years ago."

Then, as he stated the particulars of the program, it was noted that he used the words "requirements for fleet replacement," thereby seeking to offset the opposition any shipbuilding is sure to meet by associating himself with the Admiralty's view that new cruisers are needed, not to strengthen the British Fleet, but to preserve it.

The Admiralty has all along contended that unless new units are taken in hand at once it would not be many years before the existing fleet, exposed as it is by reason of the reductions already made to heavy demands, would be completely worn out.

By postponing the laying down of new vessels for some months the Government has thus consented to economy. It is now estimated that the entire expenditure of its new cruiser proposals for the present year calls for £527,170, and the real weight of the building costs will not begin to be felt until next year.

Not all the new cruisers would be of the maximum 10,000 tons permitted under the Washington Treaty. Some are to be of the smaller and less expensive variety—8,500 tons—but the Premier did not specify how many of each kind are planned.

He coupled with the announcement of the new vessels the statement that the Government is seriously undertaking a financial reform of the three fighting services and that it is appointing a committee of three men not connected with the Administration to overhaul the expenditure of the navy, the army and the air force.

Compromise Avoids Crisis.

Thus ends the political crisis which for a few days threatened seriously to embarrass the Government.

No doubt, if the Admiralty had not obtained the ships it demanded there woul have followed the resignations of W. G. Bridgeman, First Lord of the Admiralty; Earl Beatty, the First Sea Lord, and other prominent officials.

Such action on the question which touches a subject so dear to the heart of the main section of the old Conservatives as the British Navy would have been a very severe blow to the prestige of Mr. Baldwin, in addition to the fact that Mr. Bridgeman is at the moment the chief Government representative in handling the extremely delicate negotiations with the coal miners, and it would have been extremely embarrassing.

Observers remark that the economy party had one great weakness. It was led by Winston Churchill, and he could not resign. Some of them say that his one hope of personal political salvation is to cling to his office and make good in the Unionist ranks. His father, Lord Randolph Churchill, killed himself politically thirty years ago, when he, too, was Chancellor of the Exchequer, by resigning over precisely the same question of shipbuilding, and it was considered unlikely that Winston would ever commit the same mistake.

Baldwin Had to Decide Issue.

So Baldwin, in considering the crisis, knew that from a mere political point of view it would be far less embarrassing to his administration to satisfy the Admiralty than by failing in with the economy group.

The crisis, however, left one unfortunate result. It revealed how deep in the ranks of the old Conservative diehards is the distrust of Churchill and their personal opposition to the man their leader chose as his first lieutenant for fear that he will lead the Conservative Party into some kind of a combination with a centre party.

Did Not Call Cotillo a Communist.

A headline in Wednesday's TIMES read that John di Silvestro of Philadelphia, head of the Order of Sons of Italy in America and opponent of Supreme Court Justice Cotillo in the present dispute in the order, "Calls Justice a Communist, After a Quiet Visit to the City." This was not justified by the text of the remarks of Mr. di Silvestro, who said that Justice Cotillo had "aligned himself with the radical group in the order" and "was obeying the dictates of Communists in attacking its alleged Fascist policies," and did not actually "call the Justice a Communist."

Running Over Dog Costs Him $25.

John Franchek, 23 years old, of 30 Parker Street, Yonkers, ran over and left injured in the road a dog owned by John Fitzgerald of 12 Parker Street, Yonkers. It cost him $25 in Yonkers City Court yesterday and because, it was alleged, he terrorizes the neighborhood with his motorcycle, his license was revoked.

SET 18 AS MINIMUM AGE FOR TAXICAB DRIVERS

National Safety Conference Also Recommends Recognition of 'Outside' Licenses.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 23.—A minimum age limit of 16 years for drivers of private automobiles, and 18 years for chauffeurs, bus and taxicab drivers, was adopted here today by a committee of the National Conference on Street and Highway Safety, in the Hotel Traymore.

There are three committees of the conference meeting here formulating standard highway and street traffic laws, as well as accident prevention methods. Their decision will be submitted to the conference at the Fall gathering in Washington, D. C., and then to the various States for enactment into laws. There was much discussion concerning the age limit question, several members declaring that the minimum should be 18 and 21 years. The 16 and 18 year limits, however, were favored by a majority.

The committee also decided to recommend that if a driver comes from a State where there are proper licensing laws he can drive in another State for thirty days without another license, but after that time he must obtain a new license. Discretion was left with the Motor Vehicle Commissioner of each State as to whether the second license should be given with or without examination.

As a result of the new headlight law in the District of Columbia it was announced that while formerly 57 per cent. of automobile accidents there were at night this number has now been reduced to less than 30 per cent.

One committee is considering the headlight problem and probably will adopt recommendations involving a law similar to the one in the District of Columbia. There, it was said, all headlights must be on full, but so arranged that they will not glare into the eyes of drivers. There are severe penalties for violations.

It was announced by Colonel A. B. Barber, director of the national conference, that the National Research Council of the National Academy of Sciences had joined in the traffic work of the highway body, all under the direction of Secretary Hoover. It was the Research Council which devised the army intelligence tests used during the World War.

TO CURB ARMY DUELLING.

Challenge in Reichstag Leads Committee to Plan Restrictions.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, July 23.—As a result of the open challenge by the ultra-reactionary Deputy von Ramin in the Reichstag three days ago to the Socialist Deputy Sollmann to fight a duel because of the debate over changing the law to allow former officers to wear the old imperial uniforms, the Reichstag President has stated that such a challenge constitutes an open threat to order. The Reichstag committee is now proposing to increase the penalty for duelling in the army.

Von Ramin, who was formerly an imperial officer and favors changing the law to allow the old imperial uniform with gold braid, trappings and spiked helmet to be worn, took exception to Sollmann's remarks, declaring former officers and the uniform they wore were grossly insulted. He proposed to meet Sollmann with pistols, without Parliamentary immunity.

The committee proposes a law to punish army duelling with a minimum imprisonment of six months and to punish challenging with a term of two to twelve months.

SLAYERS' HAUNTS SEARCHED

Belief Waning That Trolley Hold-Up Men Fled to Canada.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., July 23.—Belief that the bandits who shot and killed two employes of the Westchester Electric Railroad Company early Monday morning, in an effort to rob them of $1,800 in receipts, may have fled to Canada, is waning, according to the Mount Vernon police, who admitted that the search was being directed toward the Bronx, where the fugitives are known to have had many friends.

District Attorney Arthur Rowland is preparing to again question Marion Money of 163 West Sixty-sixth Street, Manhattan, who is held at the White Plains jail without bail as a material witness. The police contend that she was with John J. Marino until two hours before the hold-up. Marino, also known as "Dopey" Marino, has been positively identified as one of the slayers.

Mrs. Edna Marino, wife of the missing man, is held in Mount Vernon, unable to raise bail.

MODEST HERO SAVES A BOY.

Street Cleaning Driver Dives Into East River as Lad Goes Under.

Rescuing people from the East River is "all in a day's work" to Peter McDonald, a driver of the Street Cleaning Department. Last night McDonald was taking things easy on a pier at the foot of East Fifty-first Street, watching some boys play in the water. John Jeffs, 9 years old, of 361 East Forty-first Street slipped from the shelving beach where he was walking and disappeared in deep water. The boy could not swim.

McDonald dived and found the boy and a policeman arrived just in time to help McDonald and the boy to the street. An ambulance and a pulmotor were called and after an hour's work the boy was revived and sent home. McDonald would not talk about the rescue or the report of the police that he had done similar thing before.

"It's all in a day's work," he said as he walked off, adding, "I've got to get to bed to get up early for work tomorrow."

Italian Held as Counterfeiter.

Arrested after a search of three years on an indictment charging him with counterfeiting United States Revenue scrip stamps used on bottles of liquor, as well as $10 notes, Luigi Gardullo of 69 Irving Avenue, Brooklyn, was arraigned before United States Commissioner Barmore yesterday and held in $15,000 bail for examination Aug. 18. Gardullo, according to Federal agents, is known as a leader in the Italian underworld in Brooklyn and served a term in Italy for homicide.

Bride of Two Weeks Disappears.

Police of the Jamaica precinct are searching for Mrs. Bridgit Spanpanoto, 20 years old, of 14,705 Humboldt Avenue, Jamaica, who disappeared from her home on Tuesday. Her husband, Anello, to whom she was married two weeks ago in Long Island City, reported her disappearance yesterday. He could give no reason for her leaving.

Army Planes Reach San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 23 (AP).—The six army pursuit airplanes sent out from Selfridge Field, Mount Clemens, Mich., to test the feasibility of the air mail route for military flight purposes, arrived at Crissy Field at 3:45 P. M. today. They circled the field for several minutes before alighting.

Police Lieutenant Kicked by Jealous Horse; Gallant Posture Before Woman His Undoing

After receiving first aid from an ambulance surgeon and a tailor yesterday, Lieutenant James Sheridan of the Patrol Bureau in Jersey City, rode to the police station, limped to his desk and entered in the blotter an ex parte account of an unprovoked attack which had been made on him by a causelessly jealous horse.

Lieutenant Sheridan was on duty at the Jersey City ball field when he saw smoke rising from a plot of dry grass a short distance from the ball park. The Lieutenant collected a small force of men and attacked the blaze with wet sacks. The danger to the residence of Mrs. Jennie Delgnerio was soon checked and in a few minutes the blaze was completely out.

Mrs. Delgnerio's horse, Jimmy, who had trotted away to the limit of his twenty-foot chain out of the danger zone, turned around and walked back slowly toward the group which had collected about Lieutenant Sheridan.

"I don't know how to thank you for what you have done," said Mrs. Delgnerio.

"It's nothing. It's all in a day's work," replied the Lieutenant. Mrs. Delgnerio, however, insisted that it was most extraordinary that a policeman should have dashed from the ball field to put out a grass fire.

Jimmy, a family horse and very much attached to his mistress, was nearing the group and was eyeing between narrowed lids the uniformed man who was receiving the gratitude of Mrs. Delgnerio. Lieutenant Sheridan is a handsome man. With his hat removed, he mentioned gallantly that it was a pleasure to serve her. Jimmy put a wrong construction on everything. He hated Lieutenant Sheridan. He always did hate anybody that his mistress made a fuss over. He particularly hated the courtly type.

"Look out for that horse," cried one of the fire-fighters, but it was too late. Rolling his eyes like Othello, gritting his teeth and expanding his nostrils, the horse gave a sudden leap into position behind the Lieutenant. Then he let fly with both hind feet, giving the policeman a terrific kick.

Lieutenant Sheridan was treated by the ambulance surgeon for severe bruises and the tailor had to take many stitches in his uniform.

BRONX RIVER PARKWAY OPENING NEXT WEEK

Westchester's First Public Golf Course at Mohansic to Be Ready Tomorrow.

Special to The New York Times.

BRONXVILLE, N. Y., July 23.—Announcement was made at a meeting of the Westchester County Park Commission today that work on the Bronx River Parkway would be completed and the fifteen and a half mile strip of boulevard opened by the middle of next week.

It was planned to have the public opening last Monday, but the date was postponed because of a strike by men employed by the Hastings Paving Company who were laying block on the parkway bridge at Scarsdale. Work also was delayed by the storms of the last few days. The pavement workers are doing what they can to complete the work, Jay Downer, chief engineer of the commission, said today. The work on the bridge at Valhalla also is being rushed and it is hoped that this link will be opened for traffic in August.

Members of the commission are planning to attend the opening of Westchester County's first public golf course at Mohansic Park on Saturday. This course will be the regulation eighteen holes, and will be the first one completed in the Westchester County park system. It is on the south side of Mohansic Lake, about two miles from Yorktown Heights and about seven miles east of Peekskill, adjoining the Crompound Road, now used as a detour for the Albany Post Road traffic.

It was announced at the meeting of the commission this afternoon that one of the stone buildings, originally erected by the New York Training School for Boys, on the former site of which the course is built, is being made over into a public golf house, with locker rooms for men and women.

By request of Booth, Hewitt & Melleney, 165 Broadway, attorneys representing residents of Pelham Manor, the hearing on the petition of protest against the widening of the Boston Post Road through Pelham Manor, scheduled for today, was postponed until September. The date will be set by the commission at the August meeting.

HIBERNIANS WANT WINE AND BEER BACK

Convention Also Urges the Buying Here of Irish-Made Goods—Other Resolutions.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 23.—Resolutions condemning the present immigration law, the World Court and naval disarmament proposals, birth control and eugenics, and advocating that the sale of light wines and beers be legalized, were adopted here today by the fifty-fourth national convention of the Ancient Order of Hibernians in the Ambassador Hotel.

"Utter contempt" was expressed for the Ku Klux Klan, in another resolution, while still another wanted "the facts and not the fictions of the American story" presented in school histories.

A supplemental resolution said that Hyam Salomon, a Polish Jew, was a financial mainstay of the Revolution but due credit to him was lacking in nearly all histories of this country "for the most part pursuant to that conspiracy of silence of which many Revolutionary figures of Irish lineage also have been victims." It offered the help of the Hibernians in getting his name in textbooks, along with those of John Barry, Thomas Fitzsimmons and others.

Another resolution said that the growth of an Irish economic system would draw forth the latent genius of the Irish people and urged all members of the race in this country to buy Irish-made goods whenever possible.

Provision was made for suitable exhibits commemorating noted Irishmen and their deeds at the Sesquicentennial Exposition in Philadelphia next year.

SEEKS DEATH BY TRAIN IN SUBWAY STATION

Man Leaves Woman and Jumps to Tracks as Express Comes —His Skull Fractured.

John McGarvey, 45 years old, of 92 Bank Street, a longshoreman, threw himself in the path of a Brooklyn express at the Wall Street station of the Interborough early yesterday. He missed the wheels and the train was stopped after the forward trucks had passed over him.

Police said that McGarvey had been mistakenly identified as William Miller, a forester employed by the State, owing to cards bearing Miller's name, which were found in his pockets. They added that in a moment of consciousness in the Beekman Street Hospital the injured man had told his name and address. It is believed his skull is fractured.

Detectives, who investigated, reported that McGarvey was talking to a woman on the platform as the train came in. They got this information from Morris Sterne of 73 Herzl Street, Brooklyn, who was on the platform at the time. As the train pulled in at 8:20 A. M. McGarvey darted suddenly to the platform edge and leaped. While the police emergency truck was on its way from the West Thirtieth Street station, employes of the Interborough moved the train back and released McGarvey. Rush hour service was delayed on the Brooklyn bound express tracks for nineteen minutes.

INDIANS SUE FOR LAND.

Say Government Wrongfully Took Areas Worth $68,000,000.

WASHINGTON, July 23 (AP).—The United States has been made defendant in the Court of Claims in a suit involving land claims amounting to $68,707,343 by Indians in Montana, Wyoming, Idaho and Washington.

The tribes involved are the Blackfeet, Blood Piegan, Gros Ventre and the Nez Perce. The Indians charge that their rights in the common hunting grounds in Southwest Montana and Northwest Wyoming, secured by the treaty of 1855, were taken from them shortly after the treaty was signed. They also charge that certain lands in Montana were taken under the then unratified treaties of July and September, 1868, and that some other lands in Montana were taken from them and restored as public domain by an Executive order of Aug. 19, 1874.

It is contended that Congress by an act of May 11, 1910, took away from the Indians their right to hunt and fish and cut timber in what is now Glacier National Park.

PRINCE AT DIAMOND FIELDS.

Watches Digging at Kimberley and Receives Gem as a Gift.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

KIMBERLEY, July 23.—The Prince of Wales visited the wonderful Valley of Diamonds today and at the headquarters of De Beers he saw $2,500,000 worth of diamonds ready for market. At the end of his visit Sir David Harris presented to the Prince a white brilliant diamond weighing 12¾ carats.

From the De Beers headquarters the Prince drove through the diamond fields past great heaps of tailings, descending later to inspect the actual digging. In the afternoon he inspected a memorial to the dead of the Valley of Diamonds, built at the highest point of the city after the manner of the famous Ionic Nereid monument discovered at Xanthos in Asia Minor.

KIMBERLEY, July 23 (AP).—The Prince of Wales refused to accept a diamond of 65 carats which was offered to him as a souvenir when he visited the famous De Beers Diamond Works today. He examined the great diamond with keen interest, but smilingly shook his head when it was presented to him. He did accept, however, a stone of 12 carats.

for enlisted men, while at Sydney it is from 8 A. M. to 1 o'clock the next morning. This limitation was fixed at the request of the authorities, who are unable to accommodate large numbers of bluejackets in their sailors' homes.

As this despatch is being written the shouts and cheers from the boys spending their money with their well-known lavishness can be heard from the street.

Governor General Host to Coents.

Governor General Forster gave a dinner tonight for Admiral Coonts and staff and the senior officers of the Melbourne detachment. While in Sydney a similar dinner was given by the Governor of New South Wales, Admiral De Chair.

Among the big dances of the evening was the Government ball in Sydney for 1,000 petty officers and men. In Melbourne the Returned Soldiers' League, on behalf of the Commonwealth and State Governments, entertained 500 officers and men. Half a dozen dances were given tonight in Sydney by private individuals for junior and senior officers, while five such were given here.

Admiral Coonts seems to have found favor immediately upon his arrival. One newspaper says of him:

"The Admiral is a man who inspires confidence. He is strongly individual. Of sturdy build, his short-clipped mustache gives him more of a military than a naval appearance, and yet again the parting of his flaxen hair, shot with gray in the centre, might induce a stranger to believe him at heart an artist or an architect.—Admiral Coonts will be very popular in Melbourne. He is typical of the great Republic whose navy he commands—energetic, self-reliant and shrewdly observant of human nature."

A message of greeting from Premier Bruce to President Coolidge was dispatched soon after the fleet's arrival, while Dr. Earle Page, as the Premier's representative, presented an address of welcome to Admiral Robison in Sydney. In official calls by Lord Forster and Premier Bruce upon Admiral Coontz, expression of welcome was made to the Melbourne detachment of the fleet.

Fleet's Hosts Uncertain on Liquor.

LONDON, July 23 (AP).—The Daily Mail's Sydney correspondent says that many persons in Australia are uncertain regarding the propriety of offering alcoholic liquor to the members of the United States fleet now visiting Sydney and Melbourne.

An interesting exchange of messages on Wednesday, prior to the arrival of the American warships, might be considered fairly significant.

The New South Wales Golf Club sent the following radio:

"The fleet golfers are welcomed to our bunkers and nineteenths."

The reply was:

"Hearty thanks. Will do our best with both hazards."

Coolidge Expresses Gratification.

Special to The New York Times.

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., July 23.—President Coolidge made this statement today regarding the welcome given the United States Fleet in Australian waters:

"The welcome accorded the American Fleet upon its arrival in Australian waters by the Government and people of the Commonwealth of Australia has been most gratifying. It is my hope that the visit of the American Fleet in the Far Pacific may assist in emphasizing the cordial relations which now exist between the United States and the other nations of the world."

VANSWERINGEN HITS 'POLICE COURT' TONE

Originator of Rail Merger Objects to Sharp Questions by Minority Counsel.

PROFITS TABLE WITHDRAWN

Charge of $75,000,000 'Paper' Gains Is Rescinded and Witness Excused for Later Hearing.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—Considerable progress was made today by the Interstate Commerce Commission in its inquiry into the $1,500,000,000 railroad merger proposed by the Van Sweringen brothers of Cleveland, and after five hours of sharp cross-examination, O. P. Van Sweringen was excused temporarily until counsel for the opponents of the project can examine various data which they have called upon the railroads involved to submit.

The examination today went into the relationship of the Van Sweringens with J. P. Morgan & Co., the First National Bank of New York and other New York bankers, the opponents endeavoring to show that large sums of money of railroads in which they were interested were deposited by the brothers with these bankers and that considerable loans were obtained simultaneously.

It was brought out, for instance, through statements by Mr. Van Sweringen that deposits with J. P. Morgan & Co. had been but $34,986 in 1923, whereas they amounted to $5,817,035 at one time in 1924.

Mr. Van Sweringen said that there was no secret about such matters, which were of record, and that he simply was dealing with banking interests with which he had done business for some time. The size of the deposits was influenced by the growing proportions of the merger operations. All loans obtained, Mr. Van Sweringen said, were fully covered by collateral other than the deposits in the form of securities upon which the loans would have been made even if there had been no cash deposits.

The same was true, Mr. Van Sweringen said, of deposits made with the First National Bank of New York and the Union Trust Company of Cleveland, among others. At one time the deposits in the Union Trust Company had amounted to about $4,600,000, but all of these operations, it was testified, were within the ordinary course of business and every ethical and legal standard had been observed, with satisfactory collateral in securities being deposited when loans were obtained.

Examination Becomes Acrimonious.

The examination today became acrimonious at times and more than once Mr. Van Sweringen was aroused from his usual calm. At one point, when E. C. Bailly, counsel for minority stockholders of the Hocking Valley Railroad, raised his voice and sharply requested a definite reply, Mr. Van Sweringen countered quickly.

"This is not a police court," he said. "At least you can be courteous to me and I can be courteous to you."

An interesting incident occurred just before the inquiry adjourned, when counsel for the protestants asked Mr. Van Sweringen how much salary he was being paid by the railroads over which he has obtained control. Mr. Van Sweringen hesitated and glanced at his secretary.

"I think it is $45,000," he said finally. Mr. Van Sweringen added that he obtained his only salary from the present Nickel Plate railroad, of which he is the Chairman of the board. The Chesapeake & Ohio, he said, wanted to pay him a salary, but he refused it. He never sent in expense accounts, he said, but believed that the Nickel Plate also provided him office room and clerical assistance.

Wrong About His Salary.

Mr. Van Sweringen said he was uncertain about the whole matter, and this turned out to be the fact. After he had left the witness chair J. J. Bernet, President of the Nickel Plate Railroad, approached him.

"You were wrong about that $45,000 salary," he said, "you get only $25,000."

From the start of the inquiry today Mr. Van Sweringen was pretty well harassed by the opposing counsel, who asked him repeated questions about profits that he may have made, and his conception of the ethics of a situation in which, as a member of the board or other officer of a corporation, a man sold and bought property or carried out merger plans by which he would make a personal profit. Finally Mr. Van Sweringen, who once sold newspapers on the streets of Cleveland, turned upon his opponents.

"I feel that I am one of those who are not influenced by dollars," he said. "There is a profit beyond a certain point that is no inducement to me. I haven't made up my mind whether to be poor is to be rich or to be rich is to be poor, but I'm inclined to believe the latter."

"I have a copy of Epictetus here," said W. A. Colston, general counsel of the Van Sweringen interests, with a smile. "Maybe you would like to examine it in your study of morals."

Anderson Withdraws Profits Table.

At the opening of the inquiry Colonel H. W. Anderson, chief counsel for the Chesapeake minority, said that he wished to withdraw the table of figures by which he sought to show yesterday that the Van Sweringens and their immediate associates would make a paper profit of more than $75,000,000 if the proposed merger was perfected. He admitted that there might have been some errors and said that he would call witnesses later to present other calculations.

Newton D. Baker, former Secretary of War and of counsel for the Van Sweringens, said that he earnestly protested every aspect of the table which had been produced yesterday and referred to the fact that while Colonel Anderson now consented to withdraw it, this was done after the calculations set forth had appeared in some of the New York newspapers.

Mr. Van Sweringen was questioned at length by opposing counsel as to how he felt about the fact that stocks of individual railroads which he had obtained to further the merger plan now had a much greater value in the market. He replied that it was simply a case where the securities he obtained appeared "in a new wrapper," without an increase in the capital investment of the railroads involved. If that was the case, he said, he thought it "fine" and that it was a strong argument in favor of railroad consolidations such as he was attempting to bring about.

He was asked if he thought the terms arrived at in dealing with stockholders of all classes involved in the proposed consolidations were fair and equitable.

"Of course, we think the terms in the contracts made with those companies are fair," he explained, "but if they are not we can go further and fix the terms that the Interstate Commerce Commission thinks are fair. We are perfectly agreeable to the Interstate Commerce Commission inserting an order providing that the terms to the dissenting stockholders shall represent a fair cash value. We want to deal fairly with everybody."

Bernet Next to Take Stand.

An effort was made by one group of dissenters to show that the holders of about 20 per cent. of the Hocking Valley Railroad stock not owned by the Van Sweringens and their associates would receive but a part of what their holdings are worth. Mr. Van Sweringen was indefinite in his replies concerning just what facts had been taken into consideration in fixing the value of the Hocking Valley road to the merger. After he had been pressed repeatedly for further information Mr. Van Sweringen volunteered the belief that there was about eighty-five miles of the Hocking Valley road which was worth little to the merger, and was not self-sustaining. He said that as far as he was concerned he would sell the eighty-five miles for the nominal consideration of $1 if anyone wanted it on such terms. Counsel for the opponents asked for a complete list of the stockholders of the individual companies who have offered to turn in their securities for securities of the proposed merger, and will not be prepared to continue the cross-examination of Mr. Van Sweringen until this has been examined.

Meantime, J. J. Bernet, President of the Nickel Plate, will testify as to the transportation benefits which it is contended will result if the merger is perfected.

FIGHT ON TO CONSTRUE G. W. PLUNKITT'S WILL

Former Tammany Leader's Son Begins Action—Said to Lack Funds for Cash Bequests.

Action to construe the will of the late George W. Plunkitt, once a Tammany leader on the west side and former State Senator, who died last November, was begun July 9 in the New York County Supreme Court by his son, George Edward Plunkitt, it was learned yesterday. By the will, specific cash bequests totalling $40,000 were left to relatives, while all real estate went to the younger Plunkitt. According to Charles G. F. Wahle, of the law firm of Wahle, Gilbert and Black, 42 Broadway, it was found that sufficient funds were not available to pay the cash bequests, and the present action is being taken to apportion the available cash among the legatees. The appraised value of the real estate is $248,500, Mr. Wahle said.

The bequests include one of $25,000 to Mrs. Margaret Dolan, a sister-in-law of the testator, of 402 West Fifty-third Street, and it is her contention that this money should come from the real estate inherited by the son.

Other bequests of $10,000 to Mrs. Sadie Vick, a niece, of 1437 West 102d Street, and of $5,000 to Letitia V. Hays, widow of Martin F. Hayes, were made.

Answer to the notice must be filed by July 29.

OUT OF JOB, KILLS HIMSELF

Despondency Causes Man to Commit Suicide on Park Bench.

Despondent over his failure to get work, Charles F. Lawrence, 62 years old, living at the Herald Square Hotel, 118 West Thirty-fourth Street, shot himself through the head with a .38-calibre revolver in Central Park, early yesterday morning. He died instantly. Patrolman Mullen of the Arsenal Station found his body on a park bench at the East Drive and Sixty-fifth Street. Dr. Lowenfish, summoned from Reception Hospital, said the man had been dead about an hour.

Lawrence had been employed as a gardener by C. H. Southard of Baldwin, L. I., but lost his position several weeks ago. He went to the hotel on July 17, and had no visitors except his wife, Kitty, who is employed at Tuxedo Park, New York. She was with him on Monday.

A registered letter containing Lawrence's pocketbook received by the hotel yesterday morning. With the letter was a brief note asking the manager to hold his baggage until he could forward a money order in payment of his room rent. Several letters, one signed "Kitty" telling him to keep up his courage and that he would find employment soon, were found in his clothing. On a card found was written: "In case of accident notify my wife, Kitty, at Skycliff, Tuxedo Park, New York, or Captain Bush." Captain Bush was formerly Chief of Police at Tuxedo Park.

Mrs. Lawrence has made arrangements to send the body to Tuxedo. She said that her husband had $50 last Monday, and said she believed he was robbed after he had shot himself.

AIM TO LESSEN MISHAPS.

State Insurance Head Seeks to Reduce Accidents in New York.

State Superintendent of Insurance James A. Beha announced yesterday that he would make arrangements at once with other State authorities for the appointment of a committee to work out plans for the reduction of industrial accidents, which have become more frequent in New York than in any other State in the country.

The State Superintendent's office will try to relieve the burden upon the industrial compensation insurance companies. The premiums for such risks already have been increased twice in the last half year, it was said, and industries here are threatened with being unable to compete with those in other States, due to the expense of accident costs.

At a conference Wednesday Leon S. Senior, manager of the Compensation Inspection Rating Board of the insurance companies, voiced alarm at both the increase of accidents and the broadening of the basis of awards.

SELL LAST RANDOLPH HOME

Wilton-on-the-James, Near Richmond, Was Built in 1746.

Special to The New York Times.

RICHMOND, Va., July 23.—Wilton-on-the-James, one of the most historic of Virginia's mansions and the last home of the Randolphs, was sold at auction yesterday to Warner Moore, a Richmond business man, for $50,000. It was built in 1746 and was appraised by real estate men at $125,000 a few months ago.

The estate was the property of George P. Finnigan of Wilton-on-the-James and New York, an engineer who died in New York nearly a year ago. It was owned successively by several Randolphs and later by a number of prominent persons. It comprises more than 1,200 acres and is six miles below Richmond, in Henrico County.

The estate is regarded as one of the most beautiful near Richmond. The sale was conducted for S. S. P. Patterson and Alexander H. Sands, special Commissioners.

"Free" Bath Costs Him $850.

Benjamin Rothman of 7 Pitt Street went to the Municipal Free Baths at 5 Rutgers Place, Wednesday night, for a plunge. Just after leaving he missed his wallet containing $850. He remembered that a man from a neighboring room had come in to pick up a collar button which had rolled under a partition and when Policeman Tagliano arrested Louis Himmelstein of 115 Ludlow Street, Rothman said Himmelstein was his visitor. The prisoner was held in $1,000 bail on a grand larceny charge.

Mrs. Oothout Left $1,140,459.

Mrs. Helen Read Oothout left an estate appraised yesterday at $1,140,459. The bulk was in securities worth $1,073,174, chiefly in Standard Oil shares. Mrs. Oothout, who died on Feb. 10, left a quarter of the estate to her nephew, Clark P. Read, and three-eighths each to her nieces, Edith Read and Helen Read Barker.

COAL STRIKE LOOMS AS PARLEY DRAGS ON

Little Time Seen for Coolidge to Act if Anthracite Agreement Fails.

SPLIT ON CHECK-OFF PLAN

Miners Need at Least a Week More to Present Case—Operators to Hasten Reply.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 23.—With the eyes of the anthracite consuming public on the wage negotiations between operators and miners, it became apparent today that conversations looking to a new agreement to replace the one expiring Aug. 31, will not end until late next month. The indications are that Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania and President Coolidge will have no more than a week or so in which to avert a suspension of mining if an agreement is not reached at the present parleys.

Speaking for publication, miners and operators say that they are hopeful of reaching an agreement. Impartial observers are of the opinion that the negotiations are pursuing a course similar to that of the conferences of two years ago when the digging of coal was suspended for three weeks before a new contract was arranged.

The miners have been presenting their case for two weeks. They will require at least another week and perhaps two more, in which to conclude their arguments. The operators will then present their case. This may mean an additional two or three weeks although the employers are hoping to conclude in a shorter time. It may be necessary to resort to six sessions a week instead of four in order to speed up the work of the conference.

The joint conference today lasted four hours. One subject was discussed, the check-off. The miners asked for the check-off in the anthracite region, asserting that it has been in existence in the bituminous coal fields many years. They declared that the operators at this time check off about twenty-nine items from the men's pay envelopes including supplies, rent and medical attention. To place one additional item on the list, they argued, would mean no extra bookkeeping and would save the miner's union the necessity of writing out 158,000 monthly receipts for members' dues.

Question Legality of Plan.

When the legality of the check-off was questioned by the operators the miners said they would be willing to have the check-off optional with the men. The latter, if they desired could make an assignment of their dues to the union, but would not be compelled to do so.

In the end the operators did not recede from their position previously announced. They rejected the demand for the check-off, but expressed themselves as willing to hear further argument on the subject.

Except for the brief statement issued by Secretary James O. Gorman, neither side would discuss what took place at today's conference. The Gorman statement merely announced that "there was a discussion of the check-off, voluntary assignments, legality of check-off, distinction between check-off and closed shop and partnership of workers in industry."

"Partnership of workers in industry," referred to a phrase used by Samuel D. Warriner, in his opening address presenting the operators' viewpoint. He pleaded for an amicable understanding because, he said, miners and operators were partners in a joint undertaking.

The six members of the operators' subcommittee have been much concerned over the impression that has gone out that they are not clothed with sufficient authority to work out an agreement with the miners' subcommittee. Major W. W. Inglis, spokesman for the employers, insisted that the subcommittee has full authority to draw up an agreement for the operators.

Denies Limited Power.

To counteract the impression that the operators' subcommittee lacks full powers, the bulletin of the Anthracite Bureau of Information, issued for private circulation among members, will contain the following statement tomorrow:

"The industry is, of course, fully aware that the Negotiating Committee, consisting of Major Inglis and Messrs. Thomas Thomas, George B. Hadesty, J. B. Warriner, A. M. Fine and E. H. Suender, is clothed with full authority to negotiate and agree upon a new contract. It has, however, seemed to serve the purpose of some of the miners' representatives to spread the impression that this is not the case. Every necessary assurance has been given to the negotiators for the miners that the operators' committee is fully empowered and intimations to the contrary may be taken as propaganda other than expression of genuine belief."

Major Inglis said that the operators' subcommittee was just as much in earnest about the necessity for a wage decrease as was Samuel D. Warriner in his statement at the opening of the conference two weeks ago. At the same time he said that if the miners showed the operators a way in which a wage increase might be met without saddling the additional cost on the consumer they would be glad to look into such a suggestion.

A suspension, said Major Inglis, would cost the operators much more than they could gain by selling their present stocks at a higher profit. As a matter of fact, he added, it took the operators nearly a year to make up the losses incident to the 1923 suspension.

The conference will continue tomorrow.

Kills Wife, Daughters and Himself.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 23.—Paul Orlando sent three bullets into the body of his wife, Amelia, two more into the hearts of his daughters, Marie and Louise, and one into his own head, at midnight last night. The bodies were found lying in various parts of the house this morning. Police pushed in the door and found three other children asleep in a rear room. Their slumber had evidently not even been disturbed by their father's act. The house showed evidences of a battle. Evidently the wife, five years older than her husband, had sold her life dearly to protect herself and her daughters. Orlando's age was given as 53.

The Ice Man

David Grayson, in the American Magazine, has this to say of the ice man: "A truly public benefactor, a magician changing about the seasons."

He then goes on to tell of "babies saved, of fewer patients in hospitals who toss less painfully and of life altogether made more agreeable to millions of human beings because of the ice man's coming."

Knickerbocker Ice appreciates Mr. Grayson's tribute and gives all praise to the men on the wagons.

POLITICS INSTITUTE CENTRES ON PEACE

Main Theme of Month's Session, Opening Yesterday, Will Be World Amity.

WAR CAUSES TO BE STUDIED

Judicial Adjustment to Be Considered—Fascist Exponent Lectures Tonight.

MEMBERSHIP INCREASES

Total of 232 Register at Williamstown—Round Tables Will Start Tomorrow.

Special to The New York Times.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., July 23.—The leading question before the fifth annual session of the Institute of Politics, which opened today at Williams College, is whether the future holds another world war or permanent international peace in store for mankind.

Throughout a month of lectures and conferences, the various economic and political factors that threaten the peace of the world, and the various proposals for safeguarding civilization against war, will be described by experts and analyzed by members of the Institute in the hope that public discussion and enlightenment will help save humanity.

In looking to the future rather than the past, this year's session differs from former sessions of the institute, as was emphasized this afternoon in the following statement by Walter W. McLaren, Executive Secretary of the institute and Professor of Economics at Williams:

"The conference programs for the first two or three sessions of the Institute reflected an interest in the immediate past, in the problems left over by the World War. This year's conference program is characterized by an interest in the possible sources of misunderstanding in the future.

Main Questions to Be Considered.

"It canvasses the possibilities of enduring peace based upon the return of prosperity in Europe and upon international justice and good-will. It asks such questions as 'Will peace be interrupted by strife for mineral resources, by redundant population or deficient food supplies?' It further asks: 'Is a World Court feasible and the administration of international justice possible?'

"Likewise, the problems of certain sensitive areas—the Mediterranean area and the Latin-American area—will be studied. The foreign policies of the two great branches of the Anglo-Saxon family will come up for review.

"The membership of the institute has been recruited with a view to the fullest possible discussion of the questions raised by this program. As technical subjects can be most adequately discussed by technicians, there will be in the membership of the institute this year a much larger percentage of specialists than in other years. In selecting members emphasis has been placed on ability to contribute to the discussion.

"Associate membership has been created to provide a place in the institute for a considerable number of genuinely interested men and women. This status allows them to enter the general conference, in which a wide variety of subjects is discussed, and a large number of speakers can be heard. This class of membership was necessitated by the increasingly technical character of many of the round-table conferences."

181 Register for the Session.

Today was devoted entirely to the arrival and registration of the 181 regular members and fifty-one associate members. In addition, there will be about twenty lecturers, conference leaders and special speakers.

Among the members are 24 college professors, 23 lawyers, 14 teachers, 12 editors, 8 diplomats, 8 business men, 8 geologists, 8 lecturers on international relations, 6 clergymen, 6 navy officers, 6 social workers, 5 authors, 4 college Presidents, 3 army officers and 1 college dean. The others are classified as "Miscellaneous." The arrivals rapidly filled the college dormitories which have been reserved for their use.

Lecturers and conference leaders who have arrived include Count Antonio Cippico, Italian spokesman, and Major Gen. Sir Frederick Maurice, Lionel Curtis and Professor Arnold Toynbee, British spokesmen.

The formal opening exercises of the Institute will be held at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning in Chapin Hall, the college auditorium. Dr. Harry A. Garfield, President of Williams and Chairman of the Institute, will explain the purposes of the Institute.

Lionel Curtis will speak on the study of international relations. He will describe the British Institute of International Affairs of London, which is similar to the Institute of Politics, and will urge other such bodies throughout the world, in order to train experts in foreign affairs.

Mr. Curtis was one of the founders of the British Institute and has been adviser on Irish affairs in the Colonial Office. He is editor of The Round Table Magazine and author of several books on the British Commonwealth. During the Institute he will lead a general conference on "The British Commonwealth of Nations," describing the transformation of Britain and her dominions from an empire to a democratic commonwealth.

Fascist Defender to Lecture First.

The opening exercises will include a musical program from Batiste and Wagner by Charles A. Safford, Williams College organist. Tomorrow afternoon Dr. and Mrs. Garfield will give a reception in the President's House to members and friends of the Institute. Summer residents from Lenox, Stockbridge, Pittsfield and other Berkshire places are expected to attend.

Count Antonio Cippico, Italian Senator and Fascist will give the first of six lectures on "The Mediterranean Area and Italy" tomorrow night. He will defend Mussolini's Government and the Fascist movement, interpret their aims to America, explain Italy's overpopulation problem and her dissatisfaction with the failure of the peace settlement to provide Italy with colonies for her surplus people, and emphasize Italy's claims for control of the Mediterranean as against those of Great Britain and France.

There will be two other lecture courses. Dr. William E. Rappard, member of the Permanent Mandates Commission of the League of Nations, and a professor at the University of Geneva, will give six lectures on "International Affairs as Viewed from Geneva," beginning Saturday night. Robert Masson, French banker and director of the Credit Lyonnais, will lecture six times on "Peace Problems of France," giving his first lecture [illegible]

Minister of Poland, and Felix Valyi, founder and editor of the Revue Politique Internationale of Paris, will deliver special addresses on the nights of July 30 and Aug. 10, respectively.

Round Tables Start Tomorrow.

The first of the round table conferences will be held on Saturday morning. There will be eight round tables, each headed by a distinguished expert. Four will meet daily at 9 A. M. Those to meet on Saturday are:

"Agriculture and Population Increase," headed by Dr. E. Edward M. East, Professor of Plant Morphology at Harvard, whose recent work, "Mankind at the Crossroads," pointed out the dangers of continued population increase without a corresponding increase in world agricultural resources.

"Economic Recovery of Europe," Dr. Edwin F. Gay, Professor of Economic History at Harvard, former President of The New York Evening Post.

"Limitation of Armament," Major Gen. Sir Frederick Maurice, Chief of Operations on the British General Staff during the war, whose round table will be attended by prominent American army and navy offices, as well as representatives of anti-war organizations.

"The Mediterranean Area," Dr. Arnold Toynbee, Professor of Modern Greek Literature and History at London University, who will pay special attention to relations between the European powers and the Arabic speaking peoples, illustrated by the rising of the Riff tribes in Morocco against the French and the Spanish.

Two general conferences, each meeting three days a week, will open next week. They are:

"The Recent Foreign Policy of the United States," Dr. George H. Blakeslee, Professor of History and Internal Relations at Clark University and a member of the editorial advisory board of Foreign Affairs.

"The British Commonwealth," Lionel Curtis.

TO UNEARTH ARMAGEDDON.

Chicago Expedition, Aided by Rockefeller, Will Sail in August.

PHILADELPHIA, July 23 (AP).—Dr. Clarence S. Fisher, field director for the expedition of the Oriental Museum, University of Chicago, to excavate Armageddon, "Battleground of the Ages," announced today that the expedition expects to sail about the middle of next month and gave details of elaborate plans for the archeological investigation within 400 miles of the Garden of Eden.

In addition to rare archeological data which the expedition hopes to unearth, including traces of civilization dating back 5,000 years, Dr. Fisher said one of the principal benefits to accrue from the expedition would be the training of American university students in the science of archaeological investigation, "so Americans can carry on work as experts." The expedition will start out with at least four students, two from Yale and two from Princeton.

The personnel of the expedition, financed by John D. Rockefeller, will include, besides the scientists, 400 workmen. A light railway will be constructed to remove the dirt and automobiles will be used to carry supplies from the nearest railway base.

URGES FARM MARKETING.

Ex-Gov. Lowden Says Success Lies in Organization.

PHILADELPHIA, July 23 (AP).—Former Governor Lowden of Illinois, speaking tonight at the American Institute of Cooperation, said the farmers will get nowhere without organizing to dispose of their products.

"No one, I think, who has observed the course of events in the last few years will deny that agriculture is sadly out of gear with the other parts of the structure," Mr. Lowden said. "I for one do not believe that it can regain its rightful place in this highly organized world except through organization itself.

"Agriculture has emerged from its primitive state," continued Mr. Lowden. "It must therefore conform to those practices which have been found necessary to the success of other great industries. In all other fields of commerce, unrestricted, free and open competition in the marketing of products has been gradually disappearing.

"I can foresee the day, I think, when everything produced upon the farm for the market will be marketed by the farmers themselves through an organization of their own creation."

Senator Butler's Mill Cuts Output.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., July 23 (AP).—Curtailment of weaving production at the Butler mill by 50 per cent. has gone into effect, due to present conditions in the fine goods market, according to announcement made today. This affects about 3,400 of the 2,800 looms operated in normal times by 1,500 employes. The corporation manufactures fine cotton, plain and fancy cloth goods and is the first mill here to make a radical cut in production. Senator William M. Butler is President of the company.

Rabbi's Family Is Ordered Deported

COHOES, N. Y., July 23 (AP).—The wife of Rabbi Jacob Swarin and his four children must leave the country before Aug. 14, according to a ruling of the Federal Department of Labor received by bondsmen here. The five arrived from Palestine June 29, 1924, one day before the alien quota law became effective. The new law would have admitted them as the wife and children of a clergyman. It was announced an appeal to President Coolidge might be made.

HINTS AT SECRECY IN CURZON'S WILL

Morning Post Says Document, in Three Statements, Has "Startling Revelations."

REFER TO FORMER PREMIER

Probate Deferred That Marquis's "Literary Testament" May Not Be Made Public.

LONDON, July 24 (AP).—A statement conspicuously displayed in The Morning Post today says that the will of the Marquis Curzon of Kedleston takes the form of three testaments, one of which was suppressed because it contained pungent and illuminating comments on former colleagues of the dead statesman, including a former Premier under whom Curzon served.

The newspaper refers to these comments on the unnamed former Premier as "startling revelations." It says that Marquis Curzon desired that the document containing them should not be published at the present time, but that the executors were faced with the difficulty that the document also contains certain directions in the nature of an ordinary will and it was, therefore, required to be submitted for probate.

The document was submitted to the Probate Court, but in view of the fact that if probate were granted the document must legally be made available to public inspection, it was withdrawn and remains a private testament. The Morning Post says Marquis Curzon identified this document as his "literary testament" in a supplementary will which he wrote after he was seized with the illness that proved fatal.

The "literary testament" was shown by the executors of the estate, says the newspaper, "to a high personage in the political world," to enlist his aid in deciding what to do with it. This personage emphatically advised that no considerations of any kind should be allowed to remove the veil of secrecy with which Curzon enshrouded the document.

"Those familiar with the contents of the literary testament," the newspaper adds, "appear to have agreed that this advice was sound. It has been suggested by one aware of them that publication must have been followed by a rude shock to public faith in a man who has rendered conspicuous service to the State."

That part of the will in which Marquis Curzon bequeathed to the nation his castles and art objects is described by The Morning Post as the first, or original will.

In connection with The Morning Posts story it is recalled that Marquis Curzon held Ministerial posts under Premiers Asquith, Lloyd George, Bonar Law and Baldwin, and that before that he was Under Secretary for India and private secretary to the Marquis of Salisbury.

The will of Marquis Curzon places a gross value on his estate, apart from previous settlements, of £354,894 (about $1,775,000), with a net value of about £50,000 less.

HAMILTON HELD IN $25,000.

Alleged Swindler Unable to Give Bail—Case to Go to Grand Jury.

George Hamilton, alleged swindler of jobless women, who was arrested by detectives of the West Thirtieth Street police station Wednesday afternoon, was held in $25,000 bail on a charge of grand larceny by Magistrate Max S. Levine in Jefferson Market Court yesterday. Hamilton was unable to furnish bail.

The specific complaint upon which Hamilton was held was the alleged theft of $650 from Rose Jager, 38 West Sixty-seventh Street, a governess whose advertisement for a position Hamilton had answered on June 13. She said she had met him at the Biltmore Hotel, had been "employed" and taken on a shopping trip when Hamilton displayed a certified check for $650 which he said needed his wife's signature. He induced Miss Jager to give him $650 of her money, she charged, until he could get the check cashed, having learned in the meantime of the amount of her savings. He then disappeared.

A number of other women who said they had been swindled by similar means were in court. A complete list of Hamilton's accusers has not yet been obtained but will be prepared by the District Attorney's office for the Grand Jury.

Warned to Cut Smoking or Die, He Clung to His Cigars, and Now He Is Hearty at 100

Thirty-five years ago physicians warned Joseph Christi, the oldest jeweler in Newark and probably the oldest in the country, that he must stop smoking so many cigars or suffer the penalty of an early death. The jeweler, listened to the advice but continued to smoke. Next Wednesday Mr. Christi will celebrate his 100th birthday and among the presents he will receive will be a box of his favorite brand of cigars.

Mr. Christi, who lives at 800 South Twelfth Street, Newark, has no rules for longevity. He says he has always smoked to excess and used wine and beer with his meals until a few years ago. Walking has been his hobby. Although he eats meat heartily he eats meat only once or at the most twice a week. The centenarian amuses himself now listening to the radio. He read daily until about a year ago, when failing eyesight forced him to turn to the radio. He retired from business twelve years ago.

Mr. Christi was born in Marienbad, Austria, and came to this country eighty years ago. He worked as a designer for several old Newark jewelry concerns. He is the father of nine children, five of whom are still living. Two sons, Harry O. and Julius E., have conducted a jewelry store in Market Street for the last forty years.

WOMEN VOTE IN EUROPE IN VIRGINIA ELECTION

One Travels From Florence to Paris to Get Ballots for Herself and Two Others.

PARIS, July 23 (AP).—Miss Nora Houston of Richmond, Va., traveled from Florence, Italy, to Paris in order that she might exercise her right of suffrage in the electoral campaign now being waged in her State between Harry Byrd and Walter Mapp.

On arriving at Paris Miss Houston found her ballot at the American Consulate, where it had been forwarded by William Woodson, Registrar at Richmond. She immediately had the ballot legalized by the Consulate and the document will be sent to the United States on board the steamer Berengaria Saturday.

Tonight Miss Houston is hurrying back to Florence, taking ballots to Mrs. Josephine Houston and Miss Alice Dooley, her mother and cousin, both of whom will declare their vote before the American Consul in Florence. These ballots will be forwarded by the steamer President Adams July 30 in the hope that they will reach Richmond before the closing of the polls Aug. 4.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—G. Walter Mapp and Harry F. Byrd are candidates for the Democratic nomination for Governor of Virginia in the primary Aug. 4.

RECALLS OLD BOSCH SUIT.

Defense Says Injunction Action Is Sequel to Palmer Litigation.

In connection with the injunction suit brought recently in the Supreme Court by the American Bosch Magneto Corporation of Springfield, Mass., against the Robert Bosch Magneto Company, Inc., to restrain it from selling magnetos and other electrical products under the name of "Bosch," a statement was issued yesterday by Louis Besh, Vice President of the defendant company, in which he said:

"The suit is in answer to an earlier suit brought by Otto Heins, President of the old Bosch Magneto Company, now pending in the Federal Court, against A. Mitchell Palmer and Francis P. Garvan, two former Alien Property Custodians; Martin E. Kern, and the American Bosch Magneto Corporation for $1,000,000 damages on the ground of fraud and conspiracy.

"Mr. Besh said the injunction suit would be fought in the courts, and asserted that his company has never resorted to unfair trade practices.

TEN ENTOMBED IN MINE.

Two Bodies Recovered in Tennessee —Hope Abandoned for Others.

ROCKWOOD, Tenn., July 23 (AP).—William J. Snow, Superintendent of the Roane Iron Company coal mines, and a party of nine men were trapped by an explosion in a mine here early today. Grave fears are held for their safety. The men had gone into Bryson Dip on the No. 7 entry to combat a fire. Only one of the party escaped.

Bryson Dip is the scene of a fire that broke out some time ago and was walled up in an attempt to extinguish it. The barricade was removed this week in the presence of State and Federal mine inspectors, who pronounced conditions satisfactory. At 11 o'clock the old blaze broke out again and a fire-fighting party was organized.

The bodies of Claude Tindell and Raymond Watkins were later brought to the surface. The bodies were horribly mangled and were only identified by their clothing. Another rescue party entered the mine, but hope of finding the other entombed men alive has been abandoned.

EPISCOPALIANS STUDY PROTECTION OF HOME

Church Commission Considers Health Certificates and Other Prerequisites for Marriages.

CHICAGO, July 23 (AP).—What attitude the church should take toward requiring health certificates as prerequisites to marriage and what support it should give a national law providing for uniform standards of marriage and divorce in the United States, are two of the questions to which the Joint Commission on Hope and Family Life of the Episcopal Church is seeking an answer, preparatory to its report to the triennial convention in New Orleans in October.

If the ratio of divorce goes on increasing as at present, "the whole conception of Christian marriage will fade from the consciousness of the American people and be replaced by a kind of barnyard morality," the commission believes. The Christian training alone will correct the condition, said a statement by Bishop William Hall Moreland of Sacramento, Cal., a member of the committee, issued here by The Witness, an Episcopal Church publication.

"We must not deceive ourselves, the real issue in this country is, 'Is marriage worth saving?'" the statement declared. "Facilities for dissolving marriage abound, inflaming every trifling dispute, encouraging marital infidelity and stimulating hasty or secret unions. Thousands of young people, knowing that the law permits a consecutive, or 'tandem' polygamy, enter the married state with the deliberate purpose of breaking it off should it be unsatisfactory.

"Divorce is invariably accompanied by sterility. Birth control is a problem that needs to be faced. The whole subject of the end and object of marriage must be set forth with patience, wisdom and love."

NEWARK JEWELER SOUGHT.

Customers, Who Left $30,000 in Valuables for Repair, Worried.

Newark detectives began a search yesterday for Louis Sachs, a jeweler, of 116 Market Street, whose disappearance is worrying a score of customers who had entrusted $30,000 worth of jewelry to him for repairs. Two charges of embezzlement have been made against Sachs.

George Marks of 125 Maples Avenue, one of the complainants, says he left two diamond rings valued at $2,400 for repairs, and did not get them back. The other complainant is Jack Schuman of Tichener Lane. He gave the jeweler a bracelet valued at $725 to be repaired.

Detectives found that Sachs had pawned some of the jewelry in Newark.

Widow's Application Reveals A. Baldwin Sloane's Small Estate.

An estate of not more than $100 was left by A. Baldwin Sloane, composer of light operas and a well-known figure on Broadway, it was revealed yesterday when letters of administration were granted to his widow, Mrs. Mae Sloane of 105 West Seventy-second Street, in the Surrogates' Court.

Mr. Sloane, who died on Feb. 21, was President of the Composers Publishing Company and a member of the Lambs, Strollers and Green Room clubs. Besides his widow, a daughter, Julie Sloane Brackett of Red Bank, N. J., is his only heir at law.

Would Bar Public Sunday Dances.

ATLANTA, Ga., July 23 (AP).—The lower house of the Legislature today passed a measure prohibiting dances in public places on "the Lord's Day, commonly known as Sunday." The vote was 133 to 40.

FIND TWO SISTERS SLAIN IN THEIR HOME

Elderly Maiden Women Beaten to Death in House They Occupied Alone.

NO CLUE TO THE ASSAILANTS

Neighbors Saw No Stranger at the House, Which Apparently Had Not Been Robbed.

HUDSON, N. H., July 23 (AP).—Two elderly maiden sisters were found beaten to death late this afternoon in the home they occupied alone here. They were Miss H. Georgianna Gillis, 77, and Miss Helen Gillis, 80.

Although the crime had apparently been committed yesterday, it was only late today that the bodies were found by neighbors. The body of Miss Georgianna was crumpled in the pantry among broken dishes, her skull crushed by blows from a club.

Her sister had apparently been struck down in the kitchen, for blood had spattered the floor and her torn cape was near the sink. The body, however, was on a couch in the living room.

No instrument that had caused the deaths was found in the house by the police, and no stranger was reported to have been seen in the vicinity. The house at a cursory glance appeared not to have been robbed or ransacked.

Mrs. J. A. Locke, a neighbor, said she went to the house yesterday, as had been her custom during the twenty-five years the sisters lived there. When they failed to answer her knock she returned home. Today another neighbor, Mrs. Eugene Center, likewise failed of response. She sought Mrs. Locke, the spinsters' best friend, and together they entered the house and found the bodies. The doors were open, but the screens were closed.

GOV. SMITH TO BE AT OUTING

Picnic by First Assembly Democrats the First Since Foley's Death.

Governor and Mrs. Smith, it was announced yesterday, will both attend the outing to be given on Monday by the Democratic organization of the First Assembly District, of which the Governor has been a resident, to the women and children of the district. The day will be spent at Dexter Park in the Borough of Queens.

There will be toys for the children, presents for the women and games at which the winners will receive prizes. Mrs. Smith has accepted the chairmanship of a committee to oversee the children. Charles Brady, Superintendent of Buildings in the Department of Public Works, is in charge of all arrangements. Fifty buses will be used to provide transportation.

It will be the first outing since the death of Thomas F. Foley, who for twenty-five years was leader of the district. Mr. Foley took a special interest in the youngsters of his district and never failed to attend the annual picnic arranged for them.

5 HELD IN CLARK'S DEATH.

Maryland Officials Believe He Drank Bad Liquor or Was Slain.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., July 23.—Two theories to account for the death of Charles P. Clark, County Commissioner of Harford County, were held today by county officials and detectives. One is that Clark was driven to the woods near Vanbibber, slain and robbed. His body was found yesterday in his automobile. The other is that he died from poisoned liquor.

Mr. Clark was reported to have been last seen leaving a "speak-easy," but friends say he seldom took more than a single drink of liquor.

Detectives questioned five persons held [illegible] One, a sixteen-year-old boy, said to have been at the wheel of Mr. Clark's car when he left the saloon. The boy, however, declares he left Mr. Clark down the road and saw him drive away. Lloyd Wilson and Clifford Norris, said to be the proprietor of a saloon, are held, as are also Jesse Todd and Charles Lauck, said to have been in the saloon when Mr. Clark was there.

Liquor said to have been in the saloon has been seized by Sheriff Thompson and the State's Attorney and will be submitted to chemical analysis.

EVOLUTION BATTLE TO GO TO CONGRESS

if the evolutionary doctrine is not taught as positive fact but merely as a theory on the origin of life. It is a historical fact that such a theory has been propounded. It is merely a matter of biological history to inform pupils that such a doctrine exists, he holds, and the pupils are left free to make up their own minds.

Doubts Violation in Law of Gravity.

Another paragraph of the brief declares that by teaching the law of gravity in physics instructors have denied the possibility of the physical ascent of Elijah into Heaven and of the physical resurrection of all men on Judgment Day. The conclusion would not hold in court, Mr. Stephens believes. While the law of gravity is taught, the teachers do not specifically state that because of this law some of the incidents related in Scripture are impossible or that it might not be possible for a supernatural power to set aside a natural law at his pleasure. Even an airplane, Mr. Stephens holds, probably can overcome the law of gravity and ascend beyond the "limit of vision" mentioned in the brief, and this without divine interference at all.

"I have not had time to complete my plans," Mr. Stephens said, "but I certainly shall make as many objections as possible. But it seems apparent to me that the Court must grant my motion to dismiss on the technical errors in bringing the suit alone without going into the question of what might constitute 'disrespect for the Bible.'

"If the case went further it seems exceedingly improbable to me that the matter taught in the district schools could be interpreted as 'disrespect,' particularly within the meaning of the act. A common-sense interpretation of the word would be in order, not a strained interpretation, such as would be given it by an extremist. It would devolve into a case of determining what Congress meant by the word, and it does not seem likely that it was meant to prevent the teaching of science in the public schools, as this suit would seem to indicate.

For Straightforward Interpretation.

"There is something more at stake here than a fantastic issue. It involves a question of the salaries of public school men, and this necessitates a very straightforward interpretation, not a strained one. A man's pay cannot be denied him on a very strained technicality.

"The exact intention of the man who introduced the clause into the Appropriation act is not so essential as the plain meaning of the word 'disrespect' as it would be understood by the average individual.

"I regret exceedingly that such an issue has been brought up at this time. The clause has been in the act for two years and has caused no trouble. Why should it be brought up at this time when in a few months Congress will have a chance to pass upon it again? I believe the best interests of all will be served by having the case stopped at the start, and we certainly will do our best to stop it.

"Of course, if anybody sees fit to file a flawless brief we may have to fight it out, and it might involve a long, hard case. But such a step seems to me unnecessary."

Several cases decided by the Supreme Court were cited today as valid reasons why Mr. Wittner could not proceed with his action. The most vital of these perhaps is that of Frothingham vs. Mejon, in which Mr. Frothingham, as a taxpayer of Massachusetts, challenged the constitutionality of the maternity act. In effect the Court decided that Mr. Frothingham had no standing because the party who assails a law must not only show that it is invalid but that he has been injured or is in immediate danger of being injured by its effect. An attempt to show that he would suffer in some indefinite way is not good ground, the Court held. In still another case, that of Frizzell vs. Newman, the Court held that Mr. Frizzell, who sought to prevent the appointment of Oliver P. Newman as a District Commissioner, did not have sufficient interest to bring the suit.

Applying this principle to Mr. Wittner, legal authorities here say his position can be attacked because he has stated that he is an atheist, and therefore cannot be damaged by the teaching of evolution in the schools.

"I am not an agnostic," says Mr. Wittner. "I am an atheist. I do not believe in God or the Bible. Religion, in my opinion, is detrimental because it makes people dependent on worship and deprives them of their independence."

Blanton Issues Statement.

Mr. Blanton gave out this statement today:

"The record for Saturday, May, 1924, shows:

"That just a few minutes before the amendment in question was offered by Dr. Summers of Washington I made a point of order that no quorum was present. The roll was called and 333 members responded to their names. Of course, the usual number wandered out, but there was left quite a number of the active men of the House.

"The record quotes me as saying that I would not make the point of order against it. This was because the amendment was so framed that it was a limitation, impervious to a point of order.

"To members who are active on the floor it is well known that for several years Dr. Summers has strongly condemned the action of several teachers in the Washington schools because of their stand on the three subjects mentioned in his amendment.

"Dr. Summers is a prominent and popular member of the House, and it is my firm belief that if the proposition had been forced to a vote that afternoon his amendment would have carried by a large majority.

"You ask for my opinion. I never straddle the fence and will give it. I am against any teacher in any Government school maintained by the tax money of the people of the United States teaching 'disrespect for the Holy Bible,' and I was for Dr. Summers's amendment on May 3, 1924, am for it now and I will be for it whenever it forms another issue before the House."

Mr. Wittner, the author of the evolution suit, declared this afternoon that his real motive in bringing the action was "to make possible the teaching of all theories and facts in the schools."

Asserting that he was not aided in the suit, the thirty-six-year-old clerk of the Office of Supply of the Internal Revenue Division declared:

"Congress is trying to stifle education. The difference between the Scopes trial and the present case is just this:

"In the Scopes trial the issue was whether the State Legislature should prescribe the curriculum in the schools. Here Congress says that all curricula must be narrowed to a point where it will agree with the insane ideas of a people of 2,000 years ago. Congress is simply glorifying ignorance.

"Has Congress or any State Legislature the right constitutionally to narrow school curricula so that the Holy Bible teachings shall be accepted as the true scientific theories?

"If Congress is permitted to continue to pursue this course the Holy Bible will be the only book of science that can be taught in the schools.

Says Religion Bars Independence.

"I am an atheist—a pure atheist. I believe religion is detrimental because it teaches dependence, and one can never achieve independence if one is dependent.

"Anything that conflicts with the Bible," Mr. Wittner said, "is disrespectful. The fanaticism of men of the ilk of William Jennings Bryan has crept into our schools, halting liberal education."

Mr. Wittner is admittedly self-taught. He did not go to college and although he did research work at a Middle Western university he was not enrolled as a student. Nor did he take a law course. His studies in the Library of Congress here and in his home in Rockport, Ill., have all been along academic lines, seeking the truth of the development of the human race. He believes, he said, that modern education is entirely too narrow, crediting himself with the same views which are held by Upton Sinclair and Herbert Quick.

Doris Stevens, wife of Dudley Field Malone, arriving here today from Dayton, called the Washington evolution case a boon because it would bring directly to the attention of the Government the settlement of the issue.

William P. Hay, head of the biology department in the Washington High Schools, frowned on the suit which would restrain his pay.

"It is utterly foolish, childish and silly," he said.

A careful examination of Hunter's "New Essentials of Biology," which is used in all high schools of Washington, except business schools, was made today by Mr. Hay and as a result, he said he found only one chapter related vaguely to evolution. It is headed, "Evolution of Man," and makes no reference, he said, to the theory that man is a descendant of the lower forms of animal life.

"I was surprised to learn," he said, "that nowhere in this chapter could be found any statement that could be construed as indicating that man evolved from ape-like ancestors."

Unitarians Offer Aid to Teachers.

BOSTON, July 23 (AP).—The Unitarian Laymen's League announced that it had offered the services of lawyers among its members to the defense in Washington's new evolution case.

The offer of counsel was made to Frank Bellou, Superintendent of Schools, Washington, D. C., and W. P. Hay, head of the department of biology and chemistry in the Washington high schools, whose salaries are jeopardized by injunction proceedings. The offer was made today by Charles H. Strong of New York, President of the Laymen's League, and William L. Barnard of Boston, Executive Vice President of the league, through Major A. M. Holcombe of Washington.

Mr. Strong, who is Secretary of the New York City Bar Association, was authorized recently by the Executive Committee of the Laymen's League to seek to intervene in the Supreme Court and, on behalf of the league, to file a brief as to the constitutionality of the Tennessee anti-evolution law, in the event that the Scopes case is carried up on appeal.

In announcing the league's action Mr. Barnard said:

"Unitarians welcome the results of scientific research as foundation stones for their religion, feeling that it has no need to be afraid of modern science. Science is one of the ways in which God reveals himself to man."

PARIS SEES CHANCE OF PEACE WITH RIFF

Basis for Ending War Thought Possible in Abd-el-Krim's Supposed Terms.

CAILLAUX BALKS AT COST

Country Shows Little Interest in Conflict—Moorish Chief Explains Grievances.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 23.—Abd-el-Krim's unofficial peace proposals which have been communicated through the Westminster Gazette in England and the Quotidien in Paris are regarded here as a possible solution, though not entirely satisfactory.

It is not yet known whether the proposals, which are supposed to have come through the intermediary of a British officer, are really those of the Riff leader, but several of the conditions seem to indicate their authenticity. Thus only a Moorish mind could have invented as one of the armistice terms the idea of offering in the interest of better feeling to release one-third of the prisoners "without ransom." The ransom of Spanish prisoners has been much too remunerative an affair for the Riffians to permit Abd-el-Krim to offer wholesale exchange.

While the Quai d'Orsay refuses to make any official comment on the proposals, as they have not been officially presented, it is understood that they are not far from meeting the Government's wishes.

French Version of Terms.

As published by the Quotidien, these proposals in brief are as follows:

1—Independence of the Riff to be recognized with a guarantee by the League of Nations and a status similar to that of Afghanistan.

2—Abd-el-Krim to have the title of Emir, recognizing the spiritual but not the temporal authority of the Sultan.

3—The southern frontier of the Riff to be the north bank of the River Ouergha and the Riff territory to include all Djebalia with Larache, Arzilla and Tetuan.

4—Spain to keep Ceuta and Melilla with enough territory to assure the defense of these towns, and also the iron ore mines ten miles south of Melilla.

5—The Riff to have a permanent army of which the numbers will be established by experts, the Riff Government keeping surplus armaments now in its possession.

6—Complete cessation of all Pan-Islamic propaganda in the French protectorate.

7—No reparations.

8—Small credit to be granted by the League of Nations to enable the Riff to establish a solid government and surmount the difficulties of the first year of autonomous government.

9—Certain facilities to be granted by Spain to enable commercial development for which reciprocal facilities will be granted to Spanish and French business men. The construction of the Fez-Tangiers and Melilla-Taza railroads will be placed in French and Spanish hands.

These conditions of peace, whether authentic or not, are in tone somewhat pretentious. Many points raised affect Spanish more than French interests and care seems to have been taken to avoid conflict with the French. The two matters in which the French are mostly concerned are the Sultan's authority in the Riff, which has always been doubtful, and the Ouergha frontier issue, which has been undecided ever since the delimitation of the French and Spanish zones.

French Anxious for Peace.

If the proposals are acceptable to the Spanish it might be easily possible for the French Government to find in them a peace basis. Though the Government now is well prepared to make war effectively, it is more anxious for peace than for victory if peace can be secured on reasonable terms, and with guarantees against another Riff rising. The present expedition is costing much more than Finance Minister Caillaux is willing to continue paying and the country as a whole is not interested in the war.

Two factors which seem most likely to militate against acceptance of these proposals, if they be genuine, are the inadvisability of making peace while Riff troops are still in occupation of French territory, and, second, the necessity for France now to consider Spanish interests as well as her own.

Above all, the French do not desire an armistice with Abd-el-Krim. Though the Riff leader purposes to withdraw all his agents in the protectorate in return for raising the blockade during the armistice period, the French think they have reason for mistrust and will continue to seek immediate peace on their own conditions, which Abd-el-Krim has been informed he can learn through his usual agents in Tangier and elsewhere.

Abd-el-Krim Puts Blame on Lyautey.

CAIRO, Egypt, July 23 (AP).—In an open letter addressed to the French Parliament and published in the Egyptian newspaper Al Siassah here, Abd-el-Krim, the Riffian rebel leader in Morocco, declares he has made every effort within his power to reach an understanding with Marshal Lyautey, French Governor General of Morocco. Abd-el-Krim said that in 1923 he told M. Painlevé, the present French Premier, he desired friendly relations with France and that he has constantly attempted such relations.

The Riffian leader, whose followers are now fighting the French and Spanish in Morocco, explains that he "has no press" in which to present his side of the case, and therefore sends his letter to a Cairo newspaper.

He declares the Riffians have only made just demands but that Marshal Lyautey has always refused to consider them and that the Marshal has done everything possible to impair Abd-el-Krim's honor and dignity.

Abd-el-Krim states he sought a boundary conference with Marshal Lyautey two years ago, but the mission failed and simultaneously French troops advanced toward Beni Zeroual.

"We did not interfere," the Riffian leader says, "until we saw the French coming into our own country. Then we felt the time for friendly negotiations had passed.

"For two years Marshal Lyautey has encouraged the Moroccan tribes to oppose my people. Yet we never opened fire until the French artillery had bombarded and their airplanes had bombed our tribes. * * * It is a disgrace that two great powers like France and Spain should combine against one small nation which is only defending its rights."

The letter denies that any Europeans or Bolshevists are participating in Abd-el-Krim's campaign.

FOE RETREATS FROM OUERGHA

French at Taza Plan Drive to Turn Riffians' Left Wing.

FEZ, French Morocco, July 23 (AP).—The Riffian tribesmen now are in full retreat from the Ouergha River northward, closely pressed by a French detachment with artillery along the right bank of the stream.

This together with other indications gathered by the French Intelligence Service shows that Abd-el-Krim has given up the idea of attacking on the centre and is reverting to the plan of attacking on the wings.

General Naulin, the new French Commander-in-Chief, has decided to go to Taza instead of to Ouezzan as he originally planned. A Riffian division is concentrating in the vicinity of Taza and against these troops a French attack is imminent in order to relieve pressure against the French line of communication between Fez and Algeria. The plan is to turn Abd-el-Krim's left wing completely.

PARIS, July 23 (AP).—Conditions on the battle front in Morocco today were reported as calm. Dispatches said it could be noted that Abd-el-Krim's soldiers had lost much of the fierce fighting spirit with which they were imbued in the early stages of the campaign.

The defeats administered by the French troops were said to have made a deep impression on the Riffian warriors, and signs of a concentration of the famous French Moroccan division in the region of Taza for the impending offensive to have caused them much uneasiness. Also Abd-el-Krim is reported as beginning to feel the effects of the blockade. His ammunition is running low.

The initiative in the operations, which has been in Abd-el-Krim's hands since April, is now declared to have passed into the hands of Marshal Pétain and General Naulin.

FIERCE FIGHTING AT OUTPOST.

Daring Riffians Blown Up as They "Capture" Cases of Bombs.

TAZA, July 22 (Delayed).—It is unnecessary to leave Taza to know there is a war on. The operations are entirely too close to enable one to enjoy "all the modern comforts" which the hotel here promises and provides. While the hotel director explained to me that not only was there room for me, but that almost the whole hotel was at my disposal, if I wished, I could hear the dull rumbling of artillery from the north.

One can hear it almost continually, but yesterday it was louder than usual. From 4 A. M. until evening the distant roar of artillery was audible. Operations were being conducted to relieve the garrison and suppress the outpost at Msila, twenty-five kilometers northwest of Taza. They were a complete success, and are to be considered the first decisive result of Marshal Pétain's short stay at Taza.

Four battalions, under the burning sun marched a distance of ten kilometers from Djebel-el-Haifa to Msila with its greatest strength massed on each flank of the column. Each slope in the narrow valley of Oued-el-Hadar was covered by a heavy fire from the rebels entrenched in the hills. Four batteries of 75's followed the column, protecting its advance with effective barrages. The most difficult aspect of the operation was extricating a battalion of Senegalese occupying the high, rocky summits of Msila, the slopes of which were so steep that it was necessary to lower with ropes four 75's belonging to the garrison.

Meanwhile the Riffians advanced swiftly and their fire became more murderous, being at times directed at a distance of 400 yards from the heights against the flank guards and mule trains transporting materials from the post. Despite this the French not only evacuated the entire garrison but also succeeded in carrying out the munition supplies with the exception of two cases of grenades before blowing up the post.

A dozen audacious Riffians rushed into the post in order to obtain these grenades, but precisely at that moment the explosion took place, obliterating all signs of the post and the Riffians before the eyes of the French troops. The incident may seem simple, but it had the effect of a tonic on the Algerian soldiers and weary Senegalese, inspiring them with courage and confidence.

Protected by a double barrage of artillery the column returned to Djebel el Haifa. The Riffians harassed its flanks for some time, but owing to fatigue found themselves forced to abandon the battle.

I talked here at the hospital with two officers wounded during these operations. They told me the hills surrounding Msila were swarming with Riffians who live in trenches covered and protected against bombardment as well as trenches ever were in the great war. They believe the trench construction which the Riffians incessantly and everywhere are carrying on is directed by Germans.

The present front at Taza practically follows the line of outposts—Taza to Oulad Ameili, ten kilometers north of the railroad; Taza-Fez-Djebel el Haifa, fifteen kilometers northwest of Taza, and Bab Maroudj-Colla der Caid-Meddes-Kifane-Sidi Bel Kassem.

The greatest danger lies in the filtering methods which are taking place behind this line and even at Ain Bou Kellal, fifteen kilometers northeast of Taza on the road to Kifane. Danger also lies in the fact that the French cannot be overconfident of the so-called loyal tribes in this region. One of the rebels' tricks is to display the white flag to convince the French they are allies and then fire upon them.

Despite these disagreeable factors, the situation, although still serious, is beginning to clear up, because the first reinforcements of the Moroccan division are commencing to arrive at Taza. Little by little women are returning to Taza without military permission. The town is well guarded day and night.

AMERICAN SQUADRON IN PRACTICE FLIGHTS

Veterans Enlisted for Morocco Still Expert After Years of Inactivity.

PARIS, July 23.—The aviators of the new Lafayette Squadron—which, by the way, has not decided what it is to be called during the Moroccan war—made their first practice flights today at the Orly air field, near Paris. Each of the five fliers belonging to the first unit to leave for the front flew about fifty minutes in Bréguet and Henriot planes. While the actual time of flight may seem short, each pilot was allowed to make ten landings and there was not a single accident to mar the day.

Some of the fliers have not flown since 1920 and others since 1918. They expressed satisfaction today at having made so good a showing after such a long period of inaction and were surprised that they did not feel at all rusty.

They expect to return to Orly tomorrow afternoon for further flights and will then leave for Barbizon, on the borders of Fontainebleau forest, for a pleasant week-end—their last in France till the war is over. Monday and Tuesday they will continue practicing at Orly and may even continue Wednesday, as no definite date has been set. The French squadron, with which they were expected to go as passengers, will fly tomorrow.

"Letters and telegrams are arriving daily from would-be candidates for the Sultan's air force and the commander has received a letter dated July 14 from J. G. Coutin, manufacturer of pulverized fuel, offering to equip and send a hospital unit especially for the aviators.

"This was not considered at all as a gloomy prospect by the cheerful airmen, for this afternoon they practically decided to accept an offer of services made by Dr. H. L. Walker, now practicing at the Clique Pierre in Paris, and who is a veteran of the Spanish war and of the Canadian forces during the great war and spent thrilling months fighting cholera in Bolshevist Russia in 1920.

"The aviators expect to serve with strict military discipline in spite of the fact that they are all volunteers. When they reach the front there will be no time to play, they say, and they expect to compete with each other in friendly spirit for the hardest assignments.

"By flying for the Sultan in Morocco," one of them said this evening, "we not only will be rendering a service to our French friends, but will also be serving our own country. The United States Army cannot be [illegible] the nucleus of pilots [illegible] experience in guerrilla warfare in [illegible] country.

The occasion may arise when the United States will need pilots with knowledge of fighting an invisible enemy in a country where a stopped motor far from a possible landing place means almost certain shattering of the plane on rocks."

And it is with the expectation of greater possibilities of injury from hard landings than from enemy bullets that the American airmen are planning their equipment.

Upon learning that the Government would open the rolls for volunteers for service in Morocco, the famous French speed champion, Sadi Lecointe, yesterday applied to the Ministry of War and today was accepted for service at the top of the list. He holds the world's airplane speed and altitude records. It is understood that enlistments will be accepted for the period ending Dec. 31, and may be renewed by half-yearly periods.

Sadi Lecointe expects to organize several squadrons of volunteer airmen and has asked for an interview with Premier Painlève to obtain his support. Several friends are ready to join him. Lecointe is employed by an airplane firm here and they allowed him leave of absence with the single condition that he return to fly Oct. 18 for the Commodore Beaumont Cup at Istres, near Marseilles.

The Matin publishes a letter from a group of Belgian aviators who wish to fly for the French in Morocco and who are obliged to enlist in the Foreign Legion for five years to win the coveted honor.

"This honor has been granted our American friends who formerly belonged to the Lafayette Squadron, but, alas! we are not so lucky," the letter says. "We have applied to serve in the Sultan's army, but this is denied us. We are not despairing yet and hope you will help us."

KEYNES SAYS GOLD BASIS PUT MANY OUT OF WORK

Economist Declares Britain's Financial Policy Deliberately Restricts Credit at Home.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 23.—J. M. Keynes, the economist, continuing today his examination of the British monetary policy in The Evening Standard, maintains that the adoption of the gold standard resulted in a deliberate intensification of unemployment. To maintain the standard the Bank of England, he writes, puts obstacles to foreign lending by an embargo on foreign and dominion loans and has encouraged the United States to lend England money by raising the bill rate 1 per cent. higher in London than in New York.

From a strictly financial point of view, Mr. Keynes argues, there is no difference whether England produces exports which will provide £100,000,000 annually for investment abroad or whether goods of that value are not produced by workers left unemployed. He maintains, however, that it is impossible to prevent all foreign lending from England because nothing can prevent individual Englishmen buying American or other foreign securities.

It is here that keeping London rates above New York rates comes in. It attracts New York money. The London policy does not differ in essentials, says Mr. Keynes, from the French policy which has been so much criticized in supporting exchange with the aid of loans from J. P. Morgan & Co. But the Bank of England, Mr. Keynes admits, does not want to turn England into a borrowing country and dislikes its own embargo policy, so it is trying to use the present period as a financial breathing spell in which to make what is euphemistically known as "fundamental adjustments."

It is deliberately restricting credit at home, Mr. Keynes contends. It withdraws from employers the financial means to employ labor at the existing level of prices and wages. Thus it will intensify unemployment until the workers are willing to accept a necessary reduction in money wages under the pressure of hard facts. This, he writes, is the inevitable policy forced on the bank as a result of trying to peg sterling at gold value before it possesses it, measured in purchasing power over British labor; but he feels that the Governor of the bank is shrinking from it and is applying it only half heartedly.

"He is swimming," declares Mr. Keynes, "between the devil and the deep sea with his boat burnt and has no other course open to him. We are depending for reduction of wages on the pressure of unemployment, strikes and lockouts and in order to make sure of this result we are deliberately intensifying unemployment."

FRENCH REVIVED VERDUN CRY

"They Shall Not Pass," Was Watchword in Repulse to Moors.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 23.—"They shall not pass," was the watchword of the gallant defenders of Ain Aicha and Ain Matour.

True to their word, the enemy was kept from passing. The stubborn resistance of the heroic outposts and the rapid march of the rescuing column created general movements towards the north in this region and also caused a tremendous impression upon the inhabitants south of the Ouercha River.

The Riffians and dissidents are attempting to reform new lines running from the Djebel Aghil Hills to the summits north of Taounat and thence into the Senhadja country—about ten kilometers north of the Ain Aicha—and Ain Matour line.

There they are digging in in order to prevent the French from marching up the long valley of the Sra River, which extends fifty kilometers north Ain Aicha into the heart of the Riff country.

Further, it is reported, that the allegiance of some tribes to Abd-el-Krim has been so shaken that he has ordered hostages taken in order to insure loyalty of the others. One tribe offered armed resistance to carrying out these orders and killed ten regulars.

The French artillery is queen today of the operations in the various parts of the front, and never in the course of the war has it proceeded with such volume.

In three short days the situation has grown so much better that the tribes which revolted and went over to the enemy when facing his attacks, are now likely to revolt against Abd-el-Krim and become loyal subjects of the Sultan once more.

Currents of opinion move fast among the Moors, and what the situation may be at the end of next week there is no telling.

If there is a landslide due to the French hammering there it will be no surprise, but the Riffian regulars, at least, are likely to fight till the last ditch.

FRANCE TO RECORD VISITORS

Ministers of Interior Will Establish Elaborate System.

PARIS, July 23 (AP).—The Petit Parisien says that Minister of Interior Schrameck is about to take measures to institute a system whereby records would be kept of all foreigners in France. A close watch would be kept on their doings and undesirables would be expelled.

The Minister declared that at the present time there are 3,000,000 foreigners in France, as compared with 1,700,000 before the war. While he was satisfied that the majority of them were respectable, he was convinced there must be a number of criminals and political agitators who should be eliminated.

Consequently, M. Schrameck said, he would ask Parliament to authorize the creation of a special section of police, numbering 100 inspectors, to deal exclusively with foreigners. The system would cost only 1,500,000 francs yearly, while the new tax on foreigners would bring 150,000,000 francs into the Treasury annually.

REICHSTAG BACKS SECURITY STAND

Approves the Government's Entire Foreign Policy by 235 Votes to 158.

VICTORY FOR STRESEMANN

Chancellor Luther Promises Utmost Will Be Done to Effect Final Peace in Europe.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, July 23.—The Luther Cabinet, which in this case means Foreign Minister Stresemann, won its expected majority in the Reichstag tonight, the Deputies approving the security compact note by a vote of 235 to 158.

The Chancellor's hope that the Socialists would support the Government turned out to be sterile. In a last-minute declaration the chief of the opposition party recorded its approval of the note, but its undying hostility toward a Cabinet containing Stresemann and four Nationalist Ministers besides.

The rest of the minority was composed of Communists, Monarchists and the superreactionary Vpelkische. Thirteen members abstained from voting and more than twoscore were absent from the sitting, probably on account of the heat.

The motion upon which the vote of confidence was based read simply: "The Reichstag approves the Federal Government's policy."

Dr. Luther brought the dull debate to an end, filling up the benches which had been almost wholly emptied by long-winded oratory of the party sneakers.

At the close of the Chancellor's speech the Communists broke into ironic shouts of "Very true!" by which they intimated that the speech was truthful because it said nothing. The sarcasm was not without ground. The Chancellor certainly said very little, for the simple reason that knowing his majority to be assured he did not really have to say anything at all.

His utterances formed a briefer reiteration of Dr. Stresemann's of yesterday, but at one point he went beyond his Foreign Minister's declarations when, in discussing Germany's disarmament, he observed:

"No doubts have arisen that a definite settlement of the general question now under discussion is possible only after all the questions connected with the disarmament problem and the evacuation of the Northern Rhineland zone are adjusted."

"The so-called investigation protocol also does not fit in with the spirit of the new agreements now being sought." Thereby the Chancellor clearly indicated the Reich's refusal to negotiate a security compact which would leave its armed forces subject to supervision by the League of Nations.

Says Country Wants Accord.

Dr. Luther emphasized the broad parliamentary majority standing behind the German note to France, which he said meant that the overwhelming bulk of the German people supported the Government's efforts at achieving an international understanding. He went on:

"What we are after is through deliberate prosecution of the security idea to create a lasting basis for European peace. Only real peace can bring economic rehabilitation and, I hope, a new economic boom. The German Government is unitedly convinced of the importance of this high aim and is resolved to bend all its strength to its achievement. There must be, however, mutual esteem and equal rights on both sides and the great new conceptions which underlie the League of Nations, such as a people's right to self-determination, must not be diminished by the new agreements."

Apparently this last was a reference to the ultimate union of Austria and the Reich, but it is possible the Chancellor meant only ultimate restoration of the Sarre Valley to Germany.

The Reich, he insisted, must have not only formal equality within the League of Nations but must be placed on a real footing of equality, which implies taking its peculiar position into consideration.

Re-emphasizing Germany's unwillingness to be governed by Article XVI of the Covenant, he averred:

"It is a wholly untenable situation that while Germany is reduced through disarmament to a defenseless condition, other nations continue arming to a point where the universal disarmament proclaimed by the Versailles Treaty becomes a dead letter. In face of this state of affairs, Germany must concern herself so that at least she has judical protection against her territory being turned into a field of operations for those military disputes which emerge out of a universal armaments race despite, or perhaps because of, the League of Nations."

Winding up on a softer pedal, Dr. Luther assured the Reichstag that his Government would leave nothing undone to bring about an era of permanent peace.

Reventlow Assails the Compact.

Speeches by Democratic and other Deputies preceding the Chancellor were merely reaffirmations of the various parties' acceptance of the security compact policy. Only Count Reventlow, the Voelkisch firecater, denounced the compact as an alliance with the western powers against Russia for the salvation of the British Empire.

Thereby the ultra-reactionaries registered complete accord with the ultra-radical Communists, whose thesis is identical. Incidentally both factions brought in separate motions of censure against Dr. Stresemann, which, of course, were defeated overwhelmingly.

BRITAIN GETS DRAFT OF REPLY TO BERLIN

French Foreign Minister Submits It to London and Receives Belgian Envoy.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 23.—Foreign Minister Briand has submitted to London his first draft of his reply to Dr. Stresemann's note and today he received the Belgian Ambassador.

For the present complete secrecy is being maintained about the nature of the views being exchanged, but it is understood that M. Briand still adheres to his first impression, that despite German reservations on Article 16 of the League Covenant and the suggestion that the signature of the compact will involve modification of the status of Rhineland occupation, the note provides an opportunity for continued negotiations.

The point on which M. Briand is likely to prove firmest is that there must be no modification of Articles 42 and 44 of the Treaty of Versailles. He regards these articles as the surest guarantee France has and practically the only advantage to France which is left, or is likely to be left after the compact is in force, as a prize of victory.

Dr. Stresemann's speech yesterday in the Reichstag debate did not do much to alleviate the mistrust with which the note has been received by the press. It is admitted that he is talking for the Nationalists, just as even M. Herriot had sometimes to talk in the Chamber here for Nationalist consumption. On the day when evacuation of the Ruhr is almost complete, his reference to the Dawes plan payments being possible only if the policy of sanctions is entirely discarded, has, however, to French minds a note which is not altogether agreeable.

But the interest of Paris now is more closely centred in the attitude of London than in that of Germany. It is felt that, despite what Mr. Chamberlain may try to accomplish, English sentiment is so definitely set toward realization of the compact by compromise that M. Briand's chance of preventing its substitution for treaty provisions are all but of the smallest.

REICH IN COMMERCE BODY.

International Chamber Admits Germans to Membership.

BERLIN, July 23 (AP).—Germany's application for admission to the International Chamber of Commerce has been accepted. Financial newspapers regard Germany's joining this organization as a move of great importance. The Börsen Courier suggests that the execution of the Dawes plan and settlement of the interallied debt problem may be seriously influenced by this move.

Germany will be represented by these organizations: The Associated Chambers of Commerce of Germany, the Central League of German Banks, the Retailers' League, the Federation of German Industrialists and the Central Union of Wholesalers.

The nomination of Germany's list of individual members of committees may not be completed before November or December.

VIENNA, July 23.—The Bucharest newspaper Vittorum reports that the Little Entente States have proposed to organize a joint general staff in the event of war.

The proposal will form the subject of a conference of the Little Entente military leaders at Bucharest in the near future.

The paper adds that the question of a common uniform for all of the Little Entente armies has also been considered.

ONE AMERICAN SLAIN ANOTHER KIDNAPPED

Palmer Went to China in 1912.

Special to The New York Times.

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., July 23.—Morgan Palmer was born in Plattsburg on Dec. 30, 1887. After his graduation from Plattsburg High School he entered Harvard, where he received his A. B. in 1910. The following year he taught in Lenox, Mass.

In 1912 Mr. Palmer accepted a position as teacher in the Chihli Normal College, Paoting-fu, China, and a few months later he joined a party of nine foreigners who rescued from bandits thirty-three missionaries and their families, mostly women and children. They went up the Yellow River and the trip lasted seven weeks.

Three months before the expiration of his two-year contract with the college, Mr. Palmer was released, upon the request of the Chinese Government, to become assistant to the head of the Salt Administration, a position which he held for ten years.

For part of the World War period he was loaned by the Chinese Government to the United States, and became an attaché at the Legation. He accompanied General Graves to Siberia to make a special inquiry as to whether the Bolsheviks were being supplied with German rifles and ammunition.

At the close of the war he returned to his duties with the Chinese Salt Administration.

Red Cross Head in China.

During the Chinese famine of 1921 Mr. Palmer served as head of the Red Cross work in that country, being loaned by the Government for that purpose. He was made a Major in the Army Reserve Corps to give him authority whenever it might be needed in the performance of relief work.

In recognition for his valuable services, the Order of the Peaceful Tiger was bestowed upon him by the Chinese Government, which also awarded him other titles and distinctions.

In 1923 he returned to the United States with Minister Charles R. Crane, making the trip by way of Siberia. He went direct to Washington and reported to the President on affairs in China and Siberia.

Upon his return to China in 1923 he was accompanied by his mother and recently he became interested in the Manchurian Development Company. Early last Spring he assumed the management of the company's 25,000-acre ranch, which position he held at the time of his death.

Mr. Palmer was the son of the late Colonel Franklin Palmer, a veteran of the Civil War, and Theodora Morgan Palmer.

He is survived by one brother, Franklin Palmer, engaged in the sale of Chinese art in Boston, and two aunts Mrs. W. J. McCaffrey of Plattsburg, and Sister Louise Morgan of the Episcopal Sisterhood, stationed in Albany.

Career of Dr. H. J. Howard.

Special to The New York Times.

CHURCHVILLE, N. Y., July 23.—Dr. Harvey J. Howard, held by Chinese bandits, was born here forty-five years ago on the Howard homestead farm three miles east of the village. He is the son of the late Charles Howard and Mrs. Howard.

He graduated from the Churchville public school and from the local high school, after which he entered the University of Michigan for the medical course, specializing in the treatment of eye troubles. He left Ann Arbor to do research work on the east side of New York. He returned to Churchville for a year thirteen years ago.

Dr. Howard also took post-graduate work at the University of Pennsylvania and Harvard.

His father died eight years ago. His mother is in Los Angeles with a son, Horace Howard.

Dr. Howard has two brothers, Horace in Los Angeles and George, an attorney, in New York City. He also has two sisters.

By The Associated Press.

Dr. Howard has been Chief of the Department of Ophthalmology at Peking Union Medical College, established by the Rockefeller Foundation, since 1918. Prior to that he was research student and assistant in the Harvard Medical School. From 1911 to 1913 he was head of the department of eye, ear and throat diseases in the University Medical College in Canton, China.

A cablegram received by the Rockefeller Foundation today said that Dr. Roger S. Greene, General Director of the China Medical Board, has left Peking for Harbin.

Dr. Howard's son James is 12 years old. Mrs. Howard is in Peking.

Harold Baldwin, who was visiting Mr. Palmer and escaped with Mrs. Baldwin and their child, is 34 years old and comes from Derby, Conn.

His brother-in-law, C. K. Gish of this city, said last night that Baldwin had formerly been associated with the Standard Oil Company but had left it to enter the importing and exporting business. He had been in China for ten years.

Mr. Baldwin had gone with his wife and child to the Palmer ranch to assist Mr. Palmer in its development.

Charles R. Crane, former Minister to China, with whom Morgan Palmer was associated in Chinese flood relief work in 1920, last night deplored the slaying.

"By the death of Morgan Palmer," he said, "the Chinese have lost one of their best and wisest friends and the American community in China one of its foremost members."

HONGKONG, July 23.—The Canton Government has confiscated the Kungyee Hospital and Medical School, the largest Chinese-controlled institution of the kind in China. The property is worth $500,000 and the hospital and school were built by and are supported by public subscription.

The confiscation has caused indignation among the Chinese and is regarded by some as the first act of the new Government's alleged Soviet policy. Some say that similar action will next be extended to the churches.

PEKING, July 23 (AP).—The vernacular newspapers report that General Feng Yu-hsiang, the "Christian General," has communicated to the Government his opposition to the proposed tariff conference.

He is of the opinion that China should have complete tariff autonomy, declaring that it is against the principles of equality of nations for other nations to fix China's tariff.

SHIPS CRASH IN FOG 16 MILES OFF PORT

Schooner Sally Wren Badly Rammed by the Steamer Edward S. Luckenbach.

LUMBER KEEPS CRAFT UP

Crew of the Sailing Ship Saved and Vessel Is Towed In—Larger One Little Damaged.

The three-masted schooner Sally Wren of Savannah was rammed in a thick fog early yesterday morning sixteen miles southeast of Ambrose Lightship by the steamship Edward S. Luckenbach and was towed into port yesterday afternoon by theCoast Guard Cutter Seneca, which went to the rescue. The schooner was waterlogged but her large cargo of lumber helped to keep her afloat.

The Sally Wren later was anchored a mile off shore on the Bay Ridge Flats, opposite Sixty-sixth Street, Brooklyn, Captain W. H. Williams and his crew of seven were taken off their ship by a tugboat. They were greatly fatigued by their extraordinary efforts to keep the schooner afloat after the collision. The schooner was badly damaged below the water line. The steamship Edward S. Luckenbach reported that she was only slightly damaged above the water line. No one was injured in the collision.

The Edward S. Luckenbach sent out S O S calls immediately after the collision. The first message explained that the sailing vessel had been badly damaged and appeared to be sinking rapidly. Another message expressed the belief that she had gone down with her crew.

Captain W. E. V. Jacobs, in command of the United States Coast Guard in the New York district, ordered the cutter Seneca, which was near the scene of the collision, to go to the schooner's aid.

The Luckenbach, a vessel of 8,800 tons, carries a crew of fifty-two officers and men. She is commanded by Captain Bee. She had sailed from New York City Wednesday night for Los Angeles and San Francisco, and was in collision shortly after midnight. Later she continued her voyage.

The Sally Wren is a ship of 715 tons. She is owned by the Georgia Shipbuilding Company of Savannah, Ga., and was on her way from Georgetown, S. C., to New York.

SAYS EARLY WORK CUTS LIFE

Maccabees Director Figures a Loss of Eight Years.

WASHINGTON, July 23 (AP).—The assertion that industrial workers who begin work before the age of 20 have their lives cut short an average of eight years, was made before the Maccabees' Convention here today by J. C. Hanchett, medical director of the order.

Expectation of life of such workers, he said, is forty-two years, as compared with fifty years for those not engaged in industrial work. Accident death rate among industrial workers was placed at two and a half times that of non-industrial workers.

JERSEY WOODLANDS GROW.

Forestation of Idle Farm Areas Adds 625 Acres.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., July 23.—State Forester Charles P. Wilber announced today that New Jersey's timber supply would be augmented by at least 625 acres as a result of the distribution during the past Spring of more than 750,000 forest trees for planting on idle farm lands.

For some time the Forestry Service has been urging the planting of trees on waste lands and has furnished seedlings of desirable species at cost.

Objects to Ending Packer Decree.

WASHINGTON, July 23 (AP).—Objection was filed by the Department of Justice today against the action of the District of Columbia Supreme Court in relieving the Armour, Swift and Morris group of packers from trusteeship imposed by the packers consent decree. The consent decree, which was designed to separate the packers from unrelated lines of business, has been suspended by court order and the Government has appealed. Justice Bailey, however, has discharged the trustees and ordered the return by them of stocks, bonds and other holdings to the packers.

NON-STOP AUTO HERE FROM CALIFORNIA

Wade and Wells Made 3,965-Mile Cross Continent Trip in 165 Hours 50 Minutes.

BOTH MUD-CAKED BUT FIT

Traffic Officer Nearly Upset Program, but Wade Took Summons as Car Was in Motion.

A crowd of several thousand persons at the headquarters of the Metropolitan Automobile Association, 1,775 Broadway, yesterday greeted Lieutenant Leigh Wade, round-the-world flier, and his companion, Linton Wells, at the finish of their non-stop automobile tour from Los Angeles to New York.

Escorted by a platoon of motorcycle police, the mud encrusted car, a Packard eight, rolled up to headquarters just off Columbus Circle at 1:55 o'clock, after 3,965 miles of continuous traveling, without once stopping for oil, gas or water or engine adjustment. The distance from Los Angeles here was covered in 165 hours and 50 minutes.

During the entire trip Wade slept eighteen hours and Wells sixteen in the back of the car. Both wore a week's growth of beard, and the blood was running from a deep sunburn on Wade's left arm, caused by the hot Kansas sun. The car was caked with Missouri mud, for they ran into a cloudburst just east of Kansas City and crawled through mud as slippery as a banana peel, as Wade expressed it.

But it was not the Missouri cloudburst nor the sands of the desert that threatened to stop the wheels. It remained for a traffic officer in Irvington-on-Hudson, thirty miles from their destination, to almost upset the non-stop journey. As the transcontinental car with its escort of banner-draped machines and State troopers on motorcycles proceeded down Irvington's Broadway, a traffic policeman, who had not learned of the unique trip, set the "stop" signal. Lieutenant Wade, who was at the wheel, kept right on moving.

He slowed down to explain to the traffic officer who walked beside the car. Finally, without stopping the machine, Wade gave over the wheel to Wells and hopped from the car to receive a summons for violating a traffic ordinance. Wells continued on to New York, Wade overtaking him later in another machine.

At headquarters of the association the two men had their first square meals since leaving Los Angeles. They subsisted mainly on a fruit and liquid diet. Wade said he was fat when he left Los Angeles, but had grown thin on the trip, and recommended his diet for all those who wished to lose their surplus avoirdupois in a week's time.

Wade described the trip as a good vacation stunt, much harder than flying, even harder than the world-circling flight, requiring much more physical and mechanical endurance. The reverse, he said, had never been used on the entire trip. The Metropolitan Automobile Association and the affiliated clubs helped them greatly. In the cities through which they passed the clubs furnished them gas, oil and water while in motion and cleared the way through the populated districts.

Wade described how they adjusted wheel chains in motion along the muddy roads of Missouri, and of removing them when they struck a hard gravel road; also of removing and putting on a wheel by means of a rolling jack following their only puncture on the trip. As the result of their experiences Wade and Wells stressed the need of a national code of automobile signals and the uniform marking of the motor roads from coast to coast. Last night Wade and Wells broadcast their experiences over the radio through Station WOR.

HINES WILL REPORT TODAY.

He Will Inform League of Results of Rhine and Danube Inquiries.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, July 23.—At the eighth session of the Advisory Technical Committee for Communications and Transit of the League of Nations which meets here tomorrow the report of Walker D. Hines on the Danube and Rhine navigation will be the most important item on the agenda.

Mr. Hines, who was asked by the League to study conditions of traffic on these two important European rivers and advise on means of improving it, has just returned from a trip down the Danube from Vienna to the Black Sea. Previously he studied the Rhine traffic situation.

The committee will also study the report of the Calendar Inquiry Committee which met here last February to hear representatives of various religious bodies.

The draft convention on road traffic, which was drawn at Milan last March by a special committee and which is intended to serve as a basis of discussion for an international conference to be convened by the French Government, will be also examined. This draft is a revision of the convention of 1909—the first in automobile history—which established international rules for road traffic and created international circulation certificates.

Another interesting point on the agenda is the report of a subcommittee on telegraphic questions which met at Geneva in April to examine the situation of wireless communications in view of the convocation of an international conference in Paris and the approaching Washington conference for a revision of the convention of 1912.

MacMILLAN IN ROUGH SEAS.

Reports Eight of Bowdoin's Crew Were Laid Low, but Recover.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—The National Geographic Society today received the following message from the Bowdoin of the MacMillan Arctic expedition dated July 21:

"Yesterday the Bowdoin was making better than ten knots under smiling skies, and digging her nose into rough seas which laid low eight men out of eleven and made succotash of the contents of our refrigerator. Not a man missed his trick at the wheel or on deck, but the consumption of food dropped to a minimum.

"Today we are swinging around on a heavy roll with a warm sun and slightly overcast skies. Best six hours of the trip was fifty-four miles made yesterday forenoon under engines and sail but in the afternoon with engines shut off, for three hours we made fifty-one miles. Our position at four this afternoon is 63 N. and 57.30 W. west of Gothaab but are headed direct for Disko Island where the Peary awaits us. All the men have recovered and find the sunny deck a comfortable lounging place. MacMillan.

The message was received by George H. Finney, operator of radio station 1-CKP at South Manchester, Conn. The expedition was not heard from yesterday.

Predicts Violent Quake in Alaska.

FAENZA, Italy, July 23 (AP).—Raphael Bendandi, the earthquake prophet, who has foretold a number of seismic disturbances in the last two years, predicts violent earthquakes in the region of Alaska July 25 or 26. He also foresees earth shocks in Japan on July 30.

WOMAN BOARDS A TUG TO WIN RACE WITH SHIP

Smaller Craft Beats Out the Albert Ballin in 12 Blocks—Belgenland Sails.

Miss Amanda W. Betcher of St. George, S. I., won a race yesterday with the Hamburg-American liner Albert Ballin. She arrived at the pier just a half minute too late to catch the ship, boarded a tugboat and caught the steamer down the river. The liner sailed at 10 o'clock from pier 86, at the foot of West Forty-sixth Street.

The tugboat raced the liner as far as a point opposite West Thirty-fourth Street before overtaking it. Miss Betcher is going on a three-months visit to relatives in Germany.

Among the passengers on the Albert Ballin was the Rev. Dr. Samuel Trexler, President of the Lutheran Synod of New York and New England, and a close personal friend, Dr. Edmund Devol of 24 East Forty-eighth Street. They will travel together through Germany, Austria, Czechoslovakia, Switzerland and France, returning in September. Dr. Trexler while abroad will confer with Lutheran Church leaders in Central Europe.

Prince Antoine Bibesco, Rumanian Minister to the United States, sailed on the Red Star liner Belgenland on his way to Bucharest to confer with his Government on the Rumanian debt to the United States. He expressed the hope that a satisfactory arrangement would be made for the settlement of the debts, which is approximately $32,000,000. He said:

"I heard that my Government contemplates sending a mission to the United States in order to find a basis for the settlement of our debt. I hope that is correct. Recently certain outstanding difficulties between the Rumanian Government and the Standard Oil Company and the International Harvester Company were adjusted satisfactorily.

"The crops in Rumania this season are excellent, but our industrial recovery is very slow. However, my country is gradually recovering from the adverse post-war conditions."

Also sailing on the Belgenland was Baron de Madarassy-Beck, head of the General Credit Bank of Budapest, Hungary, who has been in New York negotiating for loans.

The Belgenland sailed for Plymouth, Cherbourg and Antwerp with 320 passengers, including 122 in the first class.

DR. GYE IS CHALLENGED ON CANCER GERM DATA

His Filters Are Criticized and It Is Said He Failed to Produce Serious Forms of Disease.

LONDON, July 23 (AP).—The correspondent of The Westminster Gazette at Bath says that Dr. William E. Gye, member of the British Institute of Medical Research, and Dr. J. E. Barnard of King's College, London, had to run the gauntlet of some criticism after they outlined their cancer discoveries to the British Medical Association yesterday.

They had to admit they had not yet succeeded in producing carcinoma, or more serious forms of cancer which develop on the breast and stomach.

This was regardede as an important point governing the possibility of eventual success in devising preventive means.

A good deal of criticism, according to the correspondent, was also directed at the efficiency of the filters developed by Dr. Gye and Dr. Barnard, it being pointed out that these porcelain candle filters were not as efficient as the experimenters and most of the medical men had assumed.

It was apparent, the paper says, that Dr. Gye was somewhat taken aback by this challenge and regarded it as a vital one.

TO LEAD IN ROOKIE DRIVE.

Mike Donaldson, War Hero, Will Try to Fill New York Company

Sergeant Mike Donaldson has volunteered again. Today he will lead the army's recruiting sergeants "over the top" in a final drive to complete the New York City company which is being recruited here for Texas service. Only thirteen more rookies are needed to bring the company to its full strength of 210 men.

Donaldson was in France with the old fighting Sixty-ninth of New York, winning the Congressional Medal of Honor and twenty other decorations. Single handed he captured Hill No. 208 on Oct. 14, 1918, wiping out a German machine gun nest and bringing back four wounded comrades to his lines.

KRESGE MUST AGAIN TONE DOWN CHARGES

Justice Levy Orders Removal of "Argumentative" Clauses in Suit Against Brokers.

DEFENSE ISSUES DENIAL

Hutton Counsel Replies to Complaint That Millionaire Had to Pay to Regain Kresge Shares.

By order of Supreme Court Justice Levy yesterday Sebastian S. Kresge, chain store millionaire, must file a new complaint in his suit to recover $706,299 from the Stock Exchange firm of W. E. Hutton & Co. on the ground that he was compelled, "under duress," to pay the brokers a claim in order to get back more than $1,500,000 in shares of Kresge stock deposited with them at their request in December, 1923.

The new complaint ordered will be the third filed in the suit by Max D. Steuer, attorney for Mr. Kresge. The first was objected to by W. F. S. Hart, counsel for Hutton & Co., and was amended. The second has now been ordered amended so as to remove several paragraphs defined as "argumentative," or as injurious to the defendant. In his decision Justice Levy said:

"I am not impressed that this is an artistic pleading."

Kresge alleged he was induced to lend W. E. Hutton & Co. $681,000 in stock to prevent the Stock Exchange form of J. M. Byrne & Co., which has since failed, from going bankrupt. This, with interests and costs, is what he is suing for.

"Mr. Kresge told us to lend money to Byrne & Co." said Mr. Hart yesterday, "and he admits he himself loaned them $350,000. He has loaned Byrne & Co. over $1,000,000, of which amount Hutton & Co. loaned them $650,000 on his instructions."

Justice Levy struck out a paragraph alleging that the defendants insisted upon a check from Mr. Kresge for the claim made against him before they would return his stock. He struck out also, as argumentative, a paragraph stating that the brokers borrowed money on the Kresge stock largely in excess of the loan value in making advances of $500,000 and $150,000 to Byrne & Co., and that such action was contrary to the Stock Exchange rules. This paragraph alleged also that the brokers used money obtained from the Kresge stock as collateral in connection with their business.

William E. Hutton, senior member of Hutton & Co., has denied all charges contained in Mr. Kresge's complaint, although he had admitted that at one time Mr. Kresge had a debit balance with Hutton & Co. amounting to $14,000,000. When this was learned by the Stock Exchange authorities by means of a questionnaire, he said, his firm was advised to have the account reduced for the protection of other customers, although Mr. Hutton insisted his firm could handle it.

Mr. Hutton declared the only interest his firm had in J. M. Byrne & Co. was that of an agent for Mr. Kresge.

Mr. Kresge's second wife recently sued him for $7,000,000 which she said he had promised her in lieu of dower rights in an ante-nuptial agreement. She later amended that complaint so that she now demands only 2,500 shares of Kresge stock named in the agreement, thus reducing her claim to about $1,000,000. The suit is pending.

MRS. LARKIN GETS DIVORCE.

Daughter of Paul D. Cravath Receives Decree in Paris Court.

PARIS, July 23 (AP).—A divorce has been granted to Mrs. Vera Huntington Cravath Larkin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul D. Cravath, New York lawyer, against James Satterthwaite Larkin, by the civil tribunal of the Seine, upon the wife's application.

Mr. and Mrs. Larkin were married on Aug. 29, 1917, in St. John's Church, Lattington, L. I. The wedding was of much interest socially. Mrs. Larkin, the only daughter of Paul D. Cravath, was a member of the Junior League, and before her introduction to society in 1914 had been prominent among young women on the north shore interested in outdoor sports, particularly in exhibiting at horse shows. Many of Miss Cravath's horses won prizes.

At the time of his marriage, Mr. Larkin, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Adrian H. Larkin, was a First Lieutenant of the First Field Artillery, with which he served on the Mexican border. Mr. Larkin is a member of the Coffee and Sugar Exchanges, and of the Racquet and Tennis, Knickerbocker, Piping Rock and Seawanhaka Corinthian Yacht Clubs.

By T. R. YBARRA.

means that both sides are marching steadily and deliberately to battle."

Industrial Alliance Plan.

In connection with the threatened strike England is deeply interested in the constitution of a new industrial alliance embracing 3,000,000 British workers in the mining, railroad, transport, engineering and shipbuilding industries. The objects of this alliance are explained as follows:

"To create by means of an alliance among the specified organizations the means of mutual support, to assist any of the allied organizations in defending hours of labor, wage standards, in securing advancement of the standards of living or to take action to secure acceptance of and defend any principle of an industrial character which may be deemed vital by the allied organizations."

Speculation is rife here as to whether this means that the members of the above mentioned industrial alliance affiliated with the miners will support the latter if they strike next week.

Workers in All Industries Restless.

LONDON, July 23 (AP).—Tonight's decision on the part of the Miners' Federation to instruct the miners to quit work on July 31 is considered a counter to the owners' persistent refusal to withdraw their notices of the termination of the present agreement governing work in coal mines as a necessary preliminary to a conference to discuss a new agreement.

The workers, not only in the mines, but on the railways and in other great industries, are all seething at what they regard as an organized attempt on the part of employers generally to reduce wages. It is a common cry in all the great industries that until the costs of production are reduced British industry cannot compete successfully in foreign markets, and in the minds of the workers reducing the cost of production means nothing but a reduction of wages.

The Ministry of Labor has been engaged for the last week in trying to arrange a wages dispute in the Yorkshire and Lancashire textile industry, but all efforts to bring the disputants together have failed, and it was stated tonight that 135,000 of these workers would cease work tomorrow.

While there is no doubt the miners possess the strong support of the workers in other industries, they have within the last few days lost considerable support, so far as the general public is concerned, by their refusal to enter into a conference with the mine owners unless the latter unconditionally abandoned their proposals for a new agreement. The owners had agreed to disregard these proposals for the immediate purposes of a conference, and the public view is that the miners are risking a fight over the mere question of the interpretation of the word "withdraw."

The Government itself is most anxious to avoid such a grave labor fight as would be certain to arise from the stoppage of mining. Since its reversion to the gold standard it has been persistently assailed by a powerful section of the press, which blames its precipitancy in this matter and argues that the rise of 10 per cent. in the value of the pound prevents foreign markets from buying British goods, and so has partly destroyed British export trade.

The Government commands a powerful majority in Parliament, but cannot altogether afford to ignore these attacks, which are aimed at showing that the Ministers themselves are largely responsible for unemployment.

Sees no Chance of Alliance Here.

WASHINGTON, July 23 (AP).—The American Federation of Labor will watch with keenest interest the progress of the formation in Great Britain of a great inter-union labor alliance for centralization of power, but believes that there is no prospect of formation of such an alliance in this country.

William Green, President of the Federation, declared today that American labor had never adopted the policy of sympathetic striking such as apparently might be needed to carry out the purposes of the British organization. American trade unions, he said, make their own contracts and had held that they had not the right to violate them even to aid, by sympathetic strike, other trades whose contracts had been violated.

Mr. Green recalled that the British scheme was in line with a similar one of a few years ago when the transport workers, miners and railwaymen entered into a triple alliance. The first test of this alliance, he said, failed during the British coal strike, when allegations were made that the railwaymen declined to participate in the strike.

The Touchstone of the Good Mortgage

The inexperienced mortgage investor has no means of picking out the best mortgages except by requiring them to be GUARANTEED.

Even this, of itself, does not make a mortgage a sound investment unless the guarantor is able to make good.

The Bond and Mortgage Guarantee Company has the largest guarantee fund of the kind in the country and has a reputation that should make its guaranteed mortgages, as offered for sale by the Title Guarantee and Trust Company, the first choice of every investor.

When making a mortgage investment be sure that it is GUARANTEED by a company chartered for that purpose, which has large resources and knows from long experience in the business what it means to guarantee a mortgage. In the past 33 years the Bond and Mortgage Guarantee Company has GUARANTEED over a Billion Dollars of mortgages without loss to any investor.

CHICAGO DEDICATES NEW UNION STATION

10 YEARS IN CONSTRUCTION

Mayor Dever, Four Railroad Presidents and Business Leaders Are Present at Ceremonies.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 23.—Presidents of four railroads, bankers, city officials headed by Mayor Dever and business men representative of many fields attended the formal opening today at noon of the world's most modern and complete railroad terminal—the new $60,000,000 Chicago Union Station. More than 500 people witnessed the formal inspection of the great structure.

Samuel Rea, President of the Pennsylvania Railroad and of the Chicago Union Station Company, in an address declared the structure to be "one of the very largest in the world, and certainly the world's most modern and most complete large station in all respects."

President Hale Holden of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad, H. E. Byram, former President of and now a receiver for the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad, and Charles H. Markham, President of the Illinois Central Railroad, also were hosts of the occasion.

At a luncheon in the dining room of the station there were at the speakers' table Mayor Dever, Commissioner of Public Works A. A. Sprague and City Engineer Erickson, representing the city; Eugene S. Taylor, general manager, and Hugh E. Young, engineer of the Chicago Plan Commission; William R. Dawes, President of the Association of Commerce; E. R. Graham of the firm of Graham, Probst & White, architects, and John Griffith, builder of the station; several railroad officials and officials of the Union Station Company and Joseph d'Esposito, chief engineer.

"I congratulate the men who have had the vision and the courage to complete this great project," Mayor Dever said. "Every one who looks upon the buildings or who, in using them, enjoys their convenience, feels that they add beauty and permanent value to the City of Chicago."

"The Chicago station," said Mr. Rea, "is the finest and most economically designed among the great railway buildings of the world. It will accomplish two purposes—benefit Chicago and Illinois by facilitating travel and commerce and foster the progress of the railroads using it. This building, in a sense, serves as a monument to the relationship between the owners of railroad property and the people, as represented in their city government, because both the people and the roads benefit.

"As President of the Chicago Union Station Company, it is my privilege on this occasion, on behalf of myself and associates, to express the warmest appreciation and thanks for the splendid cooperation and help accorded us by the City of Chicago in bringing this project to successful completion."

Although the dedication took place today, the station has been in use six weeks, having been turned over to the patrons of the four roads as soon as it was usable. Now the new station, which covers three acres, is used by 50,000 persons daily.

General William S. Graves of the Sixth Area, and his aid, Lieutenant J. L. Whitelaw, and Senator Deneen were present today. There was also William A. Boatman, now 81 years old, and eleven years retired, who ran the first train into the old Union Station when that structure was opened.

CHICAGO, July 23 (AP).—The new Union Station, construction of which was started in 1915, has a facility area of 1,200,000 square feet. It now accommodates 300 trains daily, with space for future expansion.

It has a foundation for an office building superstructure of twenty-one floors, eight of which are now complete. Its space is five times that of the old station. Seventeen thousand tons of structural steel and upward of 200,000 cubic feet of limestone and granite are in its make-up. It rests upon a foundation of 449 cylindrical piers, from four to ten feet in diameter, reaching to a depth of more the sixty feet below the level of the Chicago River.

SIMONS WINS FIGHT FOR UNION MEMBERSHIP

Court of Appeals Holds Outlaw Strike Leader Could Be Expelled Only After Hearing.

David Simons, who was President of New York Local 25 of the Pressmen's Union when the local lost its charter in the Fall of 1923 because it called an outlaw strike against New York newspapers, has won, through a Court of Appeals decision, his suit for membership in the International Printing Pressmen's and Assistants' Union. Following his conduct of the outlaw strike membership in the international body was refused to Simons and he began a fight in the Supreme Court for reinstatement and was successful there. This decision was reversed by the Appellate Division, which gave a verdict in favor of Major George L. Berry, President of the international union, reversing the original tribunal. The Court of Appeals now sustains the decision of the court of first instance.

The opinion was written by Chief Judges Hiscock with Judges Pound, McLaughlin and Crane concurring. Judges Andrews and Lehman dissented. The prevailing opinion says:

"Plaintiff was a member in good standing of the defendant's union, an unincorporated association, and subject to expulsion only upon written charges, and after a hearing upon notice. No charges have been made against him, and no hearing has been given. None the less, the defendant's officers have notified the other members to refuse to work with him on the ground that he has ceased to be a member, and in so doing have made it impossible for him to find employment in his trade. The charge in brief is that he has been denied the privileges of membership though never legally expelled.

"A cause of action is here stated for equitable relief. So far as the complaint shows, there is no provision in the constitution or the by-laws whereby plaintiff has a remedy by appeal to any organ within the association. Equity will enjoin the denial to a member of the privileges of membership where the denial, if continued, will work irreparable injury.

"The judgment of the Appellant Division should be reversed and the order of the Special Term affirmed, with costs in the Appellate Division and in this court."

WHITNEY REPLY FILED IN FONTAINE SUIT

Move to Cite Perpetual Injunction Against Dancer Attacked by Her Counsel.

The answer in the suit against Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney by Eva Burrows Fontaine, dancer, for $1,000,000 for breach of promise of marriage was filed in the Supreme Court yesterday. It asserts that at the time the plaintiff contends Mr. Whitney agreed to marry her she was the wife of Sterling L. Adair and that an annulment she obtained of that marriage was fraudulent.

The answer also sets forth that in a similar suit tried in San Francisco the jury found that the defendant never promised to marry the plaintiff and was not the father of the child alleged to have been born to her and that the annulment of the Adair marriage was void. The findings of the jury were approved by the Court, which granted a perpetual injunction restraining the plaintiff from asserting at any future time that the defendant promised to marry her or was the father of her child, and "from further prosecuting the conspiracy to extort money from the defendant" on the claims asserted.

Mr. Whitney alleges that this judgment was a final adjudication of the claim and states that no appeal was ever taken.

Justice Churchill reserved decision on the application by counsel for Miss Fontaine to strike out the greater part of the answer on the ground that it is unnecessary and scandalous. John O'Brien, who argued the case, objected chiefly to attaching a certified copy of the records of the California case to the answer, stating that while they might be offered in evidence they should not be a part of the pleadings.

John W. Davis for Mr. Whitney said that the California record is a necessary part of the answer, not only to show that the same issues were decided by a Judge and jury there, but that an injunction had been granted restraining Miss Fontaine from prosecuting the claim again.

BRAISTED'S ESTATE VALUED AT $871,858

Report Shows Order to Beroizheimer to Turn Over Stock Worth $293,040.

ALL GOES TO THE WIDOW

Papers Include Ruling on Eagle Pencil Company Shares Held in Custody Under Agreement.

An appraisal filed yesterday of the estate of Charles Steward Braisted, an officer and stockholder of the Eagle Pencil Company, shows that stock worth $293,040, which was held by Philip Beroizheimer, now City Chamberlain, President of the Eagle Pencil Company, was directed to be delivered to the estate by an order of Surrogate Foley. The total estate was appraised at $871,858, all of which went to the widow, Dorcas Knox Braisted. Mr. Braisted died in 1921.

The report states that 240 shares of Eagle Pencil stock and 240 shares of the Hudson Lumber Company, a subsidiary, were allotted to Mr. Braisted and placed in the hands of trustees to be held under an agreement that the stock, amounting to 5 per cent. of the whole, could be sold only to other stockholders of the company if they desired to buy, and they offered to pay the par value of the stock or better. At the time of Mr. Braisted's death Philip Beroizheimer was in custody of the stock, and upon the demand of the estate for possession he contended that under the agreement he was entitled to retain custody. The Surrogate decided otherwise.

The value of the pencil company stock was $246,900, and the lumber company shares were worth $46,080. The report shows that the Eagle Pencil Company profited greatly during the war because of the embargo against pencils from Germany and other Central European countries, and that the company paid the following dividends: 1916, 50 per cent.; 1917, 150; 1918, 100; 1919, 10; 1920, 10, and 1921, 35.

BABY FARMER IN COLLAPSE.

Swoons During Hearing on Minor Charge—Leaves for Prison.

Before leaving yesterday for Auburn State Prison to serve from three and a half to seven years for child substitution, Mrs. Helene Auguste Geisen-Volk, former owner of a baby farm at 235 East Eighty-sixth Street was arraigned in Special Sessions on a charge of unlawfully boarding more than seven children in the place.

Assistant District Attorney Charles Henry had made a motion that the woman's bail of $1,000 be discharged and that she be released in her own recognicance, when the prisoner collapsed.

The unlawful boarding charge will be held in abeyance until her release from Auburn prison.

bootlegger, but a man who was "rapidly going to the dogs."

The lawyers asserted they would bring testimony to discredit the State's witnesses, particularly one woman witness.

They argued that Scott had never had the opportunity of properly defending himself because of lack of money and said funds were now in hand. They asked a stay of ninety, or sixty, or thirty days for further investigation.

But the Governor, while he listened patiently, refused to heed their plea. He made good the words of his secretary, George Sutton, in a letter to a Sandwich, Ont., woman, that "no eleventh-hour circumstances will stay the execution this time."

The Governor later issued this statement of reasons for his action:

"The appeal of Russell Scott for Executive clemency has carefully been considered by the Division of Pardons and Paroles and members of the division sitting with me in the hearing today.

"This case was tried by a jury, which fixed the penalty. The verdict of the jury was affirmed by the Supreme Court of the State. Two reprieves have heretofore been granted in this case.

"As is always the case, the dependents of a man convicted of crime are the real sufferers. Personally, I have the deepest sympathy for those who in this case must suffer.

"It is the opinion of the Division of Pardons and Paroles that nothing has been submitted which would justify the Executive interfering with the verdict of the jury, which was affirmed by the Court."

When informed of the decision, Scott refused to see newspaper men, but, turning to his guards in a dazed manner, said:

"Well, I guess it is all over. I was afraid it would be like that."

He gazed around helplessly at the walls of the death chamber the guards said. He looked longingly out of the barred windows. Then he added:

"They'll find out their mistake later."

Scott was uncommunicative all day long. Time after time he refused to see reporters. Early in the day he first sent out word that he was busy writing. He would not say what he was writing about and no one seemed to know, but the guards said he was busy at it. Once he apologized.

"I don't want to seem rude," he told the guards to tell those who would interview him, "but I have a lot to do and would like to spend my last hours alone."

He knew that his wife and the lawyers had gone to Springfield and the word came that the Governor would hear them; but he appeared to have a premonition that his last appeal would be rejected.

Scott Fights Microphone Scheme.

Late in the day one of the newspapers obtained permission from Sheriff Hoffman to install a microphone in the jail. The plan was to give Scott an opportunity to broadcast an appeal to his brother Robert to come or to send word and save him.

But Scott would not hear of it. He flew into a rage.

"Tell them I won't do it," he said. "Tell them I won't broadcast. I'm through with my vaudeville days. I was in vaudeville in Chicago long ago; I'm through with it now.

"If the Governor won't heed the last appeal of my wife and lawyers, broadcasting won't make any difference.

"If I can't spend my last few hours alone I'll raise hell."

The preparations for the installation of the microphone in the main corridor of the jail went on. But Scott stood by his ultimatum, and Sheriff Hoffman had given orders that it was up to Scott.

In his plea for a reprieve at Springfield, Mr. Kettels attacked the testimony of Elizabeth Davis, one of the State's chief witnesses against Scott, a young woman who was in the drug store when the alleged holdup followed by the killing took place. He produced photographs of a woman arrested under other names and sought to identify them as pictures of Miss Davis.

He said it could be shown the Scott brothers entered the store on the night of the Maurer murder for a "social purpose" and that Russell Scott "was in the basement at the time Maurer was killed."

Finally Mrs. Scott arose to plead with the Governor. She swayed unsteadily and tried several times to say something. At last she murmured:

"I—I—know that he is not guilty."

She looked down at the Governor. The Governor turned his eyes away. She struggled to continue, but tears ran down her cheeks and in a moment she had completely broken down. She was unable to proceed.

Lieut. Wade used Kelly Balloons

Famous 'round-the-world flier had to have dependable tires for non-stop run

WHEN Lieut. Leigh Wade, famous United States Navy flier, decided to attempt a feat never before successfully performed—namely, crossing the continent from Los Angeles to New York without once letting the wheels of his car stop turning—he realized that in large measure his success would depend upon his tires.

He could not afford to put any but the best on the wheels of his Packard, and after considering various makes of tires he selected Kelly Balloons.

The story of his successful trip is now history. Starting from Los Angeles on the morning of July 16th, Lieut. Wade and his companion, Linton Wells, rolled into New York six days later, having kept the motor running and the wheels of their automobile turning continuously during that time.

Kelly Balloons—the best tires Kelly ever built—had much to do with the successful accomplishment of this unprecedented feat.

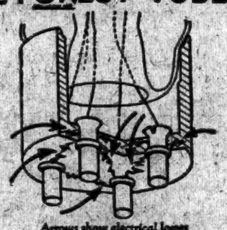
DE FOREST TUBES



Arrows show electrical leaks sealed by new De Forest bases.

LOW-LOSS ISOLANTITE BASE borrowed from the war by De Forest Exclusively

DURING the war, a more nearly perfect insulating material for airplane spark plugs was needed. The French discovered Isolantite, an artificial quartz with insulating properties from 8 to 50 times as great as ordinary compositions. De Forest has secured the exclusive right to use Isolantite for radio tube bases. This means added volume and quality of reproduction, because the full signal strength is delivered to the tube instead of ebbing away in part at the base.

Sold only by authorized De Forest dealers who display this sign.

Bantamweight Title Retained by Rosenberg—Yankees Win; Giants Break Even

ROSENBERG KEEPS TITLE; STOPS SHEA

Bantam Champion Knocks Out Challenger in 4th Round Before 16,000 at Velodrome.

CHICAGOAN DOWN 4 TIMES

Dropped Twice in Third and Floored Again in Fourth Before Taking Count.

ABE GOLDSTEIN BEATEN

Bushy Graham Gains Decision Over Former Titleholder—Phil Kaplan Victor.

Charley (Phil) Rosenberg, world's bantamweight champion, retained his title at the New York Velodrome last night when he knocked out Eddie Shea, Chicago challenger, after 37 seconds of the fourth round.

The crowd of 16,000 was brought to its feet when the whirlwind battle started and they were kept howling throughout the contest. The champion twice sent Shea to the floor in the third round, but the sturdy Westerner was up immediately on both occasions.

Shea weathered the round, but rushed into a stiff right to the jaw that dropped him for the count of nine at the start of the fourth. He was hardly on his feet again before another hard blow from the champion's right fist dropped him to the canvas, where he lay face down and unconscious of the great roar that greeted New York's own champion.

The bout was the main encounter of the show for the benefit of the Hunts Point Jewish Building Fund. The receipts were $63,213, paid by 13,260 spectators.

Twice in the third round Rosenberg floored the challenger with stiff rights to the jaw, but Shea didn't know when he had enough and continued to fight. He came up without taking a count and rushed back with both arms flying. But the end was in sight for Rosenberg and he lashed out right and left, landing oftener and with greater force than the other, and in the next round he finished it.

Shea came out with renewed hope of victory at the start of the fourth, but his bubble was soon burst. Rosenberg dented it with a stiff punch to the head that sent the Chicagoan down for the count of nine and he hardly was on his feet before another dream-maker landed on the button and he was through for the evening.

Is Carried to His Corner.

Shea landed on his side and rolled over on his face while the count of ten sounded from the timekeeper's chair. Even when the slow tolling of time was over he didn't show any interest in the proceedings, but lay there completely out. He had to be carried to his stool in the corner and it was several minutes before he learned that he wasn't in his own home town.

Long before he ever came to the crowd was milling about the ringside, proclaiming the prowess of Rosenberg, the New York boy, to the skies. But it is hardly probable that any one was happier over the finish to the bout than Rosenberg himself. He fought a cruel battle that gave him no time in which to think. He had to hit or be hit from the opening of the gong and it was hard for him to realise that it was all over. But not so hard as it was for Shea, who wasn't realising anything about that time.

As the last sound came from the timekeeper and Referee Patsy Haley raised his arm in token of victory, Rosenberg's countenance broke into a grin and he danced about the ring in all directions, hardly knowing which way to turn as the shouts from the crowd came echoing to his ears. New York's own had defended his honors valiantly.

Rosenberg was greeted with a great cheer as he climbed into his corner and the echo came back when Joe Humphreys introduced him. The clang of the bell was unable to quiet the tumult and the champion twice had to stand up and shake hands with himself in the traditional pugilistic manner before calm could be restored. Shea also received a long and loud ovation from the throng but the cheers turned to jeers as the weights of the two men were announced.

Because of the postponement of the bouts neither man was required to weigh in yesterday, having been tested on the scales Wednesday and found to be within the required limit. It was whispered about the ringside that Shea was five pounds over the bantamweight limit of 118 pounds when he entered the ring and it also was rumored that Rosenberg had threatened to protest in the event that he lost his title. But no protest was necessary.

Rosenberg made quick work of the rugged Westerner, but for a time it was doubtful whether he would even win. Both men started in with utter confidence in their hitting ability and from the very first ben the blows were struck so fast that it was hard to tell just which was getting the better of the argument.

Champion Asserts Himself.

Gloves flew through the air like an electric fan at high speed. First Rosenberg would back Shea against the ropes and with his head resting on the challenger's hairy chest the two would stand toe to toe and cut loose with both hands. Then the positions would be reversed with Rosenberg leaning against the ropes, but still the blows came, lightning fast, tearing and ripping into each other's face and body.

There was little to choose between the two at the end of the second round. Both had weathered the heavy going well and neither showed the slightest traces of exhaustion. But one thing was evident, no bout could last fifteen rounds at that pace.

In the third round Rosenberg began to find the road that leads to home. He exchanged punches with his still fighting opponent, and then, suddenly in the middle of a head-to-head engagement, Rosenberg reached out with his right and sent Shea tumbling to the mat. The Westerner was surprised, but hardly more so than Rosenberg.

Shea came up from the floor like a rubber ball and tore in again. The champion met his whirlwind attack with counter-attack and once more dropped the rugged little fellow to the floor. But the punch lacked the sting that puts strong men to sleep and again Shea came bouncing up, ready to give and to receive with the same abandon as before.

The crowd was in a frenzy. The tumult rose higher and higher and when the gong finally sounded for the end of the round it drowned out the tolling of the bell. At least it never reached the ears of Shea for he continued to pound away at Rosenberg after it clanged across the ring. Rosenberg also kept right on, but Patsy Haley stepped in between the fighters and pushed them to their corners. Then came the fourth and the end of the fight.

Mickey Garcia, a will-o'-the-wisp from Utica, also known as Bushy Graham, outfought Abe Goldstein, former holder of the world's bantamweight title, in the eight-round semi-final, dancing around the ex-champion and landing punches whenever he felt so inclined. He floored Goldstein in the first round but after that was content to earn the decision.

The defeat of Goldstein by Garcia gave some indication of the type of bantamweight who used to hold sway, but there is a new and more capable champion on the throne now. Garcia danced rings around the former titleholder, hitting him where and when he pleased.

K. O. Phil Kaplan of Harlem gained the decision over Sergeant Sammy Baker of Mitchel Field, after the soldier had made a courageous comeback. In the second eight-round bout, and Johnny Drew of Worcester fought a draw with Mike Dundee of Rock Island, Ill., in the other. Ruby Goldstein of the Ghetto outpointed Joe Malone of the Bronx in the six-round bout.

STORY OF THE BATTLE TOLD ROUND BY ROUND

Detailed Description Shows How Rosenberg Battered Down Shea at Velodrome.

The detailed description of the world's bantamweight championship fight between Charlie (Phil) Rosenberg and Eddie Shea at the New York Veelodrome last night, told round by round, follows:

First Round.

They opened up with a whirling attack and slugged toe to toe. Rosenberg missed with his left. They exchanged short jabs to face and clinched. Shea landed left and right to shoulders and a hard left to head. Shea landed a right to Rosenberg's side and they clinched. Shea landed two light lefts to Rosey's head and Rosenberg came back with a left to head. Shea sent a hard right to face and Rosenberg missed with a left.

Second Round.

Shea landed left and right to face and missed a right. Rosenberg landed two hard body blows and they stood toe to toe and slugged. Rosenberg drove Shea against the ropes and again they exchanged punches. Rosenberg again drove Shea to ropes and landed left and rights to body. Shea landed two hard punches to head. Again they stood toe to toe and exchanged punches. Rosenberg's left to head jarred Shea, who missed with a right. Rosenberg landed a left to jaw as the bell sounded.

Third Round.

Rosenberg drove Shea to the ropes and landed several heavy blows to body. A right to Shea's head sent the challenger down but he was up without taking a count. Another right sent him down, but once more he was on his feet immediately and went into a clinch. Rosenberg missed a hard left. Rosenberg drove Shea to ropes where he took several blows to head, covering up without any attempt to retaliate. Rosenberg had Shea's nose bleeding and pinched him with both hands. Shea came back with two blows to head, but Rosenberg drove him to ropes and they exchanged punches with no sign of defense. Shea was still fighting after the bell, which was drowned out by the roars of the crowd, and Referee Haley had to push him to his corner.

Fourth Round.

Shea rushed Rosenberg and Rosenberg dropped him with a right to the face. He was up at the count of nine and Rosenberg sent him down again with another, and he was counted out.

DELANEY TO BATTLE JACK BURKE TONIGHT

Light-Heavyweights Will Clash at Coney Island—Herman Faces Kid Henry.

Jack Delaney, the Bridgeport (Conn.) contender for light-heavyweight honors, will be seen in action tonight in the feature bout of ten rounds at the Coney Island Stadium with Jack Burke of Pittsburgh as his opponent. Both men wound up training yesterday.

In the semi-final ten, Italian Joe Gans will clash with Larry Estridge, and Carl Tremaine, Cleveland boxer, will face Georgie Marks. Mike Reilly and Sid Burt will oppose each other in a six. The opening four will be between Joe Marino and Andy Williams.

Babe Herman, California challenger, who has been matched to meet Louis Kid Kaplan for the world's featherweight championship in Waterbury, Conn., next month, is expected to see more than a mere work-out when he faces Kid Henry, Montreal boxer, in the feature bout of twelve rounds at the Rockaway Beach Arena in Steeplechase Park tonight.

Announcement was made yesterday by the Rockaway Beach Arena officials that the Frankie Genaro-Hilly Levine bout, originally scheduled for tonight, would be held one week hence.

Jackie Snyder, East New York bantamweight, and Frankie Fusaro of the west side will be rivals in a twelve-round bout at the Golden City Arena, Canarsie, tonight. In another twelve-rounder Irving Goldberg will oppose Jimmy Hutchison.

Jack Sharkey and Mike Moran of Pittsburgh will clash in the main bout of ten rounds at the Bayonne Stadium, Bayonne, N. J., tonight. Joey Ross and Lew Goldberg, flyweights, will meet in the semi-final ten.

GEHRIG'S 2 HOMERS BEAT SENATORS, 11-7

Second Drive With Bases Full Features 6-Run Rally in 7th That Wins for Yanks.

SHAWKEY IN RELIEF ROLE

Rescues Shocker, and His Bat Also Helps Push Champions Out of First Place Before 10,000.

By HARRY CROSS.

Lou Gehrig of Columbia brought the Yanks back to consciousness up at the Stadium yesterday with two home runs which beat the world's champion Senators and gently dropped them into second place. Through the energetic use of Mr. Gehrig's bat, the Yanks shook off their ennui and plastered an 11 to 7 defeat on Washington.

By virtue of this upheaval, together with Philadelphia's triumph over Boston, the Athletics leaped into the lead.

Not in vain did Lou Gehrig bask in the classic atmosphere of Columbia's fountains of knowledge. Not in vain did he delve deeply into the books in the School of Applied Science. Lou absorbed enough applied science to put it to practical use.

He applied it for all he was worth and in the sixth he stuck a home run into the left field bleachers with Meusel on when Tom Zachary was pitching again, and more important, he kicked a home run into the left field sunseats in the seventh with the bases full and ruined Marberry and the Senators in one fell slap.

The drop of the Yankees into the questionable social atmosphere of the lower regions of the second division has not caused the fans to forget them. Some 10,000 came out, fearing the worst, but went home happy when they found there was a kick left in the old Yanks.

Yanks Slow to Start.

It took the Yanks considerable time to down the champs, two and a half hours. They applied the rod slowly and made the enemy suffer. Zachary, Marberry, Gregg and Ogden felt the sting of the Yankee wrath. Washington treated Shocker badly and knocked him out of the box in the third inning, when Bob Shawkey took up the burden and carried it lightly with the aid of Gehrig's flail.

The big inning was the seventh when the Yanks came to the bat with the score 6 to 5 against them. Marberry had succeeded Zachary in the sixth after Gehrig's homer had coined two runs in the fifth. Ward got a pass from Marberry and so did Ruth. Meusel was winged on the right hand by an upstartish twist and filled the bases.

Gehrig took a couple of large healthy swings at the ball and missed. Then he slapped a high drive into left far too close to the foul line. Goslin and Scott both raced toward the ball which looked as if it was going to drop into the foul territory of the open stand. The ball dropped fair by a couple of feet, bounded high off the sun-baked ground and hopped into the stands.

Shocker ceased to be a mystery to the Senators as early as the second inning. With one out, Bluege singled to left and went to second on Scott's tap to right. Muddy Ruel's double to left pushed Bluege home and sent Scott to third. Zachary rolled to Ward, who made a low toss to the plate and Scott was safe on the rabid peg. After Moseely nipcked a foul to Bengough Manager Harris spanked a single to right which scored Ruel.

Goslin, Back in Game, Triples.

Goslin opened the third with a three-bagger to centre. Goose is just back from a suspension for starting a young riot in Cleveland and had to take it out on somebody. Judge's sacrifice fly scored Goslin and Bluege doubled to left centre.

The gate was opened and Shocker passed through, Shawkey coming to the tossing hill. Scott smacked the ball at Bob, who tossed to Dugan, and Bluege was run down on his effort to get back to second. Scott took a smart lead off first and forgot that his pedals are not as fast as they used to be, so a rapid peg to first by Bengough caught Scotty anoring.

The Yanks' slumbering ambition was aroused in the same third inning. Ernie Johnson singled and Shawkey rocked a tremendous three-bagger against the fence in deep left, sending Johnson over. Shawkey scored on an infield hit by Combs. After Ward added out and Ruth ignominiously fanned, Meusel accepted a ticket, and when Gehrig shot a single to centre, Combs counted.

Washington worried Shawkey in the fifth. Goslin doubled to right centre and went to third on an infield hit by Judge. Goose scored on Bluege's single to left, Judge going to third, whence he scored while Scotty was forcing Bluege at second. Shawkey's troubles were over when Ruel hit into a double play.

Comes the fifth with Gehrig and his educated bat. After Babe ballooned to the outer wastes Meusel singled to left and raced home on the gorgeous smash which the lad from Mr. Butler's university propelled into the right field bleachers. That brought the Yanks within a run of the champs, 6 to 5.

Then occurred the fruitful seventh narrated above when Columbia Lou once more brought oodles of grief to the Senators.

Flood of Bets on Miss Ederle's Chances in Channel Swim Cuts Odds From 20 to 7 to 1

LONDON, July 23 (AP).—Underwriters at Lloyd's, whose readiness to bet against anything in the world is well known, are being deluged from both sides of the Atlantic with orders from people who want to back Miss Gertrude Ederle's chances of swimming the English Channel.

Recently the rate was a premium of 5 guineas (about $25) per £100, or a little less than 20 to 1, but so many orders have come from the United States during the last few days that the odds have dropped to 15 guineas per £100, or about 7 to 1.

Several large "policies" have been written at longer odds. Technically, of course, Lloyd's does not bet. Underwriters call it underwriting insurance against Miss Ederle's failure or success.

Miss Ederle Takes First Dip.

BOULOGNE, France, July 23 (AP).—Miss Gertrude Ederle, American champion woman swimmer, who is training at Cape Gris-nez for an attempt to swim the English Channel, had her first dip today in its water. Miss Ederle is in splendid condition and is ready for her attempt at any time conditions are favorable.

POOLE AND ROMMEL BEAT THE RED SOX

Bat and Hurl Mackmen to a 5-4 Victory and Regain Lead in Race for Pennant.

PHILADELPHIA, July 23 (AP).—The Athletics took the opening game of the series with Boston here today, 5 to 4. The triumph was Rommel's seventeenth of the season and his sixth victory in as many games with the Red Sox. Poole's timely hitting was largely responsible for Boston's downfall. The victory put the Mackmen back in first place in the American League race.

CONNALLY SAVES WHITE SOX

Relieves Thurston and Beats Tigers, 8-4—Cobb Back in Game.

DETROIT, July 23 (AP).—Excellent relief pitching by Connally helped the White Sox to defeat Detroit here today, 8 to 4. Connally allowed only one hit in seven and two-thirds innings after Thurston had been batted from the box by the Tigers in the second inning, when they scored three of their runs.

Manager Ty Cobb appeared in the home team's line-up today after an absence since July 17, when he was suspended because of an argument with Umpire Rowland. Cobb played centre field, but retired at the end of the seventh to allow Fothergill to finish the game.

PICK DEMPSEY TO FIGHT GREB IN SEPTEMBER

Chicago Sports Writers Select Him as Most Available Man for Michigan City Bout.

CHICAGO, July 23 (AP).—Harry Greb, world's middleweight champion, may be matched with Jack Dempsey in a ten-round no-decision contest in the open-air arena at Michigan City in Indiana, on the afternoon of Sept. 19 or 25.

Greb, at a meeting of Chicago sports writers with Promoter Floyd Fitzsimmons tonight, was chosen as the best available opponent for Dempsey in view of the fact that the heavyweight champion said that he could not be ready for an engagement with Gene Tunney or Harry Wills this year.

Promoter Fitzsimmons said that he had received assurance from Dempsey over long-distance telephone from Salt Lake City that the champion would box Greb and that he would post forfeits as soon as the match was closed.

TOWNSEND WINS MATCH.

Special to The New York Times.

HEMPSTEAD, L. I., July 23.—The Nassau and Suffolk County open tennis championship got under way here today on the courts of the Hempstead Country Club with R. T. Townsend, the runner-up last year for the Challenge Bowl, winner in his first round match. He defeated R. S. Jones without the loss of an game. C. C. Haynes, the Baylor collegian, also won his first round match from W. R. Ruxton, 6—2, 7—5.

The summaries:

J. E. Robbins defeated C. H. Peck, 6—4, 6—3, 6—4; E. Baker defeated J. De Gelleke, 6—3, 8—1; Everett Smith defeated S. O. Mather, 6—4, 7—5; R. T. Townsend defeated R. S. Jones, 6—0, 8—0; C. C. Haynes defeated W. R. Ruxton, 6—2, 7—5; S. G. Noyes defeated L. G. Grist, 6—1, 6—3.

Battling Siki Stops Francis.

Pickups and Putouts

On the season series the Yanks have won six games and the Senators 11. All that New York has to do to tie the champs on the season is to win the remaining five games to be played. Stop laughing.

Wallie Pipp was out practicing before the game. Gehrig thinks Pipp needs more rest, so that's why he waved his bat so frantically yesterday.

Walter Johnson warmed up with Zachary and the Yanks were unanimously in favor of Harris's judgment when he picked Zach.

Scott has hit safely in every one of the eleven games he has played since Peck's lay-off. Persistent old fellow, Everett.

Today is an open date for both clubs. They will resume hostilities tomorrow and Sunday. It looks like Johnson tomorrow.

SMITH WINS, 10-1, FOR THE INDIANS

Veteran Southpaw Yields Only 4 Hits and Beats Browns —Myatt Is Hurt.

ST. LOUIS, July 23 (AP).—Sherrod Smith, veteran left-hander, allowed only four hits and the Cleveland Indians overwhelmed the St. Louis Browns today, 10 to 1.

The Browns, as a result of their defeat, dropped to fourth place from a tie for third. George Sisler went hitless after getting at least one safety in twenty-two consecutive games.

Glenn Myatt, catcher for the Indians, was forced out the game when hit by a pitched ball in the back of the head while at bat in the second inning.

Close Finishes Mark Larchmont Race Week's Fourth Regatta

SECRET IS VICTOR IN CLASS R RACE

Easily Wins From Doress, With Gamecock 12 Seconds Astern, in Larchmont Regatta.

MISTRAL FAVORED BY LUCK

Catches Favorable Wind and Beats Banshee by 4 Minutes in 40-Foot Class.

By SEABURY LAWRENCE.

Special to The New York Times.

LARCHMONT, N. Y., July 23.—Brilliant weather was the order of the day for the fourth regatta of the Larchmont Yacht Club's annual race week, and another big fleet came out to try for the series prizes, 148 yachts crossing the line, one less than the fleet of the opening day. The breeze was a good deal gentler than that of yesterday, but a good sailing wind from the west northwest sent the big squadron around the course in fast time. The breeze was somewhat puffy and some of the strong puffs that came along as the yachts were being sent away made the starts very spirited.

The start was especially fine in the new R Class, in which eight sloops went over the line, the largest number that has started so far this season. The crack skippers in this class had their boats almost on the line at the signal and all were headed down on the starboard tack as they crossed. They made a great picture. E. P. Alker, sailing Ardette, which has been carrying everything before her in the racing so far, saw an opening and shot the mahogany sloop through, crossing with a few feet to spare on Doress, with Chances third, Secret, Fifi, Quiver, Gamecock and Manasset II crossing very close astern.

The R boats sailed a course of 10½ miles, which took them on a close reach to Execution Light, then on a run down the wind to Parsonage Point Buoy, another reach across the Sound to a mark off Mott's Point on the Long Island shore, and then a beat back to the finish line.

Ardette Drops Back.

Although she got a fine start, Ardette did not seem to like the going so well as she did yesterday's blow and dropped back, with Harry Maxwell's Fifi, sailed by Jack Johnson, quickly going into the lead, with Doress and Secret close up and Gamecock, the new Herreshoff sloop, sailed by Commodore George Nichols, steadily gaining. Fifi was the leading boat at the Execution Light Buoy and continued to lead the fleet on the run to Parsonage Point.

On the reach across the Sound Secret, sailed by Corny Shields, footed very fast, and after turning the Motts Point Buoy caught a favoring slant of wind and came home an easy winner over Commodore Robert Law Jr.'s Doress, with Gamecock only twelve seconds astern of the Indian Harbor boat. The new Herreshoff candidate raced in very much improved form over that of her first start. Chances, owned by the Indian Harbor syndicate and sailed by Walter Bowes, also went well in the light westerly breeze.

Luck figured in the result of the race in the forty-foot class, as Mistral, owned by W. B. Bell, after trailing the other three starters early in the race, caught a favorable slant and came home almost four minutes ahead of Banshee, which was the leading boat over the first two legs of the course.

There was little windward work for any of the classes, and this was responsible for fast finishes. The Larchmont O sloop Mirage, owned by J. F. Mahlstedt, had no competition in her class and sailed against the best time of the forties, defeating Mistral by forty-one seconds on corrected time.

Many Close Finishes Recorded.

There were many finishes of the hair-raising variety in various classes, the closest of them coming in the second division of the first class, in which Ernest Ratsey's Irex III battled it out with Sonny, sailed by W. L. Inslee, the Ratsey sloop crossing the line one second ahead of the Gravesend Bay boat. Skipper Ratsey's father was once more his crew man. There were twenty starters in this division.

In the S class, with sloops representing the Pequot Yacht Club sailing against the boats of the Seawanhaka Corinthian Yacht Club, there was another hectic battle, and Eclipse, owned by John Schiott of the Pequot S class, winning by twenty-three seconds from frolic, owned by Guthrie Willard of the Seawanhaka team. Pandora, the third boat to finish was fifteen seconds astern of Frolic and Ellen, sailed by former Commodore Ralph Ellis, the fourth boat to finish, was five seconds behind Pandora.

5 Boats for 150-Mile Race Named by Horace E. Dodge

DETROIT, July 23.—Horace E. Dodge of Detroit entered five boats today in the third annual 150-mile sweepstakes, the longest speedboat event in the world, which will be a feature of the Harmsworth Regatta on the Detroit River Sept. 6. He entered the Baby Horace III, the Solar Plexus and a boat as yet unnamed, all to fly the Detroit Yacht Club colors. In addition he filed the entry of his sister, Mrs. Delphine Dodge Cromwell of Philadelphia, whose Nuisance will carry the Columbia Yacht Club of New York flag and the entry of William Horn, Detroit, named Little Boy Blue. The Horn entry will carry the colors of the Yachtsmen's Association of America, under whose auspices the sweepstakes will be held.

PEANUTS IS WINNER AGAIN AT EMPIRE

Gerry Colt Scores Third Straight Victory at Meeting in the Knickerbocker.

HOME FIRST BY 2 LENGTHS

Takes Measure of Belair Stable's Marconi—Catalan Beats Bright Steel in the Whitestone.

By HENRY B. ILSLEY.

Robert L. Gerry's game little colt Peanuts, by Ambassador IV—Agnes Sard, galloped home an easy victor in the fifteenth running of the Knickerbocker Handicap at Empire City yesterday afternoon, beating four other three-year-olds over the course of a mile and a sixteenth. He carried 108 pounds and with Coltletti up he covered the course in 1:48 over a good track. Peanuts was the 8-to-5 favorite and his victory netted his owner $3,920.

With the first good racing day since Monday the spectators turned out in force. Two favorites and an equal choice came home first. The two days of rain had deeply soaked the course and the track was slow during the early races, drying out rapidly and becoming good, though far from fast.

Little Bernard Thompson had only two mounts during the afternoon, but he made the most of his opportunities and won with both of them. He galloped home in front on Edward Arlington's Barney Google in the second and repeated with the same owner's Federalist in the sixth. Mr. H. Fizer saddled both for Mr. Arlington.

Little Peanuts is a greatly improved colt and his victory in the Knickerbocker Handicap was his third in succession at this meeting.

Peanuts was in receipt of four pounds from the Belair Stud's Marconi and R. T. Wilson Jr.'s Senalado, the latter the second choice, backed to 3 to 1. The all five named overnight faced the barrier, Marconi having the No. 1 position at the post, inside of Thomas Welsh's Despot, with Senalado third, Peanuts fourth and F. E. Brown's Laplander on the outside.

There was a good start, Laplander being rushed into the lead in the race to the first turn. Coltletti rated his mount back of the pace to the far turn, where he let out a wrap and the little fellow went to the fore. He raced in front in the stretch drive, flashing past the winning post two lengths in front of Marconi. The Belair colt was on the rail all the way, but was squeezed back on the far turn. He recovered well and was up to take the place by a head from Senalado.

With Lucky Play and Flames withdrawn, the Whitestone Handicap, the secondary feature, lost considerable of its interest, since the gallop of a mile and seventy yards seemed almost a certainty for the Bedford Farm's four-year-old, Fair Play horse Catalan, third to Mad Play and Sling in the Brooklyn. At the end Catalan won easily by a length from James Butler's Bright Steel, the Roll Call, the only other starter, trailing ten lengths back.

Frank O'Neill Gets $25,000 A Year for Riding in Berlin

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Co.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, July 23.—The German turf will be enriched tomorrow by the arrival here of Frank O'Neill for years France's premier jockey. Halma Stable, one of the biggest in Germany, the owner of which is a multimillionaire industrialist, has retained O'Neill's services for the present racing season at an annual salary of $25,000. He plans to develop the valuable aggregation of yearlings and two-year-olds he brought from the famous Weinberg stud a year ago into the star stable of Central Europe.

BEE WORTHY FIRST IN BAY STATE TROT

Leads Fast Field in Straight Heats of Feature on Opening Day of Circuit.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENFIELD, Mass., July 23.—Bee Worthy, sterling trotter owned by Oscar Wolfenden of Attleboro and driven by Fred E. Hyde, again demonstrated his superiority today over a fast group of 2:15 trotters in straight heats in the feature event of the opening of the annual Bay State Circuit here.

Walter M. won the 2:12 pace although the last heat went to Minnie Edgewood in a driving finish. Minnie Edgewood lost the second heat by a neck. Minnie Edgewood is now owned by Captain H. M. Sianford of Springfield, Mass.

Little Sled had things all his own way in winning the 2:19 trot, being in front throughout.

Post and Paddock

Johnny Maiben may have established a record at the Empire City race course yesterday afternoon, where he had five mounts and brought every one home in third place. He was not up to his best form and should have made a better showing.

Peanuts is about as big as a pint of that commodity, but his heart is as big as that of a 17-hander, and he is a hard nut to crack for any of his class. William Woodward bred him at his Belair Stud and enjoyed his victory immensely, although it was at the expense of his own Marconi.

Peanuts is one of many horses that particularly fancies the Yonkers track. Federalist is another and so is Julie. It may be recalled that his victory immensely, although it was at the expense of his own Marconi.

Major C. L. Scott of the Remount Depot of the Federal Government was one of the visitors to the hilltop.

Two horses changed hands after the first race. Mrs. T. O. Webber took Cherub from W. J. Hennessey for $2,700. J. H. Black claimed Caracosta from Edward Arlington for $2,500.

Mr. Arlington also lost Federalist, winner of the fifth race, the three-year-old being led away by F. M. Taylor for $4,500. A. J. Gadek took W. J. Both's Legation out of the same race for $4,800.

Today's card has filled better than any since the meeting opened. The feature is the Wedgewood-Highweight Handicap, with fourteen named. The speedy Mino is on top with 140 pounds and Noah has a pound less.

FAVONIAN VICTOR OVER ETTA DRUIEN

Turns Tables on Murphy Mare in 2:02 Trot at Grand Circuit Meeting in Kalamazoo.

Vic Fleming's Filly Scores in Straight Heats—Frank Worthy Takes 2:11 Pace.

KALAMAZOO, Mich., July 23. (AP).—Favonian, owned by Mrs. Fred Edman, defeated by Etta Druien at Toledo last week, reversed the order of things in today's 2:02 trot in the grand circuit meeting here and defeated the Murphy mare. On the strength of last week's victory, Etta Druien was made the favorite although Favonian had won over her earlier in the season at North Randall.

Favonian, driven by Edman, took the first two heats but gave way to Etta Druien in the final mile. In each of the heats this pair fought it out all the way around, but the Edman horse was able to stand off the Eastern mare at the finish, although it required a lot of urging to turn the trick. The three heats were won under the lash with the big crowd howling itself into a state of frenzy.

Two of the starters in the trot were former winners of the $10,000 Exchange Club purse. Favonian bagged the victory in 1923 and Fayette National, which fell by the wayside in today's race, won it last year.

The two-year-old trot, the first event of the kind staged on the circuit this year, was reduced from a field of twelve starters to five

LOTT IS CRUSHED IN SKOKIE TENNIS

Wray Brown Repels Him, 6-1, 6-2, Toppling Championship Hopes of the Midwest.

CHICAGOAN IS OUTCLASSED

Johnston Puts Out Hooker to Reach Semi-Finals—Howard Kinsey to Meet Tilden.

By ALLISON DANZIG.

Special to The New York Times.

GLENCOE, Ill., July 23.—The flags are at half-mast in Chicago. George Lott, the 19-year-old youth, in whom the championship hopes of the Middle West were centred, was laid low today in the Illinois State Title Club.

Wray Brown of St. Louis, who ranks thirteen places under Lott at No. 22, defeated the junior champion 6-1, 6-2 in the fifth round. What a blow it was to local tennis followers can be appreciated only by those who have known the pitch to which Chicagoians have been excited by Lott's victory over Howard Kinsey and Brian Norton and his great bid for victory over Tilden in their five-set match in the final of the clay court championship at St. Louis.

Had Tilden or William Johnston beaten him by so decisive a score, it would have hurt the local pride, but to suffer defeat at the hands of a player well out of the first ten was nothing less than a Chicago catastrophe.

However, to those who have not been swayed by civic feelings, the victory of Brown did not come as any great surprise. Lott has been getting into difficulties in almost all of his matches while Brown has been mowing down all opposition in ruthless fashion. His triumph over Wallace Johnson of Philadelphia, fifth in the national ranking on Wednesday, should have prepared every one for what was coming.

Evidently it prepared Lott, for he was nervous and never able to find himself against the cool, easy going youth from St. Louis. Brown completely bewildered him with his facility for putting shots in unreachable places, for opening wide gaps in his court and sending in finishing shots.

Brown Varies His Game.

Three years ago Brown went down in defeat before Lucien Williams of Chicago in the final of the intercollegiate championship. The player who met Lott today was a different player. Instead of his exaggerated twist service, he showed a strong, well-placed delivery that permitted him to gain the net safely and put away Lott's returns with plunging volleys at acute angles. Instead of employing a drive off the ground as he did against Williams, Brown mixed his game, chopping most of the time and getting so much spin on the ball that his opponent could not handle it accurately and made numerous errors on shots that appeared easy. With the score at 3-1 in his favor, Brown took six games in a row, winning the first set and gaining a lead of 3-0 before Lott was able to get his first game in the second set.

Brown's victory placed him in the semi-finals where he will meet Johnston. The Californian advanced at the expense of Brian Norton of St. Louis, 6-4, 6-3. Johnston was not in good form and had difficulty in clearing the net.

Kinsey Other Survivor.

Howard Kinsey will meet Tilden in the other semi-final. He advanced today by defeating Walter Hayes 6-4, 6-2. Tilden gained his semi-final bracket on Wednesday after barely escaping defeat at the hands of Harvey Snodgrass.

Two teams reached the semi-final round of the men's doubles. Tilden and Sandy Wiener of Philadelphia, who defeated the Kinsey brothers, national champions, at St. Louis, eliminated Walter Hayes and Al Green, 6-4, 6-3 and than advanced to the semi-finals after a thrilling battle with Samuel Hardy of New York and Lott. The score was 6-4, 2-6, 6-4. Johnston and Clarence J. Griffin of San Francisco, former national champion, defeated L. F. Daugherty and A. Pajars, 6-0, 6-2, in the third round and gained their next bracket by default.

Miss Helen Jacobs of Berkeley, Cal., advanced to the final of the women's championship, by defeating Miss Doris Kinsel 6-0, 6-1. The boy's championship was won by Walter Thomas of Elmora, N. J. In the final round he defeated John Sheldon of Chicago 6-0, 6-4.

The summaries:

HARTFORD, Conn., July 23.—Willie Macfarlane, national open golf champion, defeated Jack Stait of the Hartford Golf Club, 1 up, in an eighteen-hole exhibition match here this afternoon.

Philadelphia Sculls Cup Is Barred by the British

LONDON, July 23 (AP).—The Westminster Gazette says that the Amateur Rowing Association has decided not again officially to sanction an English sculler competing for the Philadelphia Gold Challenge Cup, which Jack Beresford Jr., champion English sculler, retained last week by defeating Walter Hoover of Philadelphia. Beresford decided, the paper states, that he would return the trophy forthwith.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, July 23.—The Philadelphia Gold Cup Committee was not surprised today when it learned of this action. It had been expected. W. E. Garrett Gilmore, national sculling champion of the Bachelors' Barge Club, announced he would go to England in the Fall and visit Beresford to plan a race next year. Gilmore expects to enter the diamond sculls next Summer, and hopes also to meet Beresford in a match.

MISS WILLS VICTOR; MISS BROWNE WINS

Champion Beats Mrs. Jessup, While Other Coast Star Conquers Mrs. Mallory.

MANCHESTER, Mass., July 23 (AP).—Two Californians, first and second ranking women tennis players of the country, will meet tomorrow in the final of the women's invitation single tournament at the Essex County Country Club here, as a result of victories in the semi-finals today. Miss Helen Wills of Berkeley, Cal., defeated Mrs. J. B. Jessup, Wilmington, Del., 6-2, 6-1, in one semi-final, while in the other Miss Mary K. Browne of Santa Monica, Cal., vanquished Mrs. Molla B. Mallory, New York, 6-4, 5-7, 6-3.

It was the first time Miss Browne had defeated Mrs. Mallory since 1917, and both former national champions fought desperately for the decision. It was a match of long rallies where the service advantage seldom entered into the count. Both played a back court driving attack, first one and then the other making apparently impossible gets.

In the second set, which Mrs. Mallory won, Miss Browne was leading 5-4 and the game was at 40—15 when Mrs. Mallory turned the tables on her opponent as Miss Browne had three opportunities to put the match away. The tenth game of the set was won by the New York woman on two great placements after the score had been at deuce four times.

When the players returned to the courts for the third set Mrs. Mallory seemed to have lost her steadiness, while Miss Browne continued to display her brilliant all-court attack. As the set drew to a close Mrs. Mallory made frequent errors and appeared tired at times.

Miss Wills in defeating Mrs. Jessup eliminated the last of the Eastern contenders from the singles tournament. The match was another easy victory for the national champion, her speed and placements being too much for Mrs. Jessup. The Wilmington woman was defeated by Miss Wills last Saturday in the finals of the women's invitation tournament at Brookline.

As a result of the semi-final matches in the doubles East and West will contest the finals tomorrow afternoon. Miss Wills and Miss Browne will represent the West against Mrs. J. B. Jessup, Wilmington, Del., and Miss Eleanor Goss, New York.

Miss Wills and Miss Browne defeated Mrs. May Sutton Bundy and Miss Marion Williams of California, 7—5, 6—3, and Mrs. Jessup and Miss Goss defeated Miss Elisabeth Ryan of England, formerly of California, and Miss Eleanora Sears, Beverly Farms, 6—2, 6—3.

PRINCE OF WALES CUP IN COMPETITION TODAY

Oxford-Cambridge Tennis Team to Meet Rockaway Hunting Club for Trophy.

The Oxford and Cambridge tennis players in meeting a team from the Rockaway Hunting Club at Cedarhurst, L. I., today and tomorrow will be fighting the first battle for the Prince of Wales Cup. This cup was presented to the club last year as a perpetual challenge cup to be contested for by British and American tennis teams. The Prince on his visit to Long Island last year was told of the existence of the trophy and consented to have it named for him. He signed a sketch of the trophy and a facsimile of the signature is engraved on the cup. A small size replica of the trophy is to be given to each member of the winning team.

The singles matches will be played this afternoon and the doubles tomorrow afternoon. On both days play will commence at 2:30 P. M.

BLAUER WINS TWO TITLES.

Takes Boys' Tennis Centre Singles, Then Scores in Doubles Final.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., July 23.—Harold Blauer won two titles here today in the tennis centre matches held on the court of the Montclair A. C. In the boys' singles he defeated Edmund Bartlett, 6—2, 7—5, and in the doubles, paired with the boy he had just beaten, he defeated Harry Moore and Sydney Snitkin, 6—1, 3—6, 6—4.

The summaries:

Boys' Singles—Final—Harold Blauer defeated Edmund Bartlett, 6—2, 7—5.

Boys' Doubles—Final—Harold Blauer and Edmund Bartlett defeated Harry Moore and Sydney Snitkin, 6—1, 3—6, 6—4.

Junior Singles—Semi-final—Lemoine Heuser defeated Harry Hort, 6—1, 6—1. Junior Doubles—Semi-final—Lemoine Heuser and Gregory Mangin defeated Robert Bennett and Paul Scott, 6—1, 6—0, 6—0.

VETERANS CURB NEW BALL.

Walter Johnson Leads American in Effectiveness, Luque in National.

CHICAGO, July 23 (AP).—The lively ball is not so very lively when delivered by some of the gray-haired major league pitching stars, records compiled today indicate.

In the American League there are eleven pitchers with records of one hit or less per inning, and of the eleven, eight are veterans of many seasons. The National League has nine pitchers with an average of one hit or less per inning, and only two of these are youngsters. These figures are from the fifty leading pitchers in each league.

Walter Johnson still holds the crown for effectiveness in the American League and Adolf Luque of the Cincinnati Reds is leading in effectiveness in the National League.

FAVORITES TUMBLE ON GRASS COURTS

Kelleher, Shimizu and Kynaston Bow to Donaldson, King and Binzen at Crescent A. C.

RAY CASEY IN DOUBLES

Paired With Richards He Wins Two Matches—Bowman Defeats Fred Bagge.

The under dog had his day on the grass courts of the Crescent Athletic Club yesterday. In three of the singles matches of the fourth round of the Metropolitan championship the favorites did not win. In the doubles several matches that were expected to be walkovers developed into hard fights, one of which involved the seeded team of Vincent Richards and Raymond Casey.

In the singles which went contrary to expectations J. Cecil Donaldson defeated Hugh G. M. Kelleher, 4—6, 6—4, 7—5; Dr. George King defeated Zenzo Shimizu, 6—4, 5—7, 6—4, and Elliott H. Binzen defeated Percy L. Kynaston, 6—3, 8—6. Herbert L. Bowman was one favorite who survived. He conquered the hard fighting Fred Bagge, 6—2, 6—3.

The doubles were marked by the first appearance since his trip abroad of Ray Casey. He and Vincent Richards swept through E. A. Baker and K. Underwood, 6—1, 6—1, in the first match. In their second match the veteran Bagge and Binzen, both of whom had already played singles matches, forced them to go to a long deuce set to win. The score was 6—1, 10—8. The steadiness of Binzen and Bagge was contrasted by Casey's wildness. The representative of America at Wimbledon was not in top form.

S. Howard Voshell and A. H. Chapin, the second seeded team, also encountered trouble in the second set of their match with Allen Behr and Manuel Barredo. The score was 6, 7—5, 6—4.

The singles furnished the thrills of the day. Donaldson's defeat of Kelleher was perhaps the greatest surprise. Earlier in the tournament Kelleher showed that he was in top form by supplanting the first upset in the defeat of A. H. Chapin, a higher ranking player. The Terrace Club player, however, is making a remarkable recovery after a layoff and played Kelleher off his feet. He lost the first set and then led at 5—1 in the second, when Kelleher rallied, but not enough to overtake him. In the decisive set Donaldson took an early lead of 2—0, but then dropped three games in a row. In the tenth game Kelleher was within a point of the match, but Donaldson saved the day, evened the score at 5-all and went on to win the next two games and the match.

Dr. King's defeat of Shimizu was nearly as big a surprise, particularly after the Japanese Davis Cup captain had won the second set. In the third set while King led at 4 to 3, Shimizu rallied and took two games. Then King's terrific drives repulsed the Japanese.

Kynaston was favored to advance over Binzen. Binzen, however, played hard and fast and turned the tables. He had little trouble in the first set. In the second Kynaston made a stand and held his service throughout, but only postponed the decision.

The summaries:

Singles, Fourth Round—Elliott H. Binzen defeated Percy L. Kynaston, 6—3, 6—8, 7—5; J. Cecil Donaldson defeated Hugh G. M. Kelleher, 4—6, 6—4, 7—5; Dr. George King defeated Zenzo Shimizu, 6—4, 5—7, 6—4; Herbert L. Bowman defeated Fred C. Bagge, 6—2, 6—3.

Doubles, First Round—Vincent Richards and Ray Casey defeated A. Baker and K. Underwood, 6—1, 6—1; F. C. Bagge and E. H. Binzen won from Richard Lewis and R. W. Talmage by default; J. D. Ewing and K. T. Stoddard defeated R. Franks and S. I. Block, 6—1, 6—0; M. H. Barredo and Allen Behr defeated Melvin Partridge and S. A. Manchester, 6—4, 6—2.

Second Round—Richards and Casey defeated Bagge and Binzen, 6—1, 10—8; S. H. Voshell and A. H. Chapin defeated Behr and Barredo, 6—0, 7—5; Hornett and MacBoud defeated Ferguson and Garrettson, 6—2, 6—2.

Third Round—Donaldson and Fisher defeated Ferguson and Garrettson, 7—5, 6—3; Roberts and Jaquet defeated Ivins and Johnson, 6—3, 6—3.

MISS RYAN PLAYS SUNDAY.

She Will Appear in Exhibition Tennis at Crescent A. C.

Miss Elisabeth Ryan will play an exhibition match on Sunday at the Crescent Athletic Club in Bay Ridge where the metropolitan grass court championship is in progress. Who her opponent will be was not decided last night, but there is a possibility that May Sutton Bundy will come to New York with Miss Ryan. Arrangements for the exhibition were made with Miss Ryan over long distance telephone by Albert Gibney, Chairman of the Tournament Committee. Miss Ryan is in Manchester, Mass.

Tomorrow teh Australian Davis Cup players, Gerald Patterson and J. O. Anderson will appear in exhibitions at the Bay Ridge Club.

BARNHILL WINS PRIZE.

Fountain Also Has Low Gross Score in Met. Advertisers' Golf.

Roy Barnhill and L. R. Fountain were the low gross winners in the one-day tournament of the Metropolitan Advertising Golf Association at the Oakland Golf Club yesterday. Barnhill won the morning competition with a 76, while in the afternoon Fountain took the honors with a 79.

The morning low net prize was won by James Boring, who had a score of 92, 23—69. The afternoon net competition resulted in a tie between L. A. Weaver with 95, 23—72, and G. C. Tompkins with 79, 7—72. H. C. Proskay was second with a score of 84, 11—73. The eight flight winners were E. N. Chalfont, L. R. Fountain, J. F. Pomphrey, J. N. McDonald, W. R. Hotchkiss, D. H. Leigh, A. S. Moore and D. C. Tompkins.

MRS. CHAPMAN IS WINNER.

Takes Low Gross Prize in Knollwood Club Golf Tourney.

Mrs. J. D. Chapman of Greenwich with an 82, captured the low gross prize in the one-day women's tourney at the Knollwood Country Club yesterday from a field of forty-nine starters. The low net prize competition resulted in a tie between Mrs. Hugh McDonald of Scarsdale, who had a 91, 16—75, and Mrs. H. C. Schwedle of Scarsdale with 108, 33—75. Mrs. Joseph C. Quirk was third in the low net competition with an 86, 9—77.

SMALL ENTRY OF BOATS.

Only Three Named for George Cup Races at Rochester Next Week.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 23 (AP).—There will be only three entries in the George Cup races for the championship of the R-boat Class of Lake Ontario next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, according to the entry list which closed today.

The three boats and clubs for which entries have been filed with the Toronto Canoe Club, under whose auspices the meet is to be held, are the Mayeda of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club of Toronto, the Kathea of the Crescent Yacht Club of Watertown and the Rogue of the Rochester Yacht Club.

CHASE ELIMINATED IN STATE GOLF PLAY

Defending Champion Is Beaten by McAleenan by 3 and 1 at Lido.

WATTLES ALSO IS PUT OUT

Loses to Mackie Jr., While Driggs Triumphs Over Gardner in Extra-Hole Match.

By WILLIAM D. RICHARDSON.

Special to The New York Times.

LONG BEACH, L. I., July 23.—After figuring so prominently in the news of the New York State amateur golf championship yesterday, Buffalo dropped completely out of sight today. Neither Lido, with all its terrors, nor the elements could daunt the fearless representatives of the Bison City yesterday. But today was quite another day, and the hardy citizens of the famous Lake Erie port succumbed before the attack of mere men like themselves. When the sun went down and the moon came up there wasn't a single solitary Buffalonian left to carry on the fight for the State championship trophy.

From the ruins of Buffalo there arose a new community to celebrate in song and story. Today was Long Island day at the tournament, and so will be tomorrow and Saturday. For out of the eight survivors left to fight it out for the title every man-jack heeds the daily admonition to "close all windows going through the tunnel." So far as the 1925 State championship is concerned it might just as well be reduced in scope to the Long Island amateur championship. The list of those saved from today's wreck includes the following names: J. B. Mackie Jr. of Inwood, Tom Sherman, Walter L. Richard and Harry Scharff of Lido, H. G. Edwards of Garden City, Neal Fulkerson of Belleclaire, Stephen Geoghegan of Huntington and E. H. Driggs Jr. of Lakeville.

Heroes Are Put Out.

There were some rather notable personages in the small but select group that came down from the highlands to do battle for the State title. There was Lee Chase, from Buffalo, who had held the crown for the past year. There was Frank Wattles, likewise registering from Buffalo. There was W. H. (Ham) Gardner, hailing from the same port of call—a golfer who gave Chick Evans a thrilling fight in the Western when Chick was still at the top of his game. From Utica there was Sherrill Sherman, a former semi-finalist in the national. And upholding the honor of Westchester there was J. G. McMahon Jr. and also Richard A. Jones Jr. There were these and others; but they have all disappeared.

The attack on the up-Staters began early in the day. Even before noon Chase had relinquished his interest in the present tourney and surrendered possession of the cup which he won at Buffalo last year. The golfer who was responsible for the killing off of the 1924 champion was Austin McAleenan of Fox Hills. No sooner had luncheon been finished and the hour's armistice ended than the Long Islanders rushed to the attack with renewed fury. Down went Wattles before the thrusts of young Jack Mackie Jr., the Long Island junior leader, who won by 1 up after being 2 down with only four holes to play. Down went Gardner, who had been singled out by Driggs, the Long Island amateur champion, although it required two extra holes to accomplish the fell deed.

Gardner's defeat as well as that of Wattles put a brand new complexion on the tourney, for each one was a menace in his own right. There was one instance in the Gardner-Driggs match that illustrates the evils of conceding putts in match play. For nine holes the pair struggled on practically even terms, Gardner being 1 up by virtue of Driggs taking three putts on the eighth green. On the tenth green Gardner took three putts, failing to hole one that was about two feet long. On the next green Driggs was about the same distance from the hole, while Gardner was almost on the lip. Expecting a concession, Driggs putted carelessly and missed. It wasn't Gardner's intention of conceding the putt with the match as close as it was, but he failed to claim the hole, as he should have done.

Gardner Loses on Drive.

At the point in question it didn't make much difference, but later on its importance was magnified. Gardner won the knoll hole with a birdie 3. Driggs missing his drive and taking a 5. This left him one up going to the fourteenth and there was no change for the next two holes.

On the seventeenth, Driggs got down an eight-foot putt for a good half after being trapped on his second and just out on his third. Dormie one, Gardner had a chance to clinch the match by getting his half on the home green, but he took three putts and permitted Driggs to square the match. There's where the concession made a difference. Playing to the first extra hole, Gardiner was trapped on the left, but saved himself by making a heroic recovery. His drive to the eighth was what turned the match to Driggs. He skied his ball off the tee and Driggs was a hundred yards ahead of his. Finally, after being forty yards from home on his second, Gardner had a ten-foot putt for a half, but missed it.

The cards:

Out—
Driggs	4	4	5	5	4	5	5	4	5	41
Gardner	4	4	5	5	5	5	5	5	5	43

CECIL WALKER SPEEDS TO CYCLING VICTORY

Outrides McNamara and Arthur Spencer Before 17,000 at the Newark Velodrome.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWARK, N. J., July 23.—Cecil Walker, all around champion, defeated Reggie McNamara and Arthur Spencer, national sprint champion, in a one-mile invitation race which was one of the features at the Velodrome here tonight. The largest night crowd of the year, numbering 17,000, saw the races. Arthur Spencer was back of the pacemaker for the last three laps, followed by Walker and McNamara. Spencer tore into the lead at the bell and fought off Walker until the home stretch when the all-around titleholder came with a whirlwind sprint and won by inches. The time was 2:05 1-5.

The summaries:

One-Mile Open (Professional)—Won by Cecil Walker, Australia; Reggie McNamara, Newark, second; Arthur Spencer, Newark, third; Alex McBeath, Australia, fourth; Fred Spencer, Plainfield, fifth; William Grimm, Newark, sixth. Time—2:05 1-5.

THE GREAT WOOL PLOT.

The mystery of cut wages in Massachusetts woolen mills has at last been solved. Trade writers have been stumped by it, but our amiable neighbor, The Gaelic American, has cleared the whole thing up. The explanation is that imports from England are killing off the native industry. "Woolen "goods in enormous quantities are "coming in by every ship." How can this be under a tariff designed to keep them out? The mischief is that "under the flexible clause of the "Tariff act the duty on English im- "ports is brought down to such a "figure that the English are under- "selling American manufacturers." And the motive of this action is that the "revival of English trade" is "dear to the Washington Government." The plain inference is that President COOLIDGE favors the Yorkshire mills at the expense of the great woolen manufactures of his own State. Why else has he so "construed" the flexible clauses of the tariff as to "favor England"?

It is painful to cite ugly facts in order to destroy so beautiful an hypothesis, but there is no record of the Tariff Commission recommending any lowering of the woolen duties, or of the President approving such a thing. Moreover, the latest official figures relating to imports of woolen goods from England show that they have fallen off about 20 per cent. in value since last year. There has been, it is true, an increase in importations of raw wool, "on the skin or in the grease," and so forth, but these have been for the express purpose of furnishing the American manufacturer with his raw material. Those ominous shiploads of English woolens seen by the eye of The Gaelic American, in a fine frenzy rolling, must have got by American customs officers and statisticians without leaving a trace. It may be that they came in camouflaged as Irish frieze.

A CHINESE CONFERENCE.

If the Shanghai riots as well as the questions of Chinese tariff reform and the abolition of extraterritoriality are to be discussed at the proposed conference of the Powers, it is probable that more will be attempted than merely to set in motion the machinery devised at the Washington Conference. The European nations are reluctant to make concessions to China unless and until the danger of personal violence to foreigners has passed. But this, as well as the settlement of the disputes that have arisen as a result of the Shanghai collisions, is a matter of the moment. The questions of extraterritorial rights and tariff changes concern the general policies of the Powers toward China over a long period of years. If they are all discussed at the same time, it will mean a complete review of the entire Chinese situation. Aside from the necessity of agreeing among the Powers as to the agenda—a process which is certain to be slow and to be punctuated by rumors of secret alliances, diabolical plots and imminent disaster—it is essential to find a Chinese group that is capable of representing China, and that is willing and able to enforce the decisions reached at the conference.

About the Chinese students there a great difference of opinion. Certainly they are not a unit in their own programs. The probability is that those groups which have been most active have simply served as tools of leaders not in the open. They have formed ready mouthpieces for preaching the gospel of nationalism and for inciting the mobs against foreigners. That they are powerful enough to set up or maintain a stable government is most unlikely. The present "Government" in Peking—the only one recognized by the Powers—is altogether impotent, and does not represent the various sections and leaders. Neither CHANG TSO-LIN nor the Christian General FENG is strong enough to dominate by force. The South is still at odds with the North, and the disciples of the late SUN YAT-SEN seek a complete change of the present form of theoretically representative Government.

The principle bearing of this is on the problem of the safety of foreigners in China. The murder of an American in Manchuria and attacks on other foreigners elsewhere can hardly encourage the nations to relinquish what small protection they now possess. The disorganization of China gives little promise of safety for foreigners. It is feared that if the present rights, concessions and guards are withdrawn the risks will be even greater. To be sure, the case of the Germans, Austrians and Russians does not seem to justify this fear. None of these nations enjoys the rights of extraterritoriality. None of them keeps extensive military and naval establishments in China. There has been, however, no marked evidence of ill-will toward the citizens of these nations. The Russians are strongly entrenched politically and the Germans and Austrians claim to be enjoying better trade facilities as a result of having given up special rights. The Chinese, they say, prefer to do business with them. It may be that the hatred of the foreign devils would disappear if their special rights were withdrawn. This, however, is highly speculative. The best thing that can be done is to endeavor to formulate a basis of discussions and then to proceed to inquire into the various possible lines of procedure. This appears to be the purpose of the United States Government.

THE FORESTRY BUREAU'S WORK.

Senator ASHURST's latest attack upon the Forestry Bureau must be taken with a grain of Arizona salt. Yet it gives color to Governor PINCHOT's recent warning that a campaign "to dismember the United "States Forest Service is now being "prepared at Washington." Probably the worst thing that threatens it is a movement to transfer the service from the Agricultural to the Interior Department. When Congress meets in December advantage may be taken of strictures found in the report of a subcommittee of the Senate now engaged in investigating the public land system, including the forest reserves. There have been blunders in the Forest Service administration—its sincere friends would not deny that—but the policy of conservation has saved vast areas of the public domain from exploitation. It has far more supporters than enemies throughout the country and in President COOLIDGE an ardent and avowed champion.

In February Mr. ASHURST was denouncing the Forest Service on the floor of the Senate because a grazing charge was made in Arizona. Many of his constituents are cattlemen, cowboys and sheep herders. The Senator did not assert that the grazing charge was excessive when compared with the rates asked on private lands—as a matter of fact, it is less. But the Arizona live-stock men opposed any charge at all. It was in support of a joint resolution (introduced by his colleague, Senator CAMERON) suspending the grazing fee for the year 1925 that Mr. ASHURST made his speech assailing the Forestry Bureau. It was true that the cattlemen had been injured by a long drought. If the grazing fee were suspended, it would be a benefit to them. But the Senator disdained to ask it as a privilege. He argued that his constituents had a grievance because any charge was made by the Forestry Bureau when cattle and sheep were turned into the national reservation. He now makes a more severe attack. The cattle and sheep industries "are about to be exterminated "* * * by the reckless, ignorant and "relentless policies of the Forestry "Bureau." It is "an engine of op- "pression and the Senate will mend or "end this bureau." Moreover, it is an economic wrong:

> Steak on the plate is now almost beyond the slender purse of the common citizen, while steak on the hoof brings no profit to the cowman. Mutton has tripled in price, while sheep have dwindled in price. Woolen clothes are at the peak of prices, but the flockmaster must take an inadequate price for his fleece.

Who or what is to blame, if not the sinister Forestry Bureau? Mr. ASHURST does not link the high prices he denounces with the prices of other commodities used and consumed by the people. He rails at the Forestry Bureau for its "abysmal lack of familiarity with our national forests." It "has "practiced injustices and tyrannies "upon the helpless citizen to an unbe- "lievable extent." It won't even employ Arizonans as officials. It is guilty of "red tape, prolixity, delay, "huge expense accounts, ukases and "a prurient itch for favorable men- "tion." According to Professor JOHN ISE of the University of Kansas, who has made a study of the United States forest policy, this oppressor permits 15,000,000 animals to graze in the national forests each year. The Pinchot policy of "more effective protec- "tion and administration of the re- "serves, even if it resulted in a deficit," is still followed. Hundreds of thousands of acres have been eliminated for the reason that the land was said to be suited for agricultural use. Mistakes have been made, but they are insignificant compared with the benefits derived from the conservation policy. As THEODORE ROOSEVELT said, it is "emphatically in the interests of the people as a whole."

MR. BORAH'S LATEST SUBSTITUTE.

Senator BORAH emerges from his session of thought with an article in The Forum on "The Fetish of Force, a New Pan-American Policy." The new policy follows the draft of the codification of American international law prepared by the American Institution of International Law for submission to the Commission of Jurists which is to meet in Rio de Janeiro. This forbids even the temporary occupation of any part of the territory of any American republic in order to exercise sovereignty therein, even with its consent. The American republics are to agree that hereafter "terri- "torial acquisitions obtained by "means of war or in presence of an "armed force to the detriment of any "American republic shall not be law- "ful." Mr. BORAH wants the United States to adopt this "brave declaration" on its own hook without waiting for the adoption of the code. He reproves the conduct of the United States toward Santo Domingo, Haiti and Nicaragua, the latter two members of the League of Nations.

He finds it "reasonably certain" that our Central American policy will be changed. "It is understood" that Secretary KELLOGG thinks that that policy should and can be so directed that intervention by force will not again occur. Let us hope so, though Mr. BORAH hasn't always seemed immune from the "imperialism" which he abominates; and it can hardly be said that the Secretary of State's remarks about the Mexican Government not long ago dripped with the essential oil of tact. With that deliverance, Mr. BORAH was "understood" to be in full agreement. Now, having accidentally found something that he likes, he characteristically overestimates its importance. He rapturously reproduces the old laments of the rule of force over reason. "We seem to have "no faith in the power of public opin- "ion or in an appeal to the moral "sense of the people. When it comes "to affairs between nations, we build "all our schemes upon force." Is the World Court, is the League of Nations, built upon force?

"When shall we start doing right- "eousness?" asked Mr. BORAH. He is ready to begin in his own way on this continent. To delay or to prevent the infinitely more disastrous wars that may arise in Europe and in the East, wars into which the United States may be dragged and which may affect the world, by setting up tribunals of reason, is a work in which Mr. BORAH will have no American participation. He is as a doctor who should insist on treating for blackheads a patient suffering with cancer. He makes The Forum ring with rhetoric. He offers Mr. COOLIDGE the new Pan-American policy as a means of glory equal to the Monroe Doctrine. "It would fur- "nish to the Old World an inspiring "example in the great cause of sub- "stituting justice and moral coopera- "tion for violence and force in inter- "national affairs." The irony of Mr. BORAH's contribution to moral cooperation will not be lost upon the republics to the south, all but one or two of them members of the League.

WHAT THE MOVIE WANTS.

The report that the Pulitzer Prize play has been barred from the movies may be taken by some as reflecting on the reward and by others as reflecting on the powers that safeguard the silver screen. There is a possibility that both opinions are wrong. As morals are said to be a matter of geography, so taste may depend on a difference of artistic medium. A story that is humanly comprehensible, when developed in dramatic character and speech, even stimulating to sympathy and right thinking, may easily "change or turn to ill" when reduced to the dumb show of the movie studio. What people do is doubtless significant; but judgment must be modified, sometimes reversed, by considering what they essentially are. The rejection of "They Knew What They Wanted" would prove only the artistic limitation of the silent drama.

The propriety of the basic theme of the play rests upon authority higher than any available hereabout. The plight of Tony is precisely that of Giovanni Malatesta when he sent Paolo to win Francesca. For a princely and tragic milieu Mr. HOWARD has substituted broken-English comedy, but human sympathy and comprehension are no less evident than in DANTE's "Galeotto fu il libro e chi lo scrisse."

> Boccaccio was the book, and he who wrote it.
> That day they read in it no more.

When such a theme is stripped of all poetic or dramatic illusion—reduced to mugging, miming and crude captions—little reason remains why people should not be shocked.

Doubtless it is true, as we are so often told, that there is an art of the moving pictures, an art with a future immeasurably great. And it is more than a merely pictorial art, limited to form, composition and graphic line in narrative. Not infrequently a definite mood has been created, as in MAX REINHARDT's macabre fantasies. But there are limits which no genius can break through. It is in the resources of speech that man is most clearly distinguished from the brutes. Granted speech, it is possible to express the utmost subtlety and refinement of character, the supreme elevation of suffering or heroic achievement. Take speech away from art and human conduct sinks inevitably toward the animal level. If we are to be spared the far from moving picture of "They Knew What They Wanted," there is reason for congratulation. When "Without Benefit of Clergy" was filmed, those two young folk of KIPLING's were shown to have been regularly married from the start.

EXCAVATING ARMAGEDDON.

The report comes from Philadelphia that an elaborate archaeological enterprise is on foot—none other than exhuming the remains of ancient Armageddon. The head of the expedition is Dr. C. S. FISHER, who a few years ago uncovered the six cities or villages of Bethshan, buried one upon another and together making the oldest of known inhabited cities. This village sits at the far corner of the plain on whose western verge the fortress city Megiddo once stood. The Canaanitish city guarded the pass between the Plain of Sharon and the Plain of Esdraelon. Here armies have passed to and fro since the days of THOTHMES II, who, it is recorded, found here "magnificent spoils." It was near the streams that come down from the mountains of Megiddo—that is, Armageddon—that BARAK with the help of DEBORAH and the stars fought with the vanquished SISERA. The mother of SISERA waited in vain for "the prey of divers colors of needle- "work, meet for the necks of them "that take the spoil." It was in part to rebuild the walls of the old fortress that SOLOMON made an industrial levy upon the burden bearers and hewers of wood and stone. It was to Megiddo that King AHAZIAH fled with his death wounds and from which his body was borne in his chariot back to Jerusalem for burial. It was here also that King JOSIAH in disguise was "sore wounded," so that he died while taking part in a quarrel between the King of Egypt and the King of Assyria.

The place has memories of kings and emperors, of caravans and armies, in every age of recorded history, down through the days of NAPOLEON to those of Lord ALLENBY of Megiddo, whose final victory was won by his cavalry making their way through this selfsame pass to the Plain of Esdraelon and so surrounding the enemy and compelling surrender. It is a rich field for archaeological study. One with the scholar's eyes can see the pageant pass again to and fro across this stage out of the dim past and understand why the site should be chosen as the place where the "kings of the earth and of the whole world" should be gathered "to "the battle of the great day of GOD "Almighty."

It is more than scholarly curiosity that prompts expenditure for digging up the past. All humanity has a concern in knowing by what way it has come, for only the lamp of the race's experience can throw light upon the way yet to be traversed. It is because Mr. BRYAN and such as he have not been willing to listen to what the archaeologist and geologist, those scientists of the long past, have to tell us, and because they have not been able to see this evolutionary procession out of first days of creation, through numberless "Armageddons" to final triumph, that he made such a pitiable exhibition at Dayton.

HEROISM AND ITS REWARD.

Here in New York heroism is common enough. Some acquire the habit of saving life. It grows upon them and they can't do anything else when the opportunity comes. Perhaps they dream about rescues. But more likely most of them are practical persons of unbounded energy, which kindles into action when anybody is in trouble. As the magnet draws the steel particle, distress or helplessness or peril attracts them. They can't hold back. They do not calculate the chances against them. They do not think of their dependents, nor of fame or reward—they simply dive into the water or plunge into the smoke of a fire or throw themselves into the path of a locomotive to save a human being. A woman screaming in the bay brings a policeman in full uniform down to her aid from the deck of a ferryboat. It is a dark night, but he reaches her, keeps her afloat until, unconscious, he is lifted with her into a rowboat. Every now and then there is a round-up of firemen to present these heroes with medals. Decorations are pinned on their coats, and they look as if the ceremony were unnecessary—self-conscious, sheepish, uncomfortable, not at all heroic. The police have their turn. They, too, have acquired the habit, why the fuss? Does any one suppose a Carnegie Hero could help it, or planned it, or thought of the medal or the money?

A proper specimen of the hero is "Buck" MCNEIL, Battery Dock Master, whose name leads all the rest on the tablet in memory of CHARLES F. MURPHY in the Dock Commissioner's office. The testimony to MCNEIL's all-around usefulness as a life-saver embarrasses by its plenitude. In the day's work he has rescued people just as he would do any job that came his way. "He'll do anything for anybody," says one of his fellow-workers. That is the secret of MCNEIL's heroism, though he doesn't like the word. He does not remember ever being thanked more than once by a salvaged person, but the truth probably is that "Buck" wouldn't stay around to be thanked. Some men are "joiners." MCNEIL is a doer. He is happiest when his muscles are working. His imagination is rather sluggish. "I don't love the sea," he says. "I've "never been further than the Statue "of Liberty. I never swim except to "save a life." Inevitably he is always in training. And yet he never gets bored. Over he goes the next time, as if it were his first rescue. Asked why he, the father of nine children and a breadwinner, should risk his life for ungrateful strangers, he supposes it is just his nature. That is the correct answer, no doubt. "Buck" MCNEIL was not visibly impressed when told that his name was to stand first on the Murphy tablet. "I don't pay much attention to them "frills," he said.

Life-saving seems to be its own reward for persons addicted to it. "Old Dad" (R. J.) FAIRBANKS, the guardian angel of Death Valley, a very leathery, weather-beaten, puckered angel, has gone out more than fifty times to save "strays," but has never got a dollar for it—or wanted pay. ALBERT REED, the beach guard, who calls himself a "wholesale dealer in life," has known only one case of active gratitude, that of a man who comes once a year, "as a kind of religious rite," to hand him five dollars. But TOM LEE, "the crap-shooting negro roustabout who loves his "snort of corn licker," is an exception to the standard hero. When the steamer M. E. Norman foundered in the Mississippi, below Memphis, TOM was quickly on the spot in his ancient motorboat Zev, and at great risk to himself rescued thirty-two men and women. A fund was raised in Memphis for TOM LEE by Mayor PAINE and Editor MOONEY, and he now has a home and garden, and is an honorary member of the guild of engineers. TOM hardly knows what all the fuss was about.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

They Didn't See the Point.

It is a little surprising that two men so sophisticated as Mr. DARROW and WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN should both have been deceived into taking at its face value the pretended attempt of a department clerk in Washington to create there an even bigger sensation than the Scopes trial. To Mr. DARROW it was the work of a fanatic and crank, and to Mr. BRYAN gratifying evidence that the good work done at Dayton was but the beginning of a holy campaign soon to spread all over the country.

Neither of these eminent persons saw, though it ought to have been fairly obvious, that instead of being an advanced Fundamentalist Mr. WITTNER was a determined and ingenious enemy of Fundamentalism, not the less dangerous because possessing a sense of humor, and that his purpose was to apply to Fundamentalism the argument that used to be called "reductio ad absurdum." That purpose, by means of his long list of charges against the school authorities of Washington, he very successfully accomplished, for though every count in his indictment follows in strictly logical sequence from the contentions of Mr. BRYAN and his friends, yet they went far beyond the distance which he and they, or anybody else not absolutely insane or imbecile, would dream of going.

For Mr. WITTNER took care to load his little bomb with points wherein the texts are wrong, and demonstrably wrong, not wrong as a mere matter of opinion. His arraignment, though so solemnly worded, and so solemnly supported by his two lawyers, was deftly calculated to make the literalists ridiculous. He was able, however, to keep a straight and stern face for only a single day. Having excited the amazement he wanted, Mr. WITTNER confessed yesterday that he was a defender of evolution and science in general, not a would-be destroyer of either.

Just what the District courts will think of this merry jest we shall know later, but as a rule courts do not like to be used in such a way.

Issues That Must Be Dodged.

Mr. BRYAN, if pinned right down to it, probably would say that he does not insist on the literal accuracy of all the texts which Mr. WITTNER could quote. He would not like to accept them all, but would prefer to pass lightly over the various implications and assertions to be found in the Bible as to the form of the earth, its age, the origin of all animated creatures except man. He is entitled to protest that in some cases the texts are strained too hard, as concerns, for instance, the elements, but he will not like to discuss these things, and doubtless will prefer to dismiss them as "mysteries."

That will not be strictly fair, but who is in questions of this sort? Nothing is more cruel than to ask a man like Mr. BRYAN to be always and entirely consistent—or any of us, to be frank. Unlike Mr. VOLIVA of Zion City, and the Rev. JOHN JASPER, he accepts the Copernican view of celestial mechanics as correct.

In reality, like many others, he is Fundamentalist only in the domain of the indeterminable, the disputable.

An Unusual Number of Fatalities.

Wednesday's thunderstorms in this vicinity were not of exceptional violence, but it is not remembered when so many people were struck and killed by lightning in the city and near it on that day. Two of the four victims perished because they risked the well-known danger of standing under a tree after the storm broke. In these cases, as so often before, the question arises: Would the trees have been struck if nothing alive had been near them?

Vast numbers of trees, some isolated and others in groups or masses, grow safely for thirty, forty and even a hundred years, and never a bolt falls on them, but one day a man or some sheep or cattle take refuge from the rain under them, and disaster follows. It could be surmised that the tree is struck then because the living bodies offer a comparatively easy path for the relief of an accumulated electric tension that would take another course if the bodies were not present. This is dubious, however, and it takes no account of the vastly greater number of times when shelter under trees is sought and nothing happens.

It is to be remembered, too, that the times when the striking of a tree causes death are remembered, while the other times are forgotten soon.

There is no record of anybody's having been hurt by lightning while in a steel-framed building. The flagstaffs and cornices of such buildings often suffer, but the occupants rarely or never feel even a trivial shock.

But Will the Law Permit It?

Our British cousins seem to have been must disturbed, and to have thought they suffered greatly this week, when the thermometer in London rose to 86. Of course the human reaction to heat, within limits, depends less on absolute temperature than on the condition of the air—whether it is in motion or still, and especially whether it is dry or moist. High humidity always aggravates the effects of a hot wave, while when it is low life is at least tolerable at far above 86.

Over here we do not begin to be excited until the mercury invades the 90s, and the 80s, or most of them, in Summer, pass for fine seasonable weather.

But a mere 86 made English Judges and barristers take off their sacred wigs! That is serious, for it will raise the gravest of doubts as to the validity of anything done by them in court when thus denuded. For, of course, if wigs were not essential to legality in England they would not be worn.

Dinners or Diners at Fault?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your issue of July 10, Mr. Howard Davis voices with no little conviction his theories of "Why Restaurants Fail."

There may be much truth in Mr. Davis's remarks, but has he not been most unfortunate in his tie-up to the recent closing of Browne's Chop House, that quiet but famous old hostelry where the Broadway of yesterday enjoyed its "off parade" dinners?

Mr. Davis believes restaurants fail in New York for just one cause, i. e., because they do not serve good food. I cannot help entertaining a reasonable doubt as to whether Mr. Davis's gormandic adventures ever took him to Browne's Chop House—or, if they did, that he possessed the instinct inherent in most epicures to order the "dish of the house." Had Mr. Davis ever been served with a large and lusciously ripe English mutton chop, prepared as only Browne's could prepare it, or a double-thick filet steak (that had hung for two weeks!), or a mellow brisket of corn beef, accompanied (in the days before cafeterias and speak-easies) by a long draught of amber ale from a pewter mug—had Mr. Davis this memory that we who patronized and enjoyed Browne's Chop House for years and up until the very day of its closing, carry with us—I hardly believe he would have seen an appropriate "lead" in the closing of this particular restaurant for his wail at New York's poor food.

Also based on the ever-growing number of pastry parlors, tea rooms whose mural decorations and costumed waitresses have more "taste" than their food and the phenomenal increase of one-flavored eating bedlams, there are those who might take issue with Mr. Davis on his theory that New Yorkers want better food and declare that the trouble, on the contrary, is that restaurant patrons are seemingly more and more losing whatever flare they may have once possessed for the subtleties and niceties of the culinary art.

Appeal to Stamp Out Leprosy.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Under the direction of Governor General Leonard Wood systematic efforts are being made, both by treatment and by laboratory work, to check and to destroy leprosy in the Philippines. Mrs. H. W. Wade came to the mainland at the request of General Wood to interest as many Americans as possible in this good cause. One million dollars ought to be raised to forward the work in the Culion leper colony. A circular letter from the Governor General says:

> "The investigators there feel that they are on the verge of a discovery which will eventually rid the world of the scourge of leprosy. We can do no more than we are doing without assistance."

I have had a talk with Mrs. Wade, have seen her photographs of the actual conditions, and it seems certain that with financial assistance many sufferers may be cured and the future population saved. Any who are able and willing to give should send money to the War Department at Washington, Bureau of Insular Affairs, Leprosy Relief Fund.

THE UNHORSED BEGGAR.

Pity the poor pedestrian,
Harassed, low-geared, a jumpy man,
Of a rapidly disappearing clan,
Who jaywalks the ways of the world alone,
With the fear in his heart that is bred in his bone;
With no strong arm to aid and abet him,
Knowing full well "they" are bound to get him,
With a furtive smile he essays the feat
Of crossing the modern city street.

Half believing the world's gone phony,
He sallies forth on "shanks's pony"
Staggers and jumps and twists and reels
Through a maze of sinister automobiles.
With a lesioned heart and bated breath,
He dances the "Gasoline Dance of Death";
To the tune of shouts and horn and bell,
He savors the modern pedestrian's hell,
Until the music becomes his knell,
And they park his remains in a shaded dell. . . .

This is the forecast of my story.
Soon, ah, soon, he will wake in glory,
Where he'll join the celestial constabulary,
With a new and embellished vocabulary,
Yes, there they'll make him a traffic cop,
And he'll order the motorists all to stop.
On a golden street he will take his stand,
And blow his whistle, and raise his hand,
And give them "tickets" to beat the band;
And bawl them out to his heart's content,
Until his anathemas are spent.
Yes, there he will enter into his own,
But here, he jaywalks the world alone,
Harassed, low-geared, a jumpy man,
Numbered with those "who also ran,"
Of a rapidly disappearing clan.
So while he lingers in life's brief span,
Pity the poor pedestrian!

A QUESTIONABLE HISTORY.

Professor Vantyne Scores "the Marvelous Story of Us."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

While all American eyes were turned on Dayton, where, as the Hearst papers say, "the Holy War against the apes" was being fought, there came to my attention a two-volume textbook on American history. The aim of the sponsors of this work is to produce a history of the United States to be used everywhere in the United States, so that there will be no difference of opinion as to our past among the youth of the next generation. Its title is so bombastic that it might as well be "The Marvelous Story of Us."

In the pamphlet which accompanies the book we are told that it is prepared under the supervision of the American Legion, with the support and critical aid of the American Federation of Labor, the Order of Elks, the Colonial Sons and Daughters, the Boy Scouts of America, the Daughters of the American Revolution, the Daughters of the Confederacy, the Knights of Pythias, the National Security League, the Confederate Veterans, the Y. M. C. A. and other like organizations. Men appointed by each one of these organizations are said to have gone over the material of this textbook and to have given it their approval. We are told that these representatives are historians or schoolmen of wide repute. I will not say as to the schoolmen, but as to historians I have looked over the entire list which is given and I find not one historian of repute in it. Some who are regarded as jokes by the whole historical fraternity are included, but most of them are persons utterly unknown to the historical expert, whose business it is to know all the historians in his subject in the United States.

There is also added an imposing array of Senators, containing at least one or two well known demagogues and some Chairmen of great national political parties, who, of course, endorse the scheme out of pure policy. No real historian could examine the book ten minutes and not be convinced of the utter futility of the undertaking and realize that it could never be used in actual school conditions. Of course, with so many cooks spoiling the broth they achieved this natural result.

Then there was the manifest absurdity of having it written by a Professor of English, incredible as that may seem. The promoters would never have thought of asking a surgeon to design a house for them or of asking an architect to operate for appendicitis. But they do assume that an English teacher can write it and any demagogic Senator, or a political committeeman, or school superintendent can pass critical judgment upon it.

All of the organizations that have lent their names to this scheme mean well, but they have been deceived by wild-eyed demagogues who sweep them off their feet in national or State meetings and commit them in the hurly-burly of such an assembly to action which is manifest nonsense. When they go home they resume busy lives and think no more about it. In this way the mischief is done.

We have in this plan another effort in another field to do what the Fundamentalists, led by that great baritone, Bryan, was trying to do down at Dayton. The Hearst papers called that the "Holy War against the apes." This is a war against scholarship and the quiet, laborious efforts of historians to learn the truth and to tell it. In both cases we face crises in the intellectual history of this country. That which was a cloud no bigger than a man's hand when Charles Grant Miller began his infamous attack upon the histories written by men who really knew the facts has become a menacing storm, threatening truth wherever it is found.

I have noted many manifest errors and dubious statements as I ran hastily over the part devoted to the American Revolution, but the main trouble is in the organization, and sense of proportion, all those things which only a deep student of history can feel for. One virtue it has which I had not expected. It is not bitterly anti-British. Nevertheless it is so maudlin and sentimental about "our" virtues and "our" superiority to the rest of the world that if universally used "our" next generation would behave like an insufferable cad toward the rest of the world. However, there is little real danger of a universal adoption. The South will prevent that.

Perhaps one of the greatest dangers confronting the American democracy today is the mad effort toward uniformity. This plan represents one more endeavor to that end, and all who have a point of view broad enough to see the danger should unite in preventing its ultimate triumph. The arena for this struggle will be larger than Dayton, but the cause that is at stake will be quite as important.

One View on the Mayoralty.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

You are to be highly commended for your appeal to decency in expression in your editorial in today's issue under the heading "Dogberry and the Mayoralty," and I am sure you accurately express the views of the citizens who read your valued paper. However, your closing sentence says in part:

> "The party managers will try the patience of the city almost to the breaking point if they do not quickly get out of their period of gravely debating who ought not to be Mayor."

I feel that there is some justification for this debating, in view of the fact that there is one whom it would be a crime and a disgrace to impose on the people, the present incumbent, and it may take some argument to convince a few of the misguided of the foolishness of such a course as a renomination.

After they have definitely decided upon the elimination of the unfit, then almost any selection would be an improvement.

A Solution for Elderly Unemployed.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have read the letter in THE TIMES, signed "Citizen," regarding unemployment among elderly persons.

It is regrettable that there is not in New York—and in every other large city, for that matter—some one to do the kind of work done by Victor Gaines in Chicago a few years ago—establish an office to help the older workers find positions. He placed more than 5,000 persons in one year.

It is surely better to keep people producers than to cause them to be a burden on relatives or be supported in institutions at the expense of the taxpayers. The matter is a very serious economic problem, and it is surprising that in this age there seems to be no one to attempt to solve it.

'SUPPORT COOLIDGE' TO BE 1926 SLOGAN

Party Leaders Would Require Pledge of Congressional Nominees to Back President.

COUNT ON HIS POPULARITY

They Consider His Strength With the People and the Economy Program the Party's Chief Assets.

Special to The New York Times.

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., July 23.—"Support President Coolidge" will be the chief plank in the Republican platform in the Congressional elections next year. This decision has been reached by Republican leaders, who say that the great popularity of President Coolidge with the people, due to his tax reduction and economy program, is the party's best asset.

Representative J. William Taylor, National Committeeman of Tennessee, accompanied by Robert R. Church, a member of the Republican Executive Committee of that State, called upon President Coolidge today after a talk with Senator William M. Butler, Chairman of the National Committee, in Boston.

Mr. Taylor suggested that such a slogan in the Congressional elections would be a strong factor in increasing the Republican representation in Congress. Mr. Taylor declared that President Coolidge was very strong in his State and getting stronger every day.

"If he is a candidate again," he said, "he would carry Tennessee, as did Harding in 1920."

Republican leaders who have come here, including Mr. Taylor, are of the opinion that the President's tax policies will be enacted into law, the demand for the Administration programs being so strong that the Democratic Party will not oppose it. In fact several Democratic leaders, including Senators Robinson, Underwood and Glass, it is pointed out, have declared themselves favorable to most of the tax proposals that will be urged by the Republicans, differing with the program only in unessential details.

Leaders Want Some Such Pledge.

The Republican leaders—there have been half a dozen important ones here and in conference with Chairman Butler in Boston—say that the platform for 1926 should be short and embody the plank pledging the Republican nominees for Congress to support the Administration's program.

These leaders declare that the slogan "Support President Coolidge" would have real meaning and be effective, but it is doubtful whether Mr. Coolidge would desire the party to follow such a slogan, as defeat in the 1926 elections with such a plank might work harm to his future plans. Nevertheless all the leaders who have come here, after sounding sentiments in their districts since Congress adjourned in March, are of the opinion that party success demands such a plank.

Mr. Taylor said that he had not talked politics with the President, but that he had gone over the prospects of winning more Republican Congressmen in Tennessee next year with Chairman Butler. His mission here he declined to reveal although it is believed that he took up with the President names of candidates for Federal District Judge in the Western District of Tennessee to succeed the late Judge J. W. Ross, recently killed after his indictment in connection with the failure of a bank.

Lists Candidates for Post.

Mr. Taylor said that he made no recommendation. The candidates in the field he said are, Judge T. A. Lancaster of Lexington, W. R. Landrum of Trenton, Colonel Harry B. Anderson of Memphis, Walsell Randolph of Memphis, Federal Attorney Murray and P. W. Maddox.

As to the report that he would offer a bill to make Tennessee's anti-evolution bill a Federal statute Mr. Taylor said that he had declined to sponsor such a bill.

"While I am a Fundamentalist," he said, "I believe that a similar bill for the country would do the church and Christianity more harm than good."

He does not believe that there will be any serious move to pass such a Federal law.

Senator Butler was an overnight guest at White Court. He came here to discuss political conditions in the West with the President and to make a report upon the developments in the wheat belt, especially Minnesota and North Dakota. After Labor Day, Mr. Butler will tour the West in an effort to sound sentiment within the party organizations. He had a long talk with Senator Curtis before his departure this morning.

Cuno H. Rudolph, President of the District Commissioners, accompanied by Mrs. Rudolph, called at White Court today and left their cards.

Appointments made by the President today are W. Irving Glover to be Second Assistant Postmaster General and Robert S. Regar to be Third Assistant. The following United States District Attorneys in Pennsylvania were reappointed: Andrew B. Dunsmore, Middle District; John B. Meyer, Western District, and George W. Coles, Eastern District.

WORK ASKS INDIAN INQUIRY.

Puts Oklahoma Neglect Charges Before Commissioners.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—Following repeated attacks on the administration of Indian affairs in Oklahoma, Secretary of the Interior Work today ordered a full investigation by the Board of Indian Commissioners, an independent organization unconnected with either the Federal or Oklahoma State Governments.

Secretary Work's request for an inquiry addressed to George Vaux Jr., Chairman of the Board of Indian Commissioners, reads as follows:

> "The Government has been charged from time to time with negligence in the administration of Indian affairs in Oklahoma.
>
> "These reiterated charges and counter charges give rise to a desire on my part to have a competent body of observers, such as is to be found in the membership of your board, and unconnected with the Department of the Interior, formulate their views after proper inquiry into the situation for the benefit of the administrative and legislative branches of the

MURIEL VANDERBILT PLANS LAWN FETES

Newport Shows Keen Interest in Weather for Saturday's Wedding.

GUESTS ARE ARRIVING

Bride-to-Be's Father Is There—Efrem Zimbalist Will Play for the Ceremony.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 23.—The weather having cleared after the storm of Wednesday night, it is the hope of all concerned that it will continue for the Church-Vanderbilt wedding on Saturday afternoon at Beachmound. While the wedding ceremony is to be performed indoors it is planned to have much of the reception festivities on the lawn, giving ample room for the 200-odd guests expected.

William K. Vanderbilt, father of the bride-to-be, arrived yesterday. The bridegroom-elect, Frederick Cameron Church Jr., and his parents and other members of his family are expected today, while the rest of his guests will arrive on Saturday morning and will be in Newport in plenty of time for the ceremony, the reception that is to follow and for the ball that Count and Countess Szechenyi are to give Saturday evening at the Whitney estate, the guests at which will probably number closer to 500 than to the 250 that was originally expected.

Mr. Church is to have as his best man a classmate of his at Harvard in 1922, Robert T. Paine Jr. of Boston. The his ushers are to be is not known at the present.

It was learned also yesterday that Efrem Zimbalist of New York would play for the wedding ceremony.

Most of the wedding guests will, in all probability, be present at the dance that Mr. and Mrs. James B. Duke are giving at Rough Point this evening. It will be their first large entertainment at Rough Point since they rebuilt the estate, once the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Vanderbilt and Mr. and Mrs. William B. Leeds.

Hermann Oelrichs, a cousin of Miss Vanderbilt, arrived last evening for the wedding.

BRITISH DOCTOR URGES EXPOSURE OF LIMBS

Dr. Hill Says Short Skirts and Trousers, and No Stockings, Will Benefit Health.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 23.—Another grave conflict threatens between science and religion. While the Pope is issuing edicts against insufficient covering of the epidermis by women, Dr. Leonard Hill, speaking before the British medical conference at Bath today, came to the defense of low necks, short skirts and thin stockings. Always from the scientific point of view and disregarding either art or religion, the doctor said that men might well gain a good deal from wearing short trousers.

The lower the necks and the shorter the skirts and the thinner the stockings the better, declared the doctor, so far as health is concerned. He explained that the main point is to get as many ultra-violet rays as possible into our clothing. Women with short skirts and thin stockings or, better, no stockings at all, get a great many more beneficial rays than men with their high collars and long trousers.

For man and woman alike, said Dr. Hill, there is nothing better than exposure of the lower leg to sunshine and cool air, although he mentioned the danger of chilblains in Winter. He urged that dressmakers incorporate knowledge of physiological facts into their making of new styles and never lose sight of the benefits of sunlight and ventilation.

V. B. Hubbell Gets License to Wed.

Special to The New York Times.

STAMFORD, Conn., July 23.—A marriage license was issued here today to Vincent B. Hubbell, a merchant of New York City, and Mrs. Irene Emroff of New York City. Both have been married before and divorced. The bride-elect described herself as the daughter of Count Scardech Wazinsky and Princess Elizabeth Cloevsky, and said she was born in Petrograd, Russia. She gave her age as 33 years. The bridegroom's age is 60. He was born in Hartford, Conn., and is the son of Gershon B. Hubbell and Cornelia Mallory.

Army-Navy Staffs to Hear "Aida."

Major Gen. Charles P. Summerall and staff and Read Admiral Charles P. Plunkett and staff will be the chief guests at the performance of "Aida" tonight by the Municipal Opera Company, at the Polo Grounds. Among those who will be heard in the production are Mmes. Carmela Ponselle and Dreda Aves, Wellem Gustafson, Mario Valle and Luigi della Molle. A large orchestra will be conducted by Cesare Sodero. There will also be a large chorus and ballet.

Lillian Colliver to Wed.

Mr. and Mrs. Burton Colliver of this city and Mountain Lakes, N. J., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Lillian Ines Colliver, to Frederick T. Mohn of Detroit, Mich. Miss Colliver is a direct descendant of Josiah Bartlett and Robert Morris, both signers of the Declaration of Independence. Mr. Mohn is a graduate of the University of Michigan and the Detroit College of Law. No date has been set for the wedding.

Dance Recital Tonight.

A free public dance recital will be given at Town Hall this evening by seventy-eight teachers of dancing who have just completed the special summer normal course at the Chalif School. Louis Chalif, director of the school, has arranged a representative program of interpretative, Oriental, character, national and toe dancing. The music for the recital will be furnished by Miss Elisabeth Gilfillan and Jascha Samoon, pianists, and Albert Miller's Gypsy String Trio.

Helen I. Murray Betrothed.

Mrs. David Murray of Binghamton, N. Y., has announced the engagement of her youngest daughter, Miss Helen Irvin Murray, to Dr. Mieciesław Openchowski, formerly surgeon in the Grand Duke Michael's division of the Russian Army and in the Russian expeditionary force in France. Dr. Openchowski is now practicing in Newark, N. J. No date has been set for the wedding.

Mayers-Unger Wedding Plans.

The wedding of Miss Rita Unger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Unger of 2,225 Edison Avenue, Detroit, Mich., to William Mayers of New York City will take place on Thursday, Aug. 6, at the home of the bride's parents. A reception will follow the ceremony.

Mrs. Frank Merrall will act as judge of the pet dog show and will award a silver cup to the owner of the best dog. Over seven hundred animals have been entered. Mrs. John Cole is Chairman of the Dog Show Committee, and will be assisted by Mrs. Rodney Burnett, Mrs. Robert Martin, Mrs. De Gray Vanderbilt, Mrs. Frances Hyde, Miss Grace Cody, Miss Betty Detwiller and Mrs. L. Keim. Mrs. Lion Gardiner is Chairman of the rummage booth, Mrs. Louis Dela Munds of the novelty booth and Mrs. Edward Perot of the box booth. Miss Dorothy Quick will be in charge of the grab bag. It is expected that many Southampton residents will motor to East Hampton for the fair and for the festivities there this evening.

Mrs. Robert B. Minis and her daughter, Miss Estelle L. Minis, have arrived at the Irving.

Eugene G. Grace has come from Bethlehem, Pa., to visit his family for a few days at Meadowmere, the Henry G. Trevor villa.

Mrs. Adrian H. Larkin and Mrs. Edward H. Van Ingen are among those who will entertain at dinner this evening.

The surf was too rough for bathing yesterday, but there was a crowd on the sand, including Mrs. John L. Middleton and Mrs. Henry P. Rogers, who arrived recently and who were on the beach for the first time.

Southampton Summer residents are contributing to the fund being raised to maintain the Rogers Memorial Library, at Main Street and Job's Lane. Among those who have already contributed are Samuel L. Parrish, Albert B. Boardman, Mrs. Lucien H. Tyng, Mrs. Thomas H. Barber, Mrs. Edward Derose, Frederick A. Snow, Adlan H. Larkin, Mrs. P. A. Valentine and Mrs. Robert Walter.

BARING OUT ON BAIL, SEEKS NEW BUSINESS

Will Remain Here Until New Trial on Charge of Attempting to Poison Wife Is Called.

Clarence O. Baring of White Plains, who was sent to the State Asylum for the Insane at Matteawan after he had confessed that he had attempted to poison his wife, and released from that institution recently as sane, is now staying at the Hotel Majestic. He arrived in New York Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Almeda Drake, Christian Science practitioner, says that Baring was brought back to a normal state of mind through her treatments.

Baring, who is 41 years old, looks in the best of health and shows no effects of the year he spent in the institution for the insane. He went to a motion picture theatre last evening with Mrs. Drake and her husband, W. N. Drake. He remained for a time in the lobby of the hotel last evening, but Mrs. Drake, who is still treating him, would not allow him to be interviewed.

According to Mrs. Drake, Baring contemplates opening new business in this city. At the time of his arrest he was Eastern salesmanager for the Indianapolis Heat Regulator Company.

Mrs. Drake was asked whether she would try to effect a reconciliation between Baring and his wife.

"No," she replied, "that is a matter that is in the hands of God."

In reply to other questions, she said that she was sure Baring had the right attitude in that matter. Mrs. Baring, she said, was at present out of town.

Baring was sent to Matteawan in 1924 after a sanity commission had pronounced him insane and so ended his trial for the attempt to kill his wife that he might marry another. He was officially declared sane last week. He was sent back to White Plains and held in $10,000 bail for another trial on the same charge.

MALONE TALKS AT FOLLIES.

Spotted by Will Rogers, He Dwells Briefly on Scopes Trial.

Dudley Field Malone, one of the attorneys in the defense of John Thomas Scopes in the evolution trial at Dayton, Tenn., returned yesterday and last night slipped into a stage box at the Summer edition of the Ziegfeld Follies. When Will Rogers came on and began to chew gum and toss his lariat and quips he observed Malone.

The comedian summoned Malone, amid applause, to the stage and introduced him. The attorney responded with a brief speech, in which he characterized the result of the trial as a "victorious defeat" for the defense. He said that the trial would accomplish a great deal, one of its results, as he saw it, being that "future generations will know the truth." He briefly described the life in Dayton during the trial.

"Although we went down South," he remarked, jestingly, "we insisted upon retaining our Northern ideas."

SMITH WRITES ON ETHICS.

Consists of Good Deeds Well Done, He Tells Rotarians.

The best code of ethics lies in ethical deeds well done, Governor Alfred E. Smith declared in a letter to the Brooklyn Rotary Club, which was read yesterday at a special meeting to discuss widespread dissemination of the business ethics of international Rotary.

"We are a people who do not harbor secretiveness nor brook secrecy in our dealings with one another," the Governor said. "Unless Rotarians declare at all times the true facts of their business affairs and live up to their protestations of truthful living and the revelation of the facts of their business policies and principles, Rotary will not and cannot achieve its ultimate purpose to serve the world."

Would Bar South Dakota as Oil Rival

ST. PAUL, July 23 (F).—W. H. Oppenheimer, representing the White Eagle Oil Company, announced here today that the company is preparing to start action in the Federal court in South Dakota to keep that State from retailing gasoline in competition with privately-owned filling stations.

Josephthals to Give a Dinner.

Rear Admiral and Mrs. Louis M. Josephthal will give a dinner tonight at All View, their Summer home at Premium Point, New Rochelle, for the officers of the U. S. S. Isherwood. Later they will take their guests to a dance at the New Rochelle Yacht Club.

LEGLESS WOMAN GONE; HUSBAND MYSTIFIED

Circus Performer Left With Man in Taxi, Janitor Says, as Mate Sought a Job for Her.

A general alarm was sent out from police headquarters last night for Mrs. John De Fuller, known in circus side shows as "Gabrielle, the only living half-woman in the world." Mrs. De Fuller is 46 years old and was born without legs. She is 2 feet 8 inches high and weighs 128 pounds.

Her disappearance was reported last night to detectives of the West Forty-seventh Street Station by her husband. John De Fuller of 156 West Sixty-fifth Street, who is also her manager. De Fuller, a strapping man over six feet tall, told the police he could give no reason for his wife's action.

When he left home at noon yesterday to go to Rockaway Beach, where an engagement was being sought for "Gabrielle," he said, his wife was sitting in a wheel chair and appeared perfectly happy. But when he returned he found that she had left with her two trunks, in which were all her costumes, and had taken all her jewelry, valued at $2,000, and $100 in cash.

The janitor of the house said that Mrs. De Fuller had been seen leaving in a taxicab with a man just after 1 o'clock. The janitor said he thought the man was De Fuller and paid no further attention to the pair.

De Fuller insisted that his wife had not eloped. He was certain, also, that she had not been kidnapped. Whoever took her from the apartment, he said, had to carry her, and if she had been carried out against her will she would certainly have screamed for help.

ASSAIL TAX ON FOODSTUFFS

German Socialists and Reds Unite to Oppose Government Plan.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, July 23.—The Communists and Socialists, who were the bitterest political enemies for many months, have buried the hatchet and joined forces against the Government party leaders' proposals for import duties on foodstuffs.

The first public proclamation of this union between the two formerly opposed parties takes the form of a monster demonstration to be held tomorrow in the Lustgarten, which is considered a neutral ground for political expression, similar to London's Hyde Park.

Count Kanitz, Minister of Agriculture, argues that Germany's farmers need a protective tariff in order to enable them to compete in the markets of America, Russia and Argentina and that a protective tariff will not work hardships on the laborers, since it is proposed to effect a price control, cutting down the middlemen's profits, which are now extraordinarily high.

Unless the Communists get their demands for legislation cheapening foodstuffs, it is possible that Count Kanitz will experience bread riots like those which broke out during the '90s, when his father was Imperial Agricultural Minister and aroused the workers to the rioting pitch by increasing bread prices by reducing the size of the loaf.

Tomorrow's demonstration will be the first of great importance since the repeal of the law which forbade open demonstrations.

GIRL TO SHOW JIU-JITSU.

Miss Charlotte Vanderlip in Benefit for College at Tokio.

Miss Charlotte Vanderlip, debutante daughter of Frank A. Vanderlip, will appear as an exponent of jiu-jitsu next Saturday afternoon at the Japanese Garden Party in the Towers Garden at Jackson Heights for the benefit of Tauda College in Tokio. Miss Vanderlip will demonstrate how the modern girl skilled in jiu-jitsu can protect herself.

Other features will include tennis matches between members of the Japanese Davis Cup team, exhibitions of fencing, fan painting, dances by Michiro Itow and Company and the Denishawn Dancers, Japanese one-act plays, and singing by Miss Haru Onuki, the Japanese prima donna.

"Roxy's Gang" to Continue.

Although S. L. Rothafel, known to radio fans as "Roxy," will relinquish his position as manager of the Capitol Theatre on Saturday, the group of artists known as "Roxy's Gang" will continue as members of the theatre's cast and will broadcast as usual on Sunday nights over WEAF and a chain of allied stations. Major Edward Bowes, managing director of the theatre, may take over "Roxy's" duties at the microphone, including the presentation of the broadcasts.

DR. FREUD TO HEAD WORLD FOUNDATION

Originator of Psychoanalysis Accepts Chairmanship of Body to Promote His Theories.

WILL EXPOSE "FAKES" HERE

Governing Board Will Be Half European and Half American—Fund Is Being Raised.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, July 23.—It was announced today that Professor Sigmund Freud, originator of psychoanalysis, has accepted the chairmanship of the International Psychoanalytical Foundation being organized by his friends in New York. The organization will be devoted to the furtherance of true psychological knowledge along Freudian lines and to combating the fake psychoanalysis now said to be rampant in the United States. Funds for this purpose are now being raised.

In a letter to Edward L. Bernays of New York, who is now in Vienna, to discuss the foundation with Dr. Freud, the latter accepts the offer of the chairmanship and expresses satisfaction over the scheme. He says, however, that he does not desire to assume all responsibility, and suggests that a governing committee be appointed of equal numbers of Europeans and Americans. The letter, which, by the way, is the first statement signed by Dr. Freud to be issued to the press in many years, continues:

"Such a foundation in my opinion would have three purposes:

"First, the maintenance and enlargement of the existing psychoanalytical institutions at Berlin and Vienna as both clinical and educational institutions, completing the education of physicians in psychoanalysis and making psychoanalytical treatment available to people without means. I hope closer acquaintance with these institutions will induce Americans to create similar ones in their own country and thus put an end to the frequent misuse of psychoanalysis there.

"The second purpose is the maintenance of a psychoanalytic press, publishing all our literature.

"The third purpose is the carrying out of a publicity campaign which, with earnest, decent methods, will disseminate the true character and value of psychoanalysis."

The European half of the governing committee of the foundation consists of Dr. Sittingen, founder of the Berlin Polyclinic; Dr. Alexander Pereszel, the Hungarian psychoanalyst; Dr. Karl Abraham, President of the International Psychoanalytic Association, and Joseph Storfer.

The American members will be announced soon. A prominent New York banker has accepted the treasurership.

A scholarship to send Americans to Europe to study psychoanalysis at its source is also planned, Mr. Bernays said.

Dr. A. A. Brill and Dr. C. P. Oberdorf, psychoanalysts, who are among the leading interpreters of Dr. Freud in this country, could not be reached last night to discuss the announcement from Vienna. Alfred B. Kuttner, a translator of Dr. Freud's books, said that while he had not heard of the plans for the formation of the foundation, he was heartily in favor of it as a means of curbing "quack" psycoanalysists. Associates of Edward L. Bernays were not available for discussion of the announcement.

CRITICIZES MODERN WOMAN.

London Doctor Says Many Wreck Health by Fast Living.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 23.—Criticism of certain types of society women who "rattle around" too much and seek refuge in stimulants was made today by Dr. Hugh Crichton Miller, a well known neuro-pathologist, testifying in the divorce suit brought by Baldwin Raper, formerly a member of Parliament, against his wife, who was the Marquess of Conyngham before he married her.

Dr. Miller told how he saw Lady Conyngham in May, 1922, just before her second marriage and found her in an excitable uncontrollable condition. "It was very difficult to get anything consecutive out of her," he said. "I was very much impressed with her incapacity to take seriously the realities of life. I told her that she was on the eve of being married and that she had been rattling about a great deal too much and using alcohol to get through her life of undue excitement. I told her that if she was contemplating marriage it was time she realised she should mend her ways."

Continuing, Dr. Miller said that his description would apply to a number of modern women. "I see many to whom it exactly applies," he declared. "Very few of them are happily married, I may add."

HYLAN SCHOOLS END TO END

So Placed, They'd Reach From Battery to 135th Street, Mills Says.

Statistics of the "end to end" variety were used last night by Commissioner of Plant and Structures William Wirt Mills in an address before the Ridgewood (Queens) Community Club to illustrate his claims for the growth of New York's public school system under the Hylan Administration.

"If all the public elementary and high schools built under the present Administration were placed end to end," he said, "they would reach from the Battery to 135th Street."

A motion picture version of Mayor Hylan's volume, "Seven Years of Progress," was shown to illustrate the Commissioner's remarks.

Receivers for Darlington Club.

Special to The New York Times.

MAHWAH, N. J., July 23.—Vice Chancellor Griffin has appointed Judge Charles M. Egan of Jersey City and Frank M. Smith of Allendale receivers of the Darlington Country Club here. Smith was appointed in the place of William M. Bill. The club formerly was the late George A. Crocker's estate, and was recently purchased from Emerson McMillan.

Lieut. O'Connor Made a Captain.

Police Commissioner Enright yesterday promoted Lieutenant Joseph O'Connor to the captaincy of the Wakefield station in the Bronx. The new Captain had been serving at a Brooklyn precinct. His promotion occasioned surprise in police circles, as the commissioner passed him twice on a previous list.

Mrs. Wilson Leases Geneva Villa.

GENEVA, July 23.—Mrs. Woodrow Wilson has leased a handsome villa on the shore of Lake Geneva, near the League of Nations headquarters, intending to spend the Autumn in Geneva in order to attend the Assembly meetings.

BIARRITZ BANS BARE KNEES

Highest French Courts Uphold New Drastic Bathing Rules at Resort.

BIARRITZ, July 23.—Biarritz has placed a ban on nude knees. The Basque City Fathers have issued stringent regulations concerning the costumes in which men and women bathers may dip in the ocean and display themselves on the sands.

Many may think the rules are too drastic and the famous beach may lack bathers if they are enforced, said a prominent Frenchman connected with the tourist hotel industry today. Bathing suits must be ample. Trunks are barred for men, who must not wear clinging material. Women's bathing dresses must reach from the neck to below the knees. All decolcte effects are prohibited.

The city's right to enforcement was challenged, but the highest judicial bodies in France, the Court of Cassation and the Council of State, both held that the rules were in order, although deciding that the municipality exceeded its powers when fining people one franc who did not use the municipal bathing establishment for undressing.

AIRPLANE FOR DEATH RACE.

Curtiss Company Offers Machine to Marshalls in Dash to Dying Son.

The Curtiss Aeroplane Company sent a radio yesterday to the Cunard liner Aquitania offering to have a fast airplane meet the ship when she docks this morning to rush Mr. and Mrs. Rody B. Marshall of Pittsburgh to Wakefield, R. I., where their 18-year-old son Rody is dying of a broken neck.

Mr. and Mrs. Marshall were in Europe when they learned that their son had been injured diving off the Narragansett pier and was in the South County Hospital at Wakefield in a hopeless condition. They caught the Aquitania in a race to get to his bedside before his death and arranged to have a fast motor car take them from the pier to Wakefield.

When officers of the Curtiss company read of the case yesterday they wireless the steamer offering to have a plane carry the couple on the last lap of their race but last night they had received no answer. It was said at the Garden City plant that an airplane would be ready to make the trip if Mr. and Mrs. Marshall should desire to use it when they arrive this morning.

REPORTS NEW WIRELESS.

British Inventor Asserts It Will Cheapen Communication.

LONDON, July 23.—A new and cheaper means of wireless communication between New York and London is promised by a London firm which has applied at the British postoffice and the district radio supervisor for New York for a concession to transmit, receive and deliver messages at a rate not exceeding sixpence a word. The report of the British postoffice engineer is stated to be satisfactory.

The invention does away, it is said, with the valve hitherto indispensable in continuous wave wireless. The inventor asserts that with apparatus costing $1,000 and a maximum power supply of a quarter kilowatt it is possible not only to communicate with any wireless station in the world but to do this constantly at any hour. With a power of a half kilowatt the same is claimed for radio telephony. All the plant, it is said, could be accommodated in a small room and for distances of 5,000 miles an indoor aerial would suffice.

SEEK RIGHTS IN MARRIAGE.

Austrian Women Would Substitute Parental for Paternal Power.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, July 23.—Full equality for Austrian women in marriage is proposed in a bill just submitted by two Social Democratic women members of the Austrian Parliament, Mrs. Popp and Mrs. Proft.

The bill, incorporating several features of laws existing in various American States, provides that Austrian women married to foreigners may retain their citizenship. A couple may decide whether to bear the man's name or the woman's, or both.

The place of residence can be selected only by mutual agreement. Obligation to support children devolves upon both parents in equal measure. The bill also proposes to substitute parental power for paternal power everywhere in the Austrian civil code.

FIX DATE FOR OCEAN FLIGHT

Airmen Plan to Hop Off in Paris for New York on Aug. 25.

The start of the Paris-to-New York non-stop flight of Paul Tarascon and Francis Coli, French aviators, has been set for Aug. 25, according to a cablegram received yesterday by the World Traveler Magazine here. In the message the aviators asked magazine officials to register them as fliers in this country and meet all other conditions necessary to make them eligible to claim a prize of $25,000 offered by Raymond Orteig through the National Aeronautic Association.

The flight will be made in a plane with a single engine, and the wheel gear will be dropped after taking off to eliminate weight. For a landing the men will depend on toboggans designed to slide on the grass. The aviators expect to land at the Westchester Biltmore Country Club at Rye.

IDLEHOURBUYERS REVEALED

Detroit Men Acquired Vanderbilt Estate for Building Lots.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, July 23.—The identities of the members of the syndicate of business men that has purchased Idlehour, the 800-acre estate of the late William K. Vanderbilt at Oakdale, L. I., were learned here today. The syndicate is headed by Edward J. Strata of Strata & Davis of this city. The others are Morris Friedberg, Harry H. Kauffman, B. Moss, H. Weitsman, B. Berk and N. Yin of Detroit and Andrew Guller of Brooklyn.

A greater part of the property will be cut up into building lots, according to Mr. Strata. For the present, it is understood, no change will be made in the $2,000,000 dwelling on the estate. It may become a clubhouse if plans are followed to build a golf course.

LONDON, July 23.—Fresh fuel for the old controversy over whether golf is a dangerous game is provided by the strange death from lightning yesterday of Lawrence Smith of Sutton.

Mr. Smith's body was found this morning 300 yards from the golf club house. He was on his way home in a thunder storm after a round of golf, with his clubs over his shoulder. The clubs attracted the lightning. Mr. Smith's body showed burns on the left side from the head down.

SCOUTMASTER DROWNS WORKING ON A CAMP

Jersey Man Was a National Executive—Five Others Perish in Waters.

Ralph Thompson of 131 Belmont Avenue, Paterson, N. J., Department Commander of the Boy Scouts of America and Scoutmaster of Troop 5 of Paterson, was drowned on Wednesday evening in Greenwood Lake. According to word received by his parents yesterday he was working on a dock under construction at the Boy Scout camp when he fell into the water. He was alone at the time and it was not until an hour later that his companions missed him. His body was recovered. Mr. Thompson was 24 years old and a son of William Thompson.

Marion C. Conover, 19 years old, of 153 Leighton Street and Clarence Scott, 16, of 72 Bank Street, both of Red Bank, were drowned in the Shrewsbury River yesterday. They were on the riverfront near Bank street when the girl fell into the water. Scott reached out and found and the girl grasped it, pulling him into the river. Neither could swim.

Charles Piorkowski, 11 years old, with some companions of his own age, went in swimming in the Passaic River near Riverbank Park, Newark, last night. The boy dove into deep water and did not come up. The other boys, after waiting some time, ran to Piorkowski's home and told his mother. She summoned two policemen and went with them to the river front. They found several men diving for the body. Last night the police were grappling for the body.

Chester Knowles, 23 years old, of Parsons, Pa., was drowned at the foot of Leaming Avenue, Wildwood, N. J. Knowles was in swimming with Miss Helen Morton of 1,114 South Forty-seventh Street, Philadelphia, when both were carried out beyond their depth. The woman's screams attracted other bathers who rescued her, unconscious. Knowles was carried further out and could not be rescued.

TEANECK, N. J., July 23 (F).—Exhausted after his attempts to save the life of a young woman companion at a Sunday School picnic at Rionda's Pond, Cresskill, this afternoon and unnoticed during the excitement that followed her rescue, Herbert Spencer, 15 years old, of Teaneck, sank to the bottom of the pool and was drowned. It is thought that the drowning resulted from an overstraining of the heart. The girl who was saved was Elisabeth Zeigler of Teaneck.

ARTIST SCORES EBERT BUST

German Sculptor Says It Fails to Do Justice to Late President.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, July 23.—The controversy about the bust of the late President Ebert is assuming proportions rivaling the affairs of Saint-Gaudens's statue of Lincoln in London or the heated arguments that concerned the attempt to hang Lady Astor's picture in the House of Commons.

After an armistice had been declared between the members of the Reichstag and the Reichstag Decorations Committee, following a bitter difference about placing Ebert's bust in the Reichstag, first relegating the statue of Bismarck or some other noted statesman to the attic, artists have now taken up the fight.

Professor Lederer, sculptor and art critic, asserts the bust of Ebert as made by George Kolbe is unfitted to grace the Reichstag or to honor the President. Superficial workmanship, a lack of deep conception, no resemblance to Ebert and a dozen other alleged faults are found by Lederer.

Some artists suggest professional jealousy is causing Lederer to attack Kolbe, while others think the sculptors are doomed to a bad year, recalling the Reisinger case, the refusal of the city there to allow the unveiling of the monument to Nurmi.

Esthonian Waters Yield Blocks Considered Prehistoric Relics.

LONDON, July 23.—Archaeologists and historians in the Baltic States are greatly interested in the appearance of a number of seaweed-covered granite blocks near the shore of Pernau, Esthonia.

Dredging machines are bringing blocks to the surface from a depth of forty feet, and professors of the University of Latvia assert that the blocks belong to prehistoric times and were part of some building which has sunk below the level of the sea.

The blocks are of exceptionally fine workmanship and unaffected by long submersion. Despite the significance which archaeologists see in the blocks, public authorities are breaking them up and using them to make roads.

SAYS NORWAY IS FRIENDLY.

Envoy, at Farewell Dinner, Lauds American Business Enterprise.

Thomas C. Desmond, President of T. C. Desmond & Co., gave a farewell dinner last night at the University Club, 1 West Fifty-Fourth Street, to Wilhelm Morgenstierne of the Norwegian Foreign Office, who is sailing for Norway in a few days.

Mr. Morgenstierne spoke of the friendly relations, both political and commercial, which exist between Norway and the United States, mentioning that there are two million Norwegians in the United States—as many as in Norway. Speaking of the recent Norwegian loan floated here, he said that its success was due to American business enterprise.

Following his talk, there was a general discussion of industrial relations between the two countries.

Professor Adolph Lazarus.

BERLIN, July 23 (Jewish Telegraph Agency).—Professor Adolph Lazarus, the favorite pupil of Dr. Ehrlich, died here yesterday at the age of 58. Professor Lazarus collaborated with Professor Ehrlich on several important works on the diseases of the blood and particularly in his standard work on anemia, published in 1900. When Prof. Ehrlich prepared the second edition of this book in 1910 the revision was entrusted to Professor Lazarus. In 1922 Professor Lazarus published the biography of Dr. Ehrlich.

Mrs. Cora V. Witherspoon.

Mrs. Cora Victoria Witherspoon, mother of Herbert Witherspoon, singer, and widow of the Rev. Orlando Witherspoon, died of paralysis yesterday at the age of 86 years at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Wallace M. Scudder, 25 Madison Avenue, Morristown, N. J. Funeral services will be held in St. James's Church, Derby, Conn., on Saturday at 3 P. M.

HAMMONTON, N. J., July 23.—Mrs. Anna Katharine Camp, who a week ago celebrated her ninety-seventh birthday anniversary, died today at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Thomas H. Murphine of Bridgeton. Mrs. Camp is survived by 140 descendants. Of her eleven children six still survive, and twelve great-great grandchildren.

A. C. JEWITT DIES IN WEST.

Grand Commander of Massachusetts Knights Templar.

SPOKANE, Wash., July 23 (F).—Grand Commander Asa C. Jewitt of the Knights Templar of Rhode Island and Massachusetts, died this morning in Glacier National Park, according to a private dispatch received here from C. M. Dunbar, a member of his party, en route to the triennial conclave of the Knights Templar at Seattle. Commander Jewitt's home was in Newton Centre, Mass.

The message said Mr. Dunbar was returning home with the body and that the rest of the party would continue to Seattle.

Ask Priests to Cardinal's Requiem.

All of the priests in the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of New York have been invited to a solemn high requiem mass for Cardinal Begin, Archbishop of Quebec and Primate of Canada, to be sung at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning in the Church of St. Jean Baptiste, Lexington Avenue and Seventy-sixth Street. This will be at the same hour that the funeral of the Cardinal will be held in the Basilica of Quebec. The celebrant of the local mass will be the Right Rev. John J. Dunn, Auxiliary Bishop of New York.

Services for George G. Haven.

Private funeral services were held yesterday morning in St. George's Chapel, Stuyvesant Square, for George G. Haven, banker, of 3 East Fifty-third Street. Many relatives and friends attended the services. The Rev. Dr. Karl Reiland officiated. Burial was at Greenwood Cemetery, Brooklyn.

GUTTERSON HUNTED IN NEW SWINDLE

Search of His Home Reveals He Is Charged With Defrauding Man Out of $90,000 Up-State.

CALLED LEADER OF GANG

Four of His Alleged Confederates Caught—Suspect Is Out on Bail on Charge of Robbing Aged Woman.

A rumor that Walter Gutterson, whose stock-selling activities have more than once got him into trouble, was hiding in the attic of his home, at 601 Avenue J, Brooklyn, caused two officers of the State constabulary and a detective to make a thorough search of the place yesterday, in spite of indignant protests by Mrs. Gutterson. Later it was disclosed at the State Attorney General's office, 66 Broadway, that Gutterson was wanted on a Tioga County (N. Y.) indictment charging him and eight others with having defrauded a former cashier and a heavy depositor in the Nichols National Bank, at Nichols, N. Y., out of $90,000.

Gutterson, about 30 years old, who was a member of several stock-selling firms now defunct, once served thirty days after pleading guilty to a charge of using the mails to defraud. He was alleged to have got $500,000 out of that scheme. He did business for a while as Oppenheim & Co. at 67 Wall Street, against whom several suits were filed by persons who charged they had been swindled.

He got into trouble again as a member of Harrison & Co., brokers, at 20 Broad Street, when that firm's offices were raided on March 2, 1923, by Police Inspector Coughlin. He is now at liberty under $10,000 bail on an indictment alleging the theft of $50,000 from Mrs. Mary E. Cowan, who is more than 70 years old and who lives at 82 Greenridge Avenue, White Plains. He called her "mother," it was said, and induced her to part with gilt-edged securities for practically worthless stock.

Ottinger's Suit Recalled.

When Gutterson was doing business as the United American Bond and Mortgage Company, at 19 West Forty-fourth Street, he was sued by State Attorney General Ottinger to restrain him from alleged fraudulent practices. A receiver was appointed by Supreme Court Justice William H. Hagarty, in Brooklyn.

The Tioga County indictment, the latest against Gutterson, was handed up June 5, but as he was at large, it did not become publicly known until yesterday that he was one of the nine defendants named in that true bill. The Attorney General's office now charges he is the ringleader of the gang and the master mind of a well organized outfit of stock swindlers.

Four of his co-defendants have been arrested and are at liberty under $10,000 bail each. They are Jerome Pomeroy, P. H. Lennon, Peter Janis and W. P. Whitaker, all of this city. Their street addresses are not known at the Attorney General's office here.

They are charged with having induced J. R. Edsall, formerly cashier at the Nichols National Bank, and John Fenderson, wealthy lumber merchant and a big depositor in the bank, to pay them $90,000 for stock in the Interstate Mortgage Company, with which Francis M. Hugo, formerly Secretary of State for New York, was prominently associated. Gutterson and his co-defendants are alleged to have sold this stock, which was not listed on the New York Stock Exchange, for $50 a share whereas it was not worth more than $2 a share.

Say Loss Killed Victim.

It is charged that after Edsall, who died about a month ago as a result, it is said, of worry and depression over his losses, and Fenderson had taken small lots of this stock, they were telephoned to by members of Gutterson's gang, who would represent that they were calling from Chicago and elsewhere, and say that a wealthy buyer was on the wire and wanted a large block of Interstate Mortgage at $75 a share.

That, according to the Attorney General's aids, who have been working on the case, would cause Edsall and Fenderson to rush to Gutterson for more of the stock at $50 a share, but the man on the telephone was never heard from again, it was said.

When Sergeant William Fahnkow and Corporal John Lord of the State Constabulary, accompanied by Detective McGann of Old Slip Station, went to Gutterson's home yesterday, they said, Mrs. Gutterson abused them for daring to search her house. She and her two little daughters, a cook and a maid were the only persons the searchers found in the house.

GIVES ANOTHER ROUTE TO EAST SIDE TRAFFIC

First Avenue Improvement Makes It the City's Widest North and South Roadway.

Julius Miller, Borough President of Manhattan, announced yesterday that on Aug. 1 another section of First Avenue, between Twenty-third and Houston Streets, which recently has been improved in accordance with his plan, is to be thrown open to the public. A modern pavement has been laid and the old surface car tracks have been removed. A statement issued from Mr. Miller's office says:—

"This improvement completes another link in the general plan of President Miller, as the result of which First Avenue is rapidly being transformed from a secondary thoroughfare to a traffic artery of primary importance.

"First Avenue now is the widest roadway unencumbered by surface tracks of all the north and south avenues in the borough. Moreover, the location of this thoroughfare precludes any volume of crosstown traffic. It is estimated that the improved roadway can readily carry more than 25,000 vehicles a day.

"Coupled with the completion of these improvements along First Avenue is President Miller's project of extending this avenue south by widening Allen Street as far as East Broadway, where there already exists a wide roadway extending into the downtown section of the borough.

"This will make a most direct route from the downtown section to the Harlem River and will result in an express highway for vehicles moving between Manhattan and the Bronx, and also into Queens by way of the Queensboro Bridge at Fifty-ninth Street."

TWO DIE IN BOSTON PLANE.

Aviation Instructor and Passenger Plunge to Railroad in Nose Dive.

BOSTON, July 23 (AP).—Mark C. Hogue of Boston, formerly a Lieutenant in the army air service, and George Burroughs of Topsfield, a passenger in his plane, were killed today when the machine went into a nose dive after taking off from the Boston airport and crashed to the tracks of the Boston, Revere Beach & Lynn Railroad in East Boston. Hogue, piloting the plane, was killed instantly, and Burroughs died on the way to the hospital.

The plane, owned by Hogue, who conducted an aviation school here, was flying about 500 feet above the airport when it was seen to swoop downward, falling directly on the railroad tracks near a trestle. Firemen pulled the bodies from the debris. The plane was wrecked so completely that the cause of the accident could not be determined.

Lieutenant Hogue, who was 29 years old, joined the air service in 1917 and was assigned to instruction work. Since the war he had been engaged in commercial flying, but in 1919 acted as a pilot in the air mail service. He specialized in aerial photography and had photographed many of the large estates on Long Island and on the North and South Shores. Burroughs was 50 years old, married, and engaged in the real estate business.

BOLITHO BLAMES ENEMIES.

Those Against Whom He Enforced Law Caused Indictment, He Says.

Special to The New York Times.

DOVER, N. J., July 23.—Former Prosecutor James H. Bolitho of Morris County, who is under indictment with others for conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws, issued a statement at his law offices here today charging that the indictments were brought about by those against whom he had enforced the law.

"All those who enforce the law make enemies, and bitter enemies," he said "and a backfire of resentment at my enforcement of the law has caused this action against me. Is this a reward for performing a duty?"

Special Prosecutor Jayne will present some of the conspiracy cases to the Court in Morristown on Aug. 5, and it is believed that Bolitho will at that time be brought to trial on nine indictments charging conspiracy.

2 FARMERS BADLY HURT.

One Crushed by Rolling Machine as Horses Bolt—Other Cut by Mower.

HAMMONTON, N. J., July 23.—Peter Wolf, 35 years old, and married, was rolled under his rolling machine at Nesco, near here, today when his team of horses bolted and he was thrown from his seat. He had been rolling down a field of alfalfa. The rollers passed over the lower parts of his body. Wolf was seriously hurt but probably will recover.

NEWTON, N. J., July 23.—When one of the horses pulled the mower he was operating in a hay field at Greendell, near here, stepped into a ground hog hole, John Gibbs, a farmer, was pitched forward out of his seat and on the ground directly in front of the sickle. He shouted "Whoa!" and the horses stopped barely in time to save his life. As it was, Gibbs was badly cut.

Reynolds Case Off Till October.

MINEOLA, L. I., July 23.—Special Deputy Attorney General Kenneth M. Spence, assigned to prosecute the charges of grand larceny against William H. Reynolds, former Mayor of Long Beach, and John Gracy, former City Treasurer, made in connection with their handling of city funds, announced today that the retrial had been postponed from Aug. 10 until the middle of October. The former Long Beach officials were convicted on the charges a year ago, but the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court recently reversed the decision and ordered a new trial.

Norris, Cartoonist, Buys Out Paper.

CHICAGO, July 23 (AP).—Lester Norris, whose cartoons on the margins of the letters he wrote to his schoolday sweetheart, Dellora Angell, heiress to the $36,000,000 fortune of John Gates, won her for his wife, has bought The St. Charles (Ill.) Chronicle from Miss Lina Paschal, its editor for twenty-two years and the first woman publisher in the State. Norris will do cartoons for the paper and Miss Paschal will continue as editor.

MILLS FILES DENIAL OF WNYC MISUSE

Other City Officials Also Submit Affidavits to Court in Injunction Action.

NO COMPLAINTS, THEY SAY

Political Propaganda Never Has Been Broadcast, Statements Aver in Disputing Charges.

Affidavits denying the allegations that the municipal radio broadcasting station WNYC had been used to spread "political propaganda" and purporting to show the advantage and need for the station for municipal purposes, were submitted to Supreme Court Justice Churchill yesterday by William Wirt Mills, Commissioner of Plant and Structures, and other city officials. The affidavits were filed in answer to charges made on Wednesday by Leonard Wallstein, as counsel for Henry Fletcher, Vice Chairman of the Citizens' Union, in the latter's motion for an injunction restraining further broadcasting, on the ground that the installation and operation of the station is unconstitutional.

Corporation Counsel George P. Nicholson filed the papers, which were submitted by the following city officials other than Commissioner Mills: Captain John H. Ayers, of the Missing Persons' Bureau; Patrolman John S. D. Cuff, of the Telegraph Bureau; John Kenlon, Chief of the Fire Department; Francis D. Gallatin, Park Commissioner, and Valentine Fendrick, Chief of the Bureau of Fire Alarm Telegraph of the Fire Department. Stewart Browne, President of the United Real Estate Owners' Association, also submitted an affidavit.

All Allegations Denied.

A denial of every allegation made in Mr. Fletcher's moving papers was contained in the affidavit made by Commissioner Mills. He declared that the station had not and will not be used for the broadcasting of political propaganda favorable to Mayor Hylan and other present incumbents in office. Furthermore, he said, the station was used extensively, every night in fact, to spread police alarms for the apprehension of criminals and to broadcast descriptions of missing persons. The Commissioner told of plans already formulated and soon to be put into effect whereby each police and fire station and the fire boats will have a specially constructed receiving set to tune in on alarms.

One hundred of these sets have already been ordered, Commissioner Mills explained, and he went on to say that through a device recently perfected it will be possible to lock the sets so that they can be used only to tune in on legitimate police and fire alarms. These will be particularly important in the case of fire boats, he said, which are frequently out of communication with the Fire Department.

The station was installed and is being maintained, the Commissioner related, under a resolution adopted by the Board of Estimate on June 2, 1922. Lectures on economic subjects, scientific, health, cultural and musical programs had been frequently broadcast, he said, in addition to the police alarms. The additional programs had been effected without increasing the personnel of the station and, the Commissioner asserted, there had been no complaints of the manner in which the station had been operated.

Commissioner Mills set forth in his affidavit that although persons other than public officials had used the station in the past this had been discontinued. Captain Ayers stated that police alarms were sent from WNYC twice daily and furthermore the Police Department received the use of the station at all hours when in commission. Lectures on parks had been frequently made, according to an affidavit by Commissioner Gallatin, while Mr. Browne said that, at the invitation of Mayor Hylan, his association had delivered messages in connection with real estate and civic matters.

NURSE IN INQUIRY LOSES JOB

Subpoenaed to Tell of Conditions in Jersey State Hospital.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., July 23.—Mrs. Helen F. Bernard, who was mentioned yesterday to the Bright Investigating Committee by Miss Edith Strong as one who could substantiate her charges of bad conditions at the State Hospital for the Insane, was out of employment as a nurse today.

Mrs. Bernard until yesterday had served as a night nurse at the Charles private hospital. This institution was referred to by Miss Strong in her testimony as the "private hospital" of Dr. Henry A. Cotton, Medical Director of the asylum.

Mrs. Bernard, who formerly was a nurse at the State Hospital, said that when she presented herself for duty at the Charles hospital that night she received her pay check and was advised to resign. It was said at the hospital that the woman appeared greatly agitated when she reported last night and said she would leave New Jersey rather than answer the Bright Committee's subpoena to testify next Wednesday.

It was said that her services had not been satisfactory and it had been planned to dismiss her Aug. 1. She was paid off but advised to respond to the committee's summons.

SENATOR'S SON GUILTY.

Nobel Bright Awaits Sentence for Having Gambling Devices in Jersey.

TOMS RIVER, N. J., July 23 (AP).—Noble Bright, of Wildwood, a son of William H. Bright, president of the New Jersey senate and head of the state investigating Commission which bears his name, pleaded guilty yesterday to the possession of gambling machines and was released in $500 bail for sentence next week. His bail was furnished by State Senator Thomas A. Mathis, of Toms River.

Bright was indicted on Monday, and arrested on Tuesday. The action was based on the seizing of two slot machines several months ago from an amusement place which he operated at the entrance to the naval air station at Lakehurst.

The indictment charging Walter A. Curtis, Lakewood chief of police with malfeasance, was quashed yesterday by Judge Newman. Curtis was charged with converting to his own use on March 24, 1923, money taken from captured slot machines.

FREED OF MOTHER'S DEATH.

Youth Cleared of Homicide Charge —Held for Having Pistol.

Joseph Grosso, 17 years old, of 67 Sayres Street, Jamaica, who was arrested on July 15 after he had accidentally fatally shot his mother, was freed of homicide by Magistrate Greaser in Jamaica Court yesterday. He was held in $500 bail for Special Sessions for possessing a pistol without a permit.

The shooting occurred in the kitchen of the Grosso home on July 15 within an hour after the youth had returned from a trip to Omaha, Neb.

Assistant District Attorney David Wolfe told Magistrate Greaser that he had investigated the shooting and was satisfied that it was accidental.

From the Founder's Writings

Three-quarters of all work is drudgery

Unless We Love It and Keep Cheerful

This applies to housekeeping as well as to storekeeping.

The monotonies of mechanical and laboring work, doing a few things over and over again, day in and day out, are doubly wearisome, unless we have opened a window in the wall we are building and are able to see that our routine work is not a personal matter only, but that it connects us with the furtherance of the needs and enterprises of the world also.

Phillips Brooks, an early friend of the writer, said he believed "that the common man's task was hardest."

To meet our daily duties with a dissatisfied spirit makes the hours seem longer, the work harder, and our dissatisfaction shows us up and lessens our value to ourselves and those who employ us.

In this bustling, busy Store, where people have thought out how to work and be happy, there are thousands of people enjoying their work because what they are doing is expanding their minds and hearts and making them more and more useful.

3 THUGS GET $1,500; JAILED IN HALF HOUR

Force Garage Owner to Remove Clothing and Lock Him and Aids in Closet.

BOY GIVES QUICK ALARM

Wriggles Through Window, Gets Auto Number and Tells It to Police.

GANG CAUGHT ON BRIDGE

Racing Toward Manhattan, They Are Chased and Stopped as Crowds Cheer Police.

Three men held up a Brooklyn garage at 8 o'clock yesterday morning. An exciting chase over Manhattan Bridge ended thirty minutes later in their capture and at 2 P. M. the charge against the prisoners was before the Grand Jury. The garage owner reported losing $1,500, but only $500 was recovered from the robbers.

Alfonso Sepi, proprietor of the garage at North Sixth and Roebling Streets, was in his office at the front when the three hold-up men entered. A 15-year-old boy, Harold Eichols of 517 Lorimer Street, was in a telephone booth in the office, and outside, busy with the automobiles, was the manager, Alfred Mastro of 14 Filmore Place.

The robbers pointed automatic pistols at the men and Sepi was forced to remove his clothing. They took $1,400 in cash from his trousers, lifted a diamond stickpin out of his tie and a gold watch out of his vest. They heaped his clothing together and then took a diamond ring from his finger. They took nothing from the boy—his cash, incidentally, consisted of less than a quarter; Mastro had nothing, and the robbers ordered the two men and the boy into a small closet at the back of the garage.

"Stay in there and keep quiet if you don't want to be killed," said one of the robbers as he turned the key.

The robbers dashed to the front door and climbed into a machine waiting there. As they started the engine, Eichols squeezed through a small window and managed in time to read the Pennsylvania license plate of the car. Its number was 659031. The boy told the number to the policeman on beat and he flashed it to Brooklyn Police Headquarters.

Motorcycle Policeman William Desmond and Policemen Charles McGovern and Frank Hance were in the police booth at the Brooklyn end of the Manhattan Bridge when the number was repeated to them. As the policemen emerged from the booth they saw a car, with the license plate bearing the numbers, picking up speed for the run over the bridge. Desmond gave chase and his fellow officers followed in commandeered cars. Near the middle of the bridge Desmond halted the machine. The capture was witnessed by hundreds of persons going over the bridge to work, and, when the news of the quick arrest spread, the policemen were cheered.

The prisoners were taken to the bridge station and charged with assault and robbery. They gave their names and addresses as John Doyle, 24 years old, of 121 East Houston Street, Manhattan; Solly Dicuata, 21, of Forsyth Street and Joseph Maggiore, 25, of 218 Chrystie Street. Sepi identified the men. The police asked the Pennsylvania police to trace ownership of the automobile.

DOCTOR BEATEN AND ROBBED.

Bandits Use Knife to Cut Diamond From Tie and Emblem From Coat.

Three holdup men, who used a knife to cut an Elks emblem from his coat, assaulted and robbed Dr. Albert G. Mott of 9,415 109th Avenue, Woodhaven, Queens, as he slowed his automobile to turn the corner of Metropolitan Avenue and Woodhaven Boulevard at 3:30 A. M. yesterday. The knife was used also to cut a diamond pin from his tie, and $50 in cash was taken from his pocket.

As the car slowed down the men jumped on the running boards. They were armed, two with revolvers, and the third with a long knife. They dragged Dr. Mott from the car and beat him on the sidewalk. The physician had been called to Middle Village, Queens. After attending to his injuries at his home he reported the holdup to the police.

OPENS UP SHOP FOR THUGS.

Clothing Store Owner Obliges Two, Is Held Up and Loses $450.

John Pompione was sitting in front of his clothing store at 451 Graham Avenue, Brooklyn, at 1 o'clock yesterday morning. He was feeling the heat. He had just started to fan himself with his straw hat when three men alighted from a taxicab. One said:

"Open up your shop, will you, and sell me a shirt and a tie?"

Well, it was hot, Pompione thought, so he declined. The men insisted and Pompione, feeling that maybe the need for the shirt and the necktie was urgent, finally consented. But as he unlocked the door he felt two pistols pressed against his side. He was ordered into the back room and the men escaped with $450 in cash.

ROB MAN OF $20,000 IN A SUBWAY STATION

Two Armed Bandits Truss Up Jewelry Salesmen and Escape With Gems.

Philip Wohl, 35 years old, of 179 East Sixty-sixth Street, Arverne, Queens, who became a salesman three weeks ago for Howard S. Kennedy, a jeweler, at 170 Broadway, was found bound and gagged yesterday afternoon in the washroom of the B. M. T. subway station at Seventh Avenue and Forty-ninth Street. He told the police that he had been robbed of $20,000 in gems by two men. He said that he had just entered the washroom with several unset diamonds, some diamond-studded bracelets and platinum watches in his handbag, which was unlocked, when two men pressed pistols against his body. They warned him not to speak, he continued, as they bound his wrists and ankles with window sash chain, fastening the ends with small padlocks. They stuffed a handkerchief into his mouth and tied the ends behind his head.

Then one of the men, he said, took the gems from the bag and both walked out after hiding him behind a screen. A negro porter found Wohl and notified the police.

Wohl then told of having left Feldman's jewelry store at 1,543 Broadway a short time before he entered the subway. Feldman's place was held up recently by bandits and more than $100,000 in gems taken. Unable to make a sale in the place, Wohl explained, he walked into a near-by restaurant and after being there a short time, started back for Kennedy's.

At the West Forty-seventh Street Police Station Wohl was said to have told detectives that in February, 1924, when he was in business for himself, he was robbed in a similar manner of $11,000 in his room in the Hotel Statler in Cleveland. An insurance company indemnified him for this loss. Detectives also said Wohl admitted that in the three weeks he had been in the employ of Kennedy he had collected no commissions because of his failure to make a sale.

2 ROB STORE ON THIRD VISIT

Hold Up Cigar Clerk and Escape With $52 From Register.

Three times yesterday morning two young men strolled into the United Cigar Store at Ninth Avenue and Fiftieth Street. On their second visit, Abraham Dosek of 194 Rodney Street, Brooklyn, asked them what they wanted. He was told "a telephone call." On the third visit, Dosek inquired, pleasantly:

"Back for the telephone?"

"No," said one of the men, "not this time—this time we're back for you."

He aimed a revolver at the clerk and waved him into a small storeroom at the rear of the shop. The men then took $52 from the cash register and escaped.

Brooklyn Grocer Robbed of $22.

George Andrews, 25 years of age, of 669 Lafayette Avenue, manager of a Thomas Roulston chain grocery at 329 Lafayette Avenue, was held up yesterday by two armed men, who took $22 from the cash register and escaped. Detectives of the Classon Avenue precinct obtained descriptions of the two robbers and are working on the case.

Steals to Get Food and Shelter.

James Shanley, 60 years old, with no home, told Magistrate Earl Smith in Harlem Court yesterday that he had deliberately stolen a case of surgical instruments from an automobile in order to be arrested and sent to an institution where he would get food and shelter. The Magistrate remanded him to the Home for Aged and Infirm for three months.

ROCKEFELLER VISITS SCENES OF BOYHOOD

Makes Annual Pilgrimage to Birthplace Near Owego—Gives Dimes to Children.

Special to The New York Times.

OWEGO, N. Y., July 23.—John D. Rockefeller's annual visit to this village, where he and his brother William went to school as boys, and his pilgrimage to his birthplace on Michigan Hill, near Richford, eighteen miles north of Owego, was characteristic of the custom which he has established in visiting here during the last four or five years.

Mr. Rockefeller, traveling in an automobile, arrived in Owego at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon after a 210-mile journey from his estate at Pocantico Hills. He was accompanied by his cousin, Mrs. Fannie Evans, and a friend, Mrs. Ira Warner of Bridgeport, Conn. Mr. Rockefeller immediately retired for a nap.

After supper he called on Mrs. Susan J. Lake, his oldest friend. She acted as his volunteer tutor at night at the home of her father, east of this village, when she was 15 years old and her pupil ten.

On Wednesday the party first motored to the Rockefeller birthplace on the high hill southeast of Richford. From Michigan Hill Mr. Rockefeller went to Moravia, where he lived several years as a boy. Here he called on a few old friends. The farmhouse where he lived was burned since his visit last Summer.

Mr. Rockefeller returned to Owego late in the afternoon and spent the evening in his apartments. He left Owego on the return trip at 7:20 this morning. He appeared in better health than when he visited Owego last Summer, but he did not walk around the village as freely as heretofore. He gave away a few dimes to children.

Aside from Mrs. Lake and her niece, Miss Susan Lamonte, and the hotel attachés, there are few people in Owego whom Mr. Rockefeller knows. All of his old boyhood companions are dead.

FORM SEA GATE CHAMBER.

Residents Incorporate—Favor Free Use of Waterfront.

Supreme Court Justice William F. Hagarty in Brooklyn yesterday approved a certificate of incorporation for the Sea Gate Chamber of Commerce at Sea Gate, Brooklyn. It was announced that one of the objects of the new organization was "to secure freedom from unjust or unlawful exactions." The incorporators include J. Louis Buchman, Michael Rosenberg, Sol Ash, Mortimer M. Jacobson, Michael Van Praag, David Finkelstein and Hyman Loeker.

The Sea Gate Association, which represents some of the older residents and property owners there, has an action in the Brooklyn courts to compel "newcomers" and visitors to observe its rules and regulations, including restrictions on approaches to waterfront and parts of the beach and bathing privileges. Other residents who objected to these restrictions and want free use of the public waterfront have also applied to the courts for an injunction to prevent enforcement of the restrictive rules. They have organized the Chamber of Commerce to protect their interests.

Federal Claims Suits Set Record.

WASHINGTON, July 23 (AP).—Suits in which the Federal Government is defendant in the Court of Claims reached a new high record today when the aggregate of claims showed a total of $1,602,000,000. More than 2,900 cases are awaiting consideration of the court, which now is in recess until early Fall. While there has been some diminution of war claims others have more than offset the slight decrease. Income tax cases are conspicuous on the court's docket.

BUSINESS AND PERSONAL LOANS. The Morris Plan Co. lends $50 to $5,000, 1 year or less; monthly or weekly plan. 348 5th Ave.; 8 branches; secure booklet.—Advt.

Automobiles Are Padlocked For Violating Traffic Laws

CINCINNATI, July 23 (AP).—Padlocking of automobiles of convicted speeders has been resorted to in Cleves, near here, by Mayor D. W. Gwaltney, in an effort to force obeyance of traffic laws.

Four men, all residents of the village taken before the Mayor last night on charges of speeding, were fined $10 and costs and had their right to drive suspended for fifteen days.

Mayor Gwaltney ordered the marshal to take the machines to the garages of their respective owners, lock them and remove the keys. At the end of fifteen days the owners can obtain the keys from the marshal.

HUNT FOR WOMAN AS FLATBUSH THIEF

Fair Burglar, With Male Companion, Said to Be Looting Brooklyn Homes.

ROBBERS REGALE ON LIQUOR

Also Help Themselves to Canned Goods and Silverware—Vigilance Committee Proposed.

Householders in the Nottingham section of Flatbush may form a vigilance committee to protect themselves against a woman burglar and her male companion who have been rifling homes in that district and, where opportunity offered, dining on canned goods and pre-prohibition liquor. One victim criticised yesterday the policing of the territory.

There have been a number of robberies and attempted entries in the section during the past few weeks. The loot has been small, because vacationing residents have for the most part left their valuables in safe deposit or taken them along. The extent of several robberies has not yet been checked.

The home of Mrs. James Frack of 1,365 East Twenty-third Street was entered a week ago and $1,000 in silverware, jewelry and clothing taken. John Arthur Woods of 1,376 East Twenty-fourth Street found that his house had been entered in his absence at Port Washington, L. I., but he did not know yesterday the amount taken.

An effort was made to break into the home of Charles L. Camerik at 1,439 East Twenty-first Street a week ago Sunday. A card party was in progress and the thieves were frightened off. One of the players, who left soon after the disturbance, telephoned later that he had been held up in front of his own home, robbed and forced to drive his captors around Brooklyn.

The first clue to the robbers came on Sunday night when Mr. and Mrs. Walter Eagan returned from Asbury Park to their home at 1,439 East Twenty-fourth Street. Mr. Eagan saw a man dart away and later found that a rear window had been forced. Last Tuesday a neighbor living opposite the Eagan home saw a tall woman and a man on the porch of the home of Robert Pebles, a neighbor of the Eagans. When questioned as to their business there the couple fled.

John Low reported that his home at 1,477 East Twenty-fourth Street had been entered on Saturday night, silverware and clothing stolen and plated silverware bent and broken and scattered about the house. On the table was a partly emptied bottle of Bacardi rum. Evidence that the home of Clarence Waterman at 1,394 East Twenty-third Street had also been visited was found.

George Hoeffler of 1,348 East Twenty-third Street, who returned on Friday from Orient Point, L. I., to find his house robbed, suggested that the residents form their own police patrol. At his home two bottles of pre-prohibition era whisky were emptied and the Amazon and her companion feasted on tinned delicacies.

CHARGES RAILROAD BLOCKED BEER HUNT

Chicago Prohibition Chief Says New York Central Employes Tried to Prevent Seizure.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 23.—Charges that New York Central Railroad employes tried to prevent the seizure of a carload of beer in the Chicago yards last night, ostensibly on orders from high officials, were laid before District Attorney Olson today by Charles W. Vursell, prohibition chief.

Vursell asked the District Attorney to call upon President Crowley for an explanation, and to demand cooperation by all railroad companies in the suppression of bootlegging.

Vursell and two of his men went into the New York Central yards last night on a tip that a carload of beer would be found there, the chief reported. Railroad detectives met them and pretended to help, according to Vursell, but instead of helping, it is charged, they put the agents on one blind trail after another, while yard officials refused definite information about the car.

Because of the railroad employes' alleged obstruction, Vursell and his men spent four hours hunting through the yards before they found the beer. They went then to call for a truck squad. When they got back the car had been moved, it is said, and yard men pretended not to know where it had been taken. It was found two miles away after another long search, Vursell said.

At the executive offices here of the New York Central emphatic denial was made, according to The Associated Press, that instructions had been sent to railroad employes to prevent prohibition agents from making seizures on railroad property. The attitude of the directorate was one of hearty cooperation, officials said, but after conferences with Prohibition Commissioner Haynes in Washington it was agreed that promiscuous breaking of car seals should not be permitted.

DICKENS IS MORE ALIVE THAN EVER, SAYS CAINE

Novelist at Memorial to Bertram Matz Stresses Dickens's Art as a Story-Teller.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 23. — Though Charles Dickens has been dead fifty-five years, he is now more alive than ever, declared Sir Hall Caine, English novelist, in an address at a memorial service today for the late Bertram Matz, founder of the Dickens Fellowship.

"Nobody knew better than Dickens that before all else he was a simple story-teller," said Sir Hall Caine, "and that his first duty was to amuse and to entertain. And of all writers who ever brought cheer, brightness and happiness and even merriment into human life, Dickens must forever be counted among the first."

Sir Hall Caine was equally eulogistic regarding Mr. Matz, of whom he said: "He wrote on Dickens, he brought out editions of Dickens, he lectured on Dickens, he founded societies for the study of Dickens, he edited a magazine devoted exclusively to Dickens and he answered thousands, perhaps tens of thousands, of letters from Dickens lovers all over the world asking for help and enlightenment.

"He knew Dickens the man and the author as perhaps no other had ever known him—possibly, also, as no one ever will. Nothing was ever too little as nothing was too bare for his fervent hero worship. And this went from his earliest manhood until his death."

$7,000,000 Hotel Planned for Palm Beach; Spanish Structure to Rise on Lake Worth

Hotel financing arrangements were completed in New York yesterday by C. M. Heckscher, son of August Heckscher, for the immediate erection of a $7,000,000 fireproof hotel at Palm Beach, Fla.

In Spanish Renaissance design, the new structure will be known as the Alba, in honor of the Duke of Alba. It will stand on the east shore of Lake Worth, one block north of The Royal Poinciana, on a two-acre tract extending from Bradley Place to the Lake Trail and shore. On the water front there will be a large tropical terraced garden extending to Lake Trail, west of which there will be two private piers. The hotel will be nine stories tall, with a main building, surmounted on either end by large towers, extending along Bradley Place. From the main building two seven-story wings will extend toward the lake. Thirty-five shops will face the terraced garden, with a court and an arcade running through the main building connecting the terrace and Bradley Place.

The structure will contain 533 rooms and 494 baths. The gardens, promenades, open air dancing, dining and tea rooms, together with the public rooms and shops, will be in the Spanish style. The development, including the land, is appraised at $6,500,000, but Mr. Heckscher will probably invest in excess of $7,000,000.

S. W. Straus & Co. have underwritten an issue of $4,200,000 first mortgage 6½ per cent. sinking fund coupon gold bonds of the Southern Florida Realty Corporation, of which Mr. Heckscher is President. August Heckscher, his father, is a director of the corporation. Mr. Heckscher is Vice President of the Anahma Realty Corporation, of which his father is President. This corporation owns and operates all of the realty interests of the Heckscher family.

A year ago Mr. Heckscher built the Dallia Park apartments and hotel apartments at Miami. This venture, it is understood, has proved to be a profitable investment, and its success had much to do with his decision to build the Hotel Alba.

"I am convinced," Mr. Heckscher said yesterday, "of the stability of Florida real estate. I would not be surprised to see the State record a total of $150,000,000 of building this year. The total in fourteen cities for the half year was about $60,000,000, an increase of nearly 130 per cent. over the first half of last year. Palm Beach is keeping fully abreast of the phenomenal progress throughout the State.

"The Breakers, with 700 rooms, on the ocean front of Palm Beach, and the old Palm Beach Hotel, which stood on the site to be occupied by the Alba, recently were destroyed by fire, leaving the resort in need of a modern fireproof hotel. In addition the ever-increasing popularity of Palm Beach calls for a house of the highest order and best equipment. The Alba will be ready for occupancy Jan. 1.

GRAND JURY WIDENS AUTO DEATH INQUIRY

Judge McIntyre Asks Body to Consider Rise in Motor Vehicle Accidents.

MAY SUGGEST REFORMS

Jurors Show Interest in Number of Speeding "P. D." Cars Which Get Right of Way.

Coincident with their inquiry into twelve recent automobile killings in Manhattan, the Grand Jury yesterday began an investigation of motor vehicle accidents at the request of Judge McIntyre of General Sessions. Judge McIntyre recently commented on the unusual number of automobile deaths and declared that strong measures should be resorted to in an effort to check them. The Grand Jury, of which Alexander Konts, banker, is foreman, is expected to hand up a presentment to Judge McIntyre next week, possibly advocating reforms in the control of motor vehicle operation.

The first witness examined by the body yesterday was Acting Chief Magistrate Moses R. Ryttenberg, who said that in the first four months of this year ninety-six persons were arraigned in the Homicide Court in connection with motor vehicle killings, of whom but twenty-nine could be held for Grand Jury action. This statement aroused considerable interest on the part of the jurors, some of them asking why it was not possible to send more of the cases to the Grand Jury.

Magistrate Ryttenberg explained that considerable difficulty is experienced by the police in obtaining evidence in motor vehicle accidents. He said that, as a rule, an accident happens so quickly that there are no actual eye-witnesses and in most of the cases brought into the Homicide Court, the preponderance of evidence indicated that negligence on the part of the victim or victims was the cause.

Asked by one of the jurors if delay in presenting such cases before the proper tribunal was not the real cause of the escape of offenders from just punishment, Magistrate Ryttenberg said that the average homicide case was quickly disposed of both in the Homicide Court, the tribunal of first jurisdiction, and the Grand Jury.

Autos That May Exceed Limit.

Several of the Grand Jurors discussed at length the rapid pace with which certain motor vehicles travel through the streets of the city at all hours and one of them asked the Magistrate what vehicles had a legal right to exceed the State and local laws in this respect.

The question indicated that the jurors had in mind the number of automobiles which speed through the city with "P. D." signs on them, the police giving them the right of way on the busiest thoroughfares.

Magistrate Ryttenberg replied that there is an ordinance which permits vehicles and apparatus of the Fire Department, insurance patrol motor trucks, ambulances and vehicles of the Police Department, Bureau of Buildings and emergency repair wagons of public service corporations to exceed the speed limit when responding to alarms or calls of an emergent nature, but no other vehicles had a right to travel faster than the limit stated in the law.

The Magistrate also read to the Grand Jurors statistics compiled at the Traffic Court in connection with violations of the highway laws and corporation ordinances dealing with the parking of cars and other minor offenses. These figures showed that during 1924 from three to four Magistrates presiding in the courts each week day heard an aggregate of 74,151 cases. Of these 10,131 speeders were found to be first offenders, 660 were second offenders and seventy had been arrested on that charge three or more times. During that year, he added, a total of $444,438 in fines was collected.

Before Magistrate Ryttenberg entered the Grand Jury room Assistant District Attorney P. Francis Maro, head of the Homicide Bureau of District Attorney Banton's office, began the presentation of evidence in some of the automobile killing cases which recently had been sent to the Grand Jury by Magistrate Frederick B. House in the Homicide Court for investigation. These investigations will continue over the present week and the Grand Jurors will continue to take evidence in connection with Judge McIntyre's request while they are determining what action they shall take in the homicide cases.

CONVICTS GERMAN COLONEL

French Court-Martial Gives Death Sentence for War Crimes.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMIENS, France, July 23.—A court-martial has sentenced to death the German Colonel Waechter, convicted of the murder of one French and eleven British soldiers, and of arson and other crimes. Waechter's services date back to August and September, 1914, when he commanded the section lines of communication of the German Army in the Aisne department.

Through spies, he discovered the presence of the French soldier Thinnet, belonging to the Twenty-eighth Infantry, hiding on the farm of Mme. Rousseau, and ordered the soldier to be shot without trial and the farm burned.

He was also informed of the presence of eleven British soldiers on the farm of Mme. Logez, but the men hid in a river. They were found later on the property of a farmer, M. Challandre, and Waechter had all eleven and Challandre shot. He burned both farms and placed Mme. Logez in an iron cage, then deported all members of both families to Germany and inflicted the most brutal treatment upon them.

'KNAPP' HELD THRICE GIVES UP MUSTACHE

Job-Hunter, Tired of Spending Hours in Cells as a Suspect, Shaves Lip Ornament.

POLICE ARREST ANOTHER

Fingerprints Are Sent to Mitchel Field—Mason Offers to Wed Murder Victim's Wife.

John Collimore and his blond mustache parted company last night after he had been arrested for the third time by mistake for Philip Knox Knapp, army deserter and former Cornell student wanted for the murder on July 2 of Louis Panella, Hempstead taxicab driver.

Collimore came to New York from Fairfield, Conn., three days ago to look for work. Being an auto mechanic by trade, Collimore began making the rounds of Brooklyn garages. At his first stop he was greeted cordially, asked to have a seat, and was just about convinced that New York was the most hospitable city in the world when a chauffeur, who had been lounging about outside when he entered, appeared with a policeman.

Collimore insisted that he was not Knapp but the patrolman took Collimore to the police station, where several hours were passed in a cell until soldiers arrived from Mitchel Field and assured the police that it was another case of mistaken identity.

At dusk of the second day Collimore was released from a cell for the second time. Yesterday he continued his job hunting in high spirits. But at Fulton and Hoyt Streets two detectives pounced upon him with cries of "Knapp!" and dragged him off to police headquarters.

The usual long wait followed, and when soldiers from Mitchel Field arrived for the third time in three days to assure the police that Collimore was not Knapp, Collimore inquired for the nearest barber shop.

Another suspect was arrested late Wednesday night in front of the Seamen's Home at 25 South Street by detectives from the Old Slip Station and is now being detained in the Tombs. He gave the name of Paul Moylan and said he lived in the Seamen's Home. The police said last night that they had taken copies of his fingerprints and sent them to Mitchel Field, but military authorities there declared that they had not been advised of Moylan's arrest and had not received the fingerprints.

Joseph Lonardo of Long Island City, former Assistant District Attorney in Queens, who has been engaged by the Italian Press Association to look after the interests of Panella's mother and her two children, received a letter yesterday from Giovanni Caprone, a mason, who said he had a 100-acre farm near Hinsdale, Mass., and who made an offer of marriage to Mrs. Panella. Mr. Lonardo said he would investigate, and if he found the facts correct, submit it to Mrs. Panella.

BUTLER TELLS ENGLISH OF DRY LAW 'FAILURE'

Says Present Law Cannot Be Enforced and Has Caused Evils Outweighing Its Advantages.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 23.—The prevailing European impressions about prohibition were strengthened by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler today, who in an interview declared that nation-wide prohibition in America cannot be enforced.

"The object desired by those who supported this form of prohibition," he said, "was the suppression of public drinking places and putting an end to the political activities of those engaged in the manufacture and sale of liquors. These two ends commended themselves to immense numbers of the population who did not stop to think what unforeseen consequences might follow.

"The saloon has so all intents and purposes been abolished. So far so good. But the liquor traffic flourishes on a scale of almost unexampled magnitude, untaxed and with immense profits, although carried on secretly in violation of the law.

"In my judgment the evil effects of the policy adopted by the United States on moral politics and public order far outweigh the advantages. It has become plain to every one that nation-wide prohibition cannot be enforced, simply for the reason that it affronts the judgment as well as the moral political principles of vast numbers of the population, including a large proportion of the most intelligent and most upright.

"In addition nation-wide prohibition has brought in its train a spirit of lawlessness and political hypocrisy and cowardice that is little short of appalling. We are told that by reason of our constitutional law the Eighteenth Amendment can never be repealed. If so, it is certain to go the way of the Fifteenth Amendment enacted after the Civil War to give political rights to the negroes. In at least ten States no attention is paid to this amendment and no attempt has been made to enforce it for thirty-five years.

"The situation is very painful and difficult, but it is not too much to expect that the intelligence and morality of the American people will shortly require a change of policy in order to substitute a really effective public measure for the present unexampled and colossal failure."

HEARST REITERATES PLEDGE FOR HYLAN

Will Back the Mayor on Any Ticket, He Replies to Evening Post's Inquiries.

VIEWS HAVE NOT CHANGED

Publisher's Message Follows the Lines of His Recent Interview in The New York Times.

The renewed pledge of William R. Hearst for support to Mayor Hylan on any ticket came yesterday in the form of a telegram from Los Angeles, sent in reply to four questions by The New York Evening Post. The telegram follows in general the lines of an interview Mr. Hearst gave to THE NEW YORK TIMES several months ago and confirms reports that his attitude toward Mayor Hylan, his administration and his present fight for re-election, have not changed since then. The questions and answers follow:

(1 Do you still believe Mayor Hylan best represents popular sentiment and should be renominated?

"In answer to your questions I will state first that I firmly believe Mayor Hylan best represents popular sentiment and best represents genuine Democratic ideals and courageously and unselfishly stands for the public welfare.

"I think he certainly should be renominated if the people appreciate such loyal service and desire to have their public servants render them loyal service.

"If honest service were not appreciated by the public honest men would not become dishonest, but they would keep out of public service and leave the public service to the crooks and weak tools of public exploiters.

"But I have no reason to think Mayor Hylan's services are not appreciated. He is the most popular Mayor I have ever seen in my long experience with New York politics. He understands the people's ideals and objects as well as loyally endeavoring to attain them.

"Mayor Hylan was elected by an enormous majority the first time he ran and by a still more enormous majority the second time he ran. And still there was just as much futile opposition to him then on the part of the transit companies and their bankers as there is now."

2. Do you find in the Mayor's recent treatment of political or popular problems anything to change your previous expressed opinion that he deserves renomination?

"There is no reason in my mind why Mayor Hylan should not be elected by a still greater majority at the coming election. He makes his pledges to the public and he keeps his promises. Four years ago he said he would maintain the five-cent fare, and he has maintained the five-cent fare in spite of efforts of the corporation element of the Republican Party and the corporation element of his own party to institute a ten-cent fare and make the people pay twice as many millions as they now pay into the coffers of the transit companies.

"Mayor Hylan now pledges himself to build subways, and he will build subways. As a matter of plain fact he already is building them and has the construction well advanced on many of them.

"The public wants new subways. The people know that when Mayor Hylan pledges himself to build subways he will build them, and they know, too, that subways will be run in the public interest and not be made the football of speculative financiers, to be inflated and kicked about regardless of the public welfare."

3. Do you believe the element in the Tammany organization in Manhattan opposed to Mayor Hylan's renomination represents or reflects the opinions of those who usually support the candidates of that organization?

"I do not think so at all. I do not think that these leaders even represent their own opinion. What they do represent are the opinions of transit magnates, and these leaders very unwisely think that big campaign contributions are more important to the organization than popular support.

"The Democratic Party in the City of New York is stronger than it ever has been in my lifetime, and this is not due to great campaign subsidies and bribes, because Hylan's course of honesty and loyalty to the public is not the kind of course that obtains great campaign contributions from exploiting interests.

"The strength of the Democratic Party is due to the approval of that course by the public, to the support of the people for Hylan's program, to the confidence of the public in an honest administration.

"If any leaders of Tammany Hall are short-sighted enough to sacrifice this public support and confidence for campaign contributions they will be sacrificing their birthright for a mess of pottage; they would be giving up the one thing that makes the organization permanently powerful for a little immediate personal gain.

"Such a course would be suicidal for the party and eventually suicidal for the leaders, because of what use are leaders if the party is out of power? Not even the public exploiters want to bestow subsidies upon leaders of a defeated or discredited party.

"Probably no question of public morality and public service appeals to leaders of this low-brow character, but self-interest does appeal to them, and it is not to their self-interest to wreck the political ship and go down with it."

(4) If Tammany Hall should nominate some one else, do you intend to back Mayor Hylan on a third ticket?

"I have not any plans because I feel confident Mayor Hylan is going to be nominated at the Democratic primary.

"But I would consider it a public duty to support Mayor Hylan in any way he is willing to run."

GET HYLAN BUTTONS; TOLD TO WEAR THEM

Dock Department Employes Protest Action at Annual Outing—Called 'Punk' Affair.

There is a lot of grumbling among employes of the Dock Department who have received Hylan buttons with instructions "to pin them on and wear them."

The distribution of buttons was made at the annual outing of the Dock Department at Atlantic Highlands last Saturday. A letter signed "Employe," which was received by THE TIMES, made the following comment on the affair:

"It was a very 'punk' affair. The only thing that it was run off for, it seemed to many of us, was to distribute Hylan buttons among us with instructions to pin them on and wear them. Why should we have to boost the Hylan Five Cent Fare Club and Hylan?"

The Five Cent Fare Club, of which William H. (Big Bill) Edwards, former Street Cleaning Commissioner, is President, claimed yesterday, after twelve days in the field, to have obtained 90,000 enrolled members.

Attempts made last night to reach Dock Commissioner Michael Cosgrove for his version of how the Hylan buttons came to be distributed failed. He was not at his clubhouse in the Sixteenth Assembly District, and at his residence the telephone was not answered.

A Deer Startles Hackensack, Trotting Through Back Yards

Special to The New York Times.

HACKENSACK, N. J., July 23.—Wild rabbits are common in Hackensack's residential section and some have been seen within two blocks of Main Street, the principal thoroughfare. But there was excitement this morning when a deer was discovered running through the back gardens on West Anderson Street and Clinton Place. Police Headquarters received a phone call before daylight that a mysterious creature was prowling, and Patrolmen George Vreeland and Joseph Pavlik were sent.

"It's a horse," queth Pavlik, who served through the Boxer War.

"You're wrong," said Vreeland, who was reared in Bergen County, "it's a deer." And just then the animal raced away. Daylight found he deer on the lawn of William Grower of West Anderson Street, but the crowds frightened it and it darted toward Ridgewood.

There are many deer in the Ramapo foothills twenty miles distant, but they seldom get this far south.

BURST MAIN FLOODS FIFTH AVENUE AGAIN

Geyser at Ninth Street Shoots Piece of Pavement Skyward and Drenches Pedestrians.

SURFACE IS UNDERMINED

Lower Fifth Avenue took on the semblance of a canal yesterday afternoon when the main water line supplying downtown business and tenement districts burst with geyser-like effect at Ninth Street. For the second time within a fortnight part of the city's busiest thoroughfare had to be roped off, and traffic jams resulted on Broadway, University Place and Sixth Avenue, to which vehicles had been diverted.

At 3:30 a three-foot piece of pavement shot skyward directly at the centre of the crossing. Passers-by were drenched as the water spouted up. Then the flow settled down to a steady outpour at the rate of 13,000 gallons per minute, inundating surrounding streets, areaways and cellars.

The paving from above Ninth Street down to Eighth began to buckle, rising in some spots three feet higher than normal. Small boys improvised ships of soap boxes and conducted naval engagements on the river flowing down Ninth Street to the gutters of Sixth Avenue.

Police Recruit William Shelley rushed from his traffic post at Broadway and Eighth Street and summoned police reserves from the Mercer Street station, who blocked off the avenue from Tenth Street to the arch. Then firemen arrived, followed by emergency trucks from the Water Supply Department, the Consolidated Gas Company, and contracting companies. Seven pneumatic tool trucks backed up to the aperture, and dozens of workmen started boring.

It took an hour and a half before the water could be turned off at the heads at Tenth Street and Fourth Street. As the break had not then been located all mains were shut off, including a 36-inch, a 20-inch, a 12-inch, and a high-pressure fire line. The 20-inch main was the same one that broke at Forty-second Street, flooding the shuttle and the Queensboro subways.

When the paving was opened up workers discovered that Fifth Avenue at this point had been left with no support whatever. Below the nine inches of pavement there was air for three feet, and then a subterranean canal. Trucks resting on this shell were rushed back to avoid a cave-in.

The pressure on the broken line was fifty pounds to the square inch, and the pipe was designed to withstand 100 pounds, Borough Engineer John McKay declared. "It is inconceivable that pressure caused the break," he said. "It was probably due to a slow leak, which undermined the dirt bed wherever the pipe lies. The weight of the pipe then caused a break."

Water service to lower New York would not be interrupted, Mr. McKay asserted, since it had been possible to hook up that section to a crossline joining the Catskill water tunnel at a point under Cooper Square.

The broken main, he said, would probably be repaired within two days. It would take two weeks to fill in Fifth Avenue between Eighth and Ninth Streets with temporary paving. After the temporary pavement had settled for some weeks permanent pavement would be laid.

Emergency traffic regulations require south-bound traffic on Fifth Avenue to turn east at Tenth Street and north-bound traffic from Washington Square to proceed by way of Sixth Avenue. Counting eight blocks cut off at Forty-second Street there are now eighteen blocks of Fifth Avenue on which buses are not allowed to operate. The Forty-second Street repairs will be completed in about a week, according to Mr. McKay.

Progressive Political League Will Name a Full Ticket.

The Progressive Political League of Greater New York, which designated Warren Shaw Fisher for Mayor on Monday night, will put an entire city ticket in the field, it was announced last night at a meeting of the Kings County General Committee of the league at 2,160 Ocean Parkway, Brooklyn.

At that meeting Thomas Barrett of 769 East Eighth Street, Brooklyn, was designated for Comptroller; User Marcus, of 402 Avenue I, Brooklyn, for Borough President, and a committee of five was chosen to designate an entire city ticket. The members of this committee are User Marcus, Chairman; Adolph Zuckerman, Secretary; Benjamin Selig, Charles Rosenzweig and Thomas Barrett.

The league, which supported Bennett four years ago, asserts it polled close to 200,000 votes at that time.

Divorces Burgoyne Hamilton.

Special to The New York Times.

STAMFORD, Conn., July 23.—Judge Arthur F. Elli today granted Mrs. Florence A. Hamilton, wife of Burgoyne Hamilton, a former officer of the Seventh Regiment of New York and a real estate operator there, a divorce on the ground of misconduct. She is to receive alimony of $300 a year. The couple have two children, a son who attends college, and a daughter who lives with her mother in Darien, Conn.

WIGWAM SET TO END HYLAN IN PRIMARIES

Foes of the Mayor in Tammany Believe His Defeat There Would Be Final.

SEE MAYOR OUTNUMBERED

Democratic Strength in Manhattan and Bronx Exceeds That in the Rest of the City.

COUNT ON AID IN BROOKLYN

Thousands There Said to Be Alienated by Tax Phase of Hylan Subway Plan.

Tammany is prepared for the "showdown" which Mayor Hylan threatened to force in a statement on Wednesday, declaring that he would not under any circumstances permit himself to be sidetracked by a nomination for the Supreme Court.

Tammany is ready to meet the Mayor on his own ground and fight him as a standstill, provided he has the courage to enter the Democratic primaries and make his fight within party lines. Should John H. McCooey, the Democratic leader of Brooklyn; Borough President Maurice Connolly, head of the Democratic organization in Queens, and David S. Rentz, the newly elected Democratic chief in Richmond, persist in their support of Mayor Hylan, Tammany is even prepared to carry its warfare on the Mayor into those boroughs, which, under the circumstances, would be "the enemy's country."

Word that this course would be followed came from anti-Hylan Democrats who will be actively identified with any fight to eliminate Mayor Hylan as a candidate to succeed himself soon after a telegram from William R. Hearst had been published in which the editor-politician again declared that he would give unconditional support to the Mayor "in any way he is willing to run." Every warlike possibility that might grow out of Tammany's refusal to support Mayor Hylan for renomination, it was said, had been considered and discounted, and if the Mayor is dropped it will be with full realization of the consequences and preparedness to meet any situation that might arise.

McCooey Still an Uncertainty.

While the spirits of the anti-Hylan group appeared to have revived greatly yesterday, no one was willing to predict with any degree of assurance that Mayor Hylan was beaten or that any light had been shed in the last twenty-four hours on the attitude of Leader McCooey. When it came to McCooey h

SEES RUSSIAN TRADE WITH US IMPROVING

C. N. Carver Back on Resolute, Also Says Soviet Business With Germany Is Brisk.

FOUND MOSCOW THRIVING

Food Is Abundant and Industries Busy, He Avers—Carillo Arrives From Jamaica.

Commerce between the United States and Russia is not only improving but gives promise of material expansion in the future, according to Clifford N. Carver, American director of the Derutra, or German-Russian Transport Company, 26 Water Street, who returned yesterday on the United American liner Resolute from a business trip to Germany and Russia. He announced that his firm would ship five shiploads of agricultural machinery and cotton from the United States to Russia before Aug. 1.

On his trip, Mr. Carver said, he represented the shipping interests of W. A. Harriman, controlling 25 per cent. of the Derutra stock.

Germany also is conducting a fairly brisk business with Russia, he said, explaining that Germany was importing a large quantity of furs and hides from Russia. He said that the private American creditors of Russia could not hope for early settlement of their accounts unless Russia received external economic assistance. He found a marked depression overshadowing Leningrad. He said the population was now 750,000, compared with 2,000,000 formerly. In contrast, he found Moscow very active, with a population that has increased from 1,000,000 to 2,000,000 since the war. He said Moscow had become not only the seat of government but also "the centre of the vast commercial life of the nation."

"Conditions in Moscow are greatly improved," Mr. Carver said. "There is an abundance of foods and practically anything can be bought in the shops. Government management of industries has not always proved successful and the Government is gradually abandoning the work and leasing factories to their former owners, who are operating them profitably and efficiently."

The Resolute brought 261 passengers, including 115 in the first cabin, from Hamburg, Southampton and Cherbourg.

Another steamer arriving yesterday was the United Fruit liner Carrillo, from Kingston, Jamaica, with seventy-two passengers. Captain Thomas Smith said he stopped his ship off Cape Henry, Va., on Wednesday, when the seas were running high, because he saw two ships, one of which apparently was in distress. He spoke to them and learned that both were safe. He then learned that one of the ships was the Arcturus, the floating laboratory used by William Beebe and other scientists now exploring the Sargasso Sea, and the other Harrison Williams's yacht Warrior, which went south to meet the Arcturus.

GREAT HAVOC WROUGHT BY STORM IN FRANCE

Nine Are Dead at Luchon Below Wrecked Power Plant—Crops Throughout Country Ruined.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 23.—Details reaching Paris tonight regarding the great storm of yesterday, which was severest in the Pyrenees Mountains, include many tales of suffering and destruction.

Houses, trees, gardens and crops in the charming valleys of the Layrisse, Pique and Lys Rivers remain as evidence of the havoc wreaked by the storm's cyclonic fury.

The electric power plant at La Picadere on the L'One River below Peyresourde Pass, was entirely wrecked. Where it once stood there is now a little plateau with a few rocks and some sand. The girders, bricks, machinery, tiles and all have entirely disappeared and lie somewhere under the swirling waters that are dashing down toward the plains.

Two men who were guarding the factory were able to escape when the tubes broke and the torrent began to beat holes into the roof. Further down stream all the gardens and houses along the river were swept away as its bed was widened and stone bridges were snapped like twigs.

The reservoir at Naou Hounts was also swept away. This provided water for the famous Luchon resort, and La Picadere supplied the town with light and power. There are nine known dead near Luchon.

In Normandy the crops of cider apples suffered greatly and the losses amount to millions of francs. In many villages roofs were caved in by hailstones, while the wind snapped all the windows and rocked the houses.

Waterspouts in this region washed away the surface of the countryside, leaving broken trees standing in fields of mud.

In Brittany crops were beaten down by the deluge and many houses were struck by lightning. The storm continues with unabated fury and ships are keeping to port.

All other parts of France report similar losses. Countless farmhouses were burned to the ground despite sheets of rain falling, while the damage to crops may be rated as nothing less than a national disaster.

GIRL TELLS OF ATTACK.

Says Two Men Tried to Kidnap Her in Auto—She Is Sent to a Hospital.

Found wandering in the Iron Bound section of Newark early yesterday, Miss Marguerite Hatman, 15 years old, of 83 Vincent Street, told the police she had been attacked by two young men, who threw her into an automobile and tried to kidnap her. She said she fought them so much that they threw her out of the car in an isolated section of the city.

The girl was sent to the Newark City Hospital. Physicians said she showed no marks of the attack. Detectives and doctors questioned her closely, but she clung to the story of the attempted kidnapping, and gave a description of the two men.

"Candida" at N. Y. U. Playhouse.

About 200 persons last night enjoyed the broad farce of Bernard Shaw's comedy "Candida," as presented by the Washington Square Players at the New York University Playhouse at 100 Washington Square. A series of four plays have been planned for the third Summer season of the players, "Candida" being the second of this series. The show will also be given this evening and tomorrow evening. Sir James M. Barrie's "Alice-Sit-by-the-Fire" will be tried next week. The cast of this week's comedy includes Davida Galbraith, Richard Keough, John Koch, Richard Lambert, Miriam Stoep and Nelson Peters.

HAMLET TO APPEAR IN A BOILED SHIRT

London Will See Shakespearean Roles in Evening Dress and Other Up-to-Date Costumes.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
—By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 23.—"Hamlet" in a boiled shirt and dress suit is the newest theatrical sensation in prospect for the British public.

Sir Barry Jackson, director of the Birmingham Repertory Theatre, it is announced, will produce "Hamlet" in modern costume at the Kingsway Theatre on Aug. 25, and the critics are speculating as to whether, if Hamlet wears a boiled shirt Polonius would spot one of those colorful pull-over sweaters and the Queen of Denmark the latest creation from Paris. It is suggested that Ophelia be brought right up to the last minute and appear in Oxford bags and a cross-word jumper.

While humorous things are being said, Sir Barry is going ahead seriously with the rehearsals of what is expected to be a dramatic sensation.

"It is unlikely that the characters will adopt uniformity of attire: each one will be garbed to suit the situation," said Sir Barry. "For example, since some scenes are nocturnal, Hamlet may be seen wearing a boiled shirt, opera hat and evening dress. The whole idea is based on the belief that the ordinary person who goes to see "Hamlet" with costumes from the theatrical costumer does not appreciate the play, which seems unreal to him. He does not realize that the characters, strangely garbed and wigged, are flesh-and-blood people, so I propose to popularize 'Hamlet' for the average citizen."

BEETHOVEN AT STADIUM.

Philharmonic Orchestra Gives the Ninth Symphony.

A wonderful audience, an audience worthy of the Ninth Symphony, packed the Stadium last evening to hear Beethoven's masterpiece interpreted by the Philharmonic orchestra under Willem Van Hoogstraten. After two postponements, the weather relented and a beautiful evening permitted a record crowd to enjoy what is unanimously considered the greatest symphony ever written. If there were moments when the musicians failed to reach the heights which the composer has indicated, there were others when they carried their hearers well on the crest of his inspiration. The molto vivace, with its rugged vitality, its strenuous conviction, made a deep impression on an assembly which listened from beginning to end with the deepest attention.

In a different manner, yet no less effective, was the contrast of the third movement. When the baritone recitative broke on the ear, intuitively one felt how greatly right the master had been to add the human voice to his instruments. Mr. Van Hoogstraten and his men threw themselves, soul and body, mind and spirit, into their task. They were ably assisted by the fine chorus from the Oratorio Society and Schola Cantorum, led by such soloists as Ruth Rodgers, Irene Wilder, Charles Stratton and Frazer Iange.

The concert began with a splendid performance of the "Leonore" overture, No. 3. Tonight Beethoven's Ninth Symphony will be repeated at the Stadium with the chorus and soloist.

MELCHIOR IN "PARSIFAL."

Tenor, Coming Here Next Season, Sings Title Role at Bayreuth.

BEYREUTH, July 23.—A cool wind bringing relief from the oppressive heat at the start of the second festival performance of "Parsifal," had a salutary effect on the artistic forces, resulting in a magnificent performance of the Wagnerian masterpiece inseparably connected with the fame of Bayreuth.

The title role was superbly interpreted by Lauritz Melchior, the Danish tenor, coming to the Metropolitan next season to sing Wagnerian and other German roles. Melchior proved himself today not only a singer of marvelous range, but a great actor as well.

Theodor Scheidl's Amfortas brought a remarkable emotional wave from the audience in the first grail scene, thereby emphasizing the far-famed Beyreuth "Parsifal" atmosphere. Barbara Kemp scored as Kundry, while the orchestra and the chorus were magnificent. New scenery and costumes showed commendable modern tendencies.

Beyreuth was crowded to capacity, and there was some profiteering, especially among the Festspielhaus restaurants.

DENIES MOVIE BAN CHARGE.

Producers' Secretary Says Seider Attack Is on Arbitration.

Courtland Smith, Secretary of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributers of America, over which Will H. Hays presides as "movie czar," said yesterday his organization would have nothing to say in reply to an attack on the organization published yesterday by Joseph M. Seider, President of the Motion Picture Owners of New Jersey.

"This is simply an attack on arbitration," said Mr. Smith, "and the principle of arbitration does not need to be defended in these days when it is making progress in every branch of industry. Our arbitration boards are fair, being invariably made up of three producers and three exhibitors."

Mr. Smith also said it was untrue that the organization had "placed a ban" on the use of "The Green Hat" and "They Knew What They Wanted" for movie purposes.

"We do not do that in any instance," said Mr. Smith. "Our members simply talk over productions and decide what they want to do. That is going on all the time."

"Is the inference justified that you have discussed these plays and decided on them?" he was asked.

"The inference is justified," he replied, "that it is unlikely 'The Green Hat' and 'They Knew What They Wanted' will be presented in screen form by any one connected with this organization."

"Gay Paree" on Aug. 10.

"Gay Paree," a new revue, will be produced at the Shubert Theatre on Monday night, Aug. 10, under the management of the Shuberts in association with Rufus Le Maire. The cast includes Winnie Lightner, Billy B. Van, Charles (Chic) Sales, George Le Maire, Richard Bold, Eddie Conrad, Jack Haley, Dorothy Barber and others.

LIKENS OUR MOVIES TO USELESS BROTH

Hot and Stimulating But Lacking in Nutrition, Tancred Ibsen Says.

DOESN'T LIKE FILM STARS

Norwegian Dramatist's Grandson, After Hollywood Trip, Will Make His Own Pictures.

Tancred Ibsen, grandson of the Norwegian dramatist Hendrik Ibsen, has been in Hollywood for ten months studying the motion picture industry, it was learned yesterday, and is now on his way back to Europe with some new ideas about movie production. Mr. Ibsen, who is staying at the Hotel Astor before sailing for Europe, would not disclose the nature of his conclusions, as he means to capitalize them abroad, but he was willing to give his impressions of the making of American films, which he says are constructed mechanically, strictly as a business proposition, with happy endings, to provide profitable entertainment.

In Europe, he said, pictures are produced to give the audience a thought and entertainment besides. He deplored the absence of inspiration to thought in American films and declared that in spite of the fact that even the best material is often used it "cooked to pieces" and remains just so much worthless broth, the real nutritive value being thrown away.

Mr. Ibsen, who is in the late thirties, was 12 years old when his famous grandfather died. He has inherited a certain dramatic trend of thought, he said, but instead of putting his ideas into form for the stage he plans to make motion pictures his future work.

"The motion picture game is a business," he said, "an emotional kind of a restaurant, so to speak. However, the food prepared in the enormous kitchen consists of merely one single course, a very strong bouillon. Because the bouillon is hot and highly seasoned the public feels stimulated just after drinking it, while in reality the heat and the strong seasoning are unhealthful for the system. And, as we all know, bouillon contains no nutritive value. Apple sauce is to be preferred.

"I have always wondered why the managers of this restaurant do not give orders to their many cooks and tell them to make some other courses. Maybe the reason is that the managers think they earn more money by serving the cheap broth constantly; or maybe they have no cooks who know how to prepare something new.

"I agree that a book has to be changed from its original form when turned into a motion picture, for the reason that a thought cannot be expressed on the screen except through action. But I claim that the actions must be according to the thought of the author, which is the real value, the nourishment of the whole thing."

Most of the money in the production, he said, went to the "dummies," as he described the screen stars, who he said are shifted about like manikins and told what to do.

Meighan to Make Movie in Ireland.

Thomas Meighan is booked with Mrs. Meighan to sail on the Leviathan tomorrow to make a moving picture in Ireland. Mr. Meighan will spend about four weeks in the picturesque hills of County Kerry and the picture will have as a background the Lakes of Killarney, Muckrose Abbey, Rose Castle and Blarney Castle, while some scenes will be made on a racecourse near Dublin. The title of the picture is not given and nothing of its nature is revealed by the producers except the statement that it will embody "an authentic Irish story." Tom Geraghty, who largely wrote the scenario, will accompany the star as supervisor and others of the party will be Victor Heerman, director; Alvin Wyckoff, cinematographer; Louis A. Sarecky, Ted Pahle, Gaston Longet and Emmet Crozier.

MUSIC NOTES.

Beethoven's Ninth Symphony, with chorus and soloists, will be repeated this evening at the Lewisohn Stadium by the Philharmonic Orchestra under Willem Van Hoogstraten's direction. In case of rain, the program previously announced will be given in the Great Hall.

Esther Gustafson of New York has been engaged to head the dance department of the new Eastman School of Dance and Dramatic Action at Rochester, which will open in September.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Signe Paterson will be started next season by F. Ralph Gervers in "South Sea Love," by Allen Tarry.

An office for the transaction of business and meetings of officers and committees has been opened by the Theatrical Press Representatives of America, Inc., at 140 West Forty-second Street.

Helen MacKellar in "The Mud Turtle," by Elliott Lester, will open at the Bijou Theatre on Monday night, Aug. 3. The play was tried out in Philadelphia some weeks ago.

Brown Shades for Men's Wear.

To the growing popularity of the bracken shades in men's suits may be attributed the fact that well dressed men are wearing colored hats, according to certain style authorities. Brown leghorn hats achieved a considerable vogue at the Florida resorts last February. At the present time, hats of this style are being worn in shades of pale cocoa brown. It is expected that the bracken shades also will be an important factor in men's Fall and Winter styles. The popularity of these hues is also expected to centre attention upon the various tones of brown neckwear which will harmonize well with their autumnal colorings. Havana brown as a background for this neckwear, with motifs carried out in shades of Rouen blue, black, tan or red, will be featured, and there is evidence that the vogue of beetroot shades will continue through the Winter.

Corsets More In Vogue.

Corset manufacturers of the better grade of goods are reporting no lack of business and are finding added encouragement in reports from Paris that more waistline is being shown in the new dress creations. Corset men say that the use of different names for articles similar to corsets has indicated a much greater falling off in corset business than was actually the case. For example, the so-called girdle which they are making is in reality a corset, although it constitutes a radical departure from the old-fashioned backlaced type, with innumerable eyelets. A large percentage of the corset business is now done in girdles and belts which are made of elastic webbing. The girdles are of the simple wrap-around type, and hook in the back. These are of a semi-reducing nature, and they have supplanted the rubber reducing corsets. Brassiere and corset combinations and the knitted elastic webbing step-ins are also expected to sell well.

Rayon In Undergarments.

Buyers of women's undergarments for their Fall requirements have thus far stressed the novelties, especially the flowered effects. Silk and cotton mixtures and hand-made undergarments have always been popular, while an increased demand for staple white goods has been noted. Rayon undergarments, which were produced on a large scale during the last season, are said to be competing with the silk rather than with the cotton variety. A tendency toward the production of very cheap rayon undergarments is frowned upon by the underwear industry, which fears that these unsatisfactory articles will discredit the use of the material in underwear. The firm position of glove silk underwear among the better trade is said not to be seriously threatened by the rayon development.

Less Use of Narrow Fabrics.

Manufacturers of narrow fabrics are finding conditions somewhat dull because of two developments which have affected their industry. The first of these conditions is the policy of placing small orders for future delivery as opposed to the substantial seasonal purchases of former years. A second factor which has worked against this industry is the change in habits of dress, especially noticeable in women. An example of this is the trend in women's underwear away from ribbons, laces and rosettes, which formerly consumed much narrow fabric material. The loss of popularity of men's sport belts has also affected this industry to some extent, although the recent revival of the use of suspenders, which has been brought about by the wearing of wide trousers, has partially made up for this loss of business. It is not expected that the greater use of dress trimmings this Fall will benefit narrow fabrics greatly, since the braid lines will absorb most of the increased demand. An interesting trend in narrow fabrics is the growing use of rayon, which has outstripped silk as a material entering into production, and is now threatening cotton for leadership.

For Boudoir Dressers.

Novelties for a woman's boudoir dresser include puff boxes, perfume bottles, picture frames and trays with filigree metal decorations, in which colored stones are set. These articles are to retail from $3.50 upward, the puff boxes bringing $6. Hitherto items of this kind were to be had only in a much higher range of prices. Aside from the filigree metal decorations the articles, which come in a score of sizes and shapes, are of plain glass.

Offers Pearls in Newest Hues.

One of the prominent manufacturers of artificial pearls is offering them to the trade this season in all of the newest hues ordained by fashion and it is now possible for women, if they so desire, to match the colors of their various costumes with their pearls. Such shades as golden pheasant, epinard green, geranium petal, pansy and turquoise blue have been given special consideration in working out the new line. Color in pearls was first seen in chokers," but the manufacturer in question has gone a step further by introducing delicate tints into longer strands. All of the hues employed have been studied in conjunction with the garment colors to be worn this Fall. Incidentally, this manufacturer predicts an active business in artificial pearls this season if the retailers will make an effort to get it.

Cotton Rise Hits Gray Goods.

The sharp rise in cotton here yesterday, following the bullish report on the condition of the crop, put an effective check on trading in gray goods. Some business, principally in printcloths, was done before the report was issued, but during the afternoon most of the leading sellers were out of the market. Among the reported printcloth sales were spot 39-inch 68-72s at 10¼ cents, and August lots of 39½-inch 64-60s and 60-48s at 9¼ and 9 cents, respectively. Similar business was done in 39½-inch 44-40s at 6⅝ cents. Very little activity was reported in sheetings, which were held at 9¾ cents for 37-inch 48-squares, four-yard sheets. For 72-80 pajama checks the best that could be done was 10¾ cents. The remainder of the market was bare of feature.

Underwear Buyers Are Hesitant.

Buying of light underwear in this market for the Spring season of 1926 continues small and jobbers make little pretense of desiring to operate to any large extent until there are more definite developments in the cotton crop. It is expected, however, that yesterday's bullish report will stimulate business quite a little. One of the features of the new goods is the efforts made by a number of producers of balbriggans to increase the sale of these goods by the introduction of novelties. Many of these are in colors and contain stripes of artificial silk. There is a diversity of opinion as to how well they will sell, in the women's underwear lines a feature is the number of mills that are taking up the manufacture of rayon goods. Repeat buying of general lines of heavyweight underwear continues to drag.

Salesmen to Have Convention.

Between 3,000 and 4,000 delegates from the various bodies represented in the membership of the National Council of Traveling Salesmen's Associations will be in this city early in September to attend the annual convention of the organization, according to an announcement made yesterday from its headquarters in the Hotel Pennsylvania. About 932,000 traveling men are members of the various associations included in the council. The major part of the meeting, the actual dates for which are Sept. 7 and 8, will be given over to discussions dealing with the general improvement of business. Some of the most prominent business men in the country, as well as officials of Government departments, will make addresses. One of the topics which will come up for serious consideration is the growing competition with retailers of house-to-house canvassers.

Fall Hosiery Buying Not Active.

Current business for Fall has been somewhat disappointing of late in the primary end of the hosiery trade. Most of the out-of-town jobbers, contrary to the expectations of the selling agents, have given more attention to the buying of recently opened Spring lines of infants' and children's goods than to filling the remainder of their Fall needs. According to this special news letter of the National Association of Hosiery and Underwear Manufacturers, however, there is nothing to be alarmed about in this situation, and predictions of a good Fall season still hold. The indications, though, are that the bulk of the orders which remain to be written will be taken on the road, rather than in this market. If this turns out to be the case, it will only be in keeping with trade practice of the last few years.

MAY VOID LAMONT COMPACT

Mexico City Hears Treasury Will Do So on Aug. 1.

MEXICO CITY, July 23 (AP).—A report is current here that the Treasury Department will declare the Lamont-de la Huerta agreement, providing for the payment of the outstanding debts of the Republic of Mexico, null and void on Aug. 1. The reason for this action, according to the report, is that both the international bankers involved in the debt question and the Mexican Government have not complied with the main points of the compact.

The debt agreement was signed on June 16, 1922, after conferences which began on June 2 between Adolfo de la Huerta, acting as Secretary of the Mexican Treasury, and the International Committee of Bankers headed by Thomas W. Lamont of J. P. Morgan & Co. Under its terms Mexico agreed to resume payments on her defaulted obligations.

Auction "Victims" Get Money Back

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 23.—Leading fifteen indignant men and women who said they had been victimized by auction shops on the boardwalk here Samuel P. Leeds, President of the Atlantic City Chamber of Commerce, today went to the stores in question and in number of them got back the money paid for articles said to be worthless or nearly so. A movement has been started supported by the city officials, to eliminate such shops from the Boardwalk.

DYNAMITE SLOOP SAVED.

Captain, Badly Burned, Rescued After Gasoline Stove Explosion.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, July 23.—When a gasoline cook stove exploded on the 60-foot sloop Charles M. Kelly of Baltimore while at anchor in the Inlet Harbor here today Captain P. J. Sullivan of Bloomfield, N. J., suffered burns which may cause his death.

The vessel was loaded with dynamite, and heroism on the part of officers and sailors of the Federal dry navy here not only resulted in the rescue of Sullivan, but prevented an explosion which would probably have caused death and large property loss.

A sailor on the United States ship Pickering saw a sudden flash on the sloop followed by smoke, and reported to Commander Randolph Ridgely of the dry navy. Several Government patrol boats went to the vessel, and both officers and seamen boarded her with fire extinguishers.

They found Sullivan lying unconscious and discovered that the vessel was loaded with dynamite, near which flames were raging. The Government men poured streams of water into the burning craft.

Sullivan has a contract for removal of the wreckage of the schooner Lizzie Parsons from the beach here, and the dynamite was being used for that purpose. He is in a critical condition at the Atlantic City Hospital.

CITY BREVITIES.

Federal Judge Benjamin C. Dawkins in Brooklyn yesterday administered the oath of allegiance to 129 alien applicants. The principal foreign countries represented were Russia, Poland, Great Britain and Italy, in the order named.

William Green, President of the American Federation of Labor, has accepted a place on the national committee sponsoring the $5,000,000 endowment fund campaign of the American Legion for veterans' orphans and disabled men, it was announced yesterday.

The Women's Peace Society announced yesterday that tomorrow, which has been designated "No More War Day," a float representing "Peace on Earth, Good-Will Toward Men," would tour the city under the auspices of the society.

The annual convention of the National Council of the Traveling Salesmen's Association will be held in New York the first three days in September, it was announced yesterday at the executive offices of the organization at the Hotel Pennsylvania. Spokesmen for 912,000 traveling salesmen will attend.

Registration for special courses at the New York University Summer School, School of Commerce, running from July 27 to Aug. 14, will be limited to three days, starting today and ending on Monday at 7:30 P. M. The courses are open to all students in the School of Education.

Army officers and civilian employes of the United States Army Base at Bay Ridge, Brooklyn, tendered a farewell luncheon yesterday to Colonel Hugh Gallagher, commanding officer of the base, who will be retired at midnight tonight at the maximum age of 64 years. The luncheon was held in the administration building of the base. About 500 were present.

A farewell dinner was given to General William C. Hoffmeinheimer, President of the Trust Company of New Jersey, last night, by the employes of the main office of the company in Jersey City. General Hoffmeinheimer will sail next Tuesday for Europe for a two months' visit with his daughter, Mrs. Robert Vansittart, in London.

Haddon Lake Reopened After Test.

Special to The New York Times.

HAMMONTON, N. J., July 23.—Haddon Lake, which was closed to bathers yesterday morning on orders of the Audubon Board of Health, after Dr. William Haines, Borough Health Officer had said he believed the waters of the lake had been poisoned with paris green, was reopened today. Chemical analysis of the water failed to show poison.

BUSINESS NOTES.

An attractive book of more than 100 pages, outlining the sixty years of business life of the Arlington Mills, is now being distributed to the woolen trade and to various newspapers and trade publications.

Only retailers will exhibit models at the forthcoming fashion show of the Retail Millinery Association of America, which will be held at the Hotel Astor on Aug. 4. Among the local firms that will make displays are Henri Bendel, Inc.; Hattie Carnegie, Inc.; Tappe, Kurzman, Jay Thorpe, Inc.; H. Arnold and Bruck-Weiss.

Cotton Sweeps Violently Upward on Government Report of Decline in Crop Condition.

Not in many years has there been such a sharp and complete reversal of form in a crop as was reflected yesterday in the 1925-1926 crop of cotton, if figures of the Department of Agriculture are borne out by the final yield. The forecast, announced at noon yesterday, was the second of the year. The first was on July 3, estimating a crop of 14,339,000 bales. Yesterday the department placed its estimate at 13,583,000 bales. In other words, in the brief three weeks' period between the two reports the Department of Agriculture estimated that the prospective crop had shrunk by 751,000 bales. The trade was caught completely by surprise especially as to the condition, fixed at 70.4 per cent. as of July 15, as compared with 75.9 per cent. on June 25. The immediate result was a scramble for cotton contracts for all months and the quotations advanced approximately $5 to $7 per bale in a market which was wild and excited.

A great many things may happen to the cotton crop, of course, between this time and the time it is picked and ginned. These are the critical weeks. Nevertheless, it is reasonable to presume that this year's crop, despite the increased acreage, will be about even with that of last year, which gave a final out-turn of 13,618,751 bales. Just how prone to err, however, are the Government figures of mid-July was fully demonstrated last year when the final out-turn was more than 1,500,000 bales above the July 16 estimate. Even assuming the Government figure of 13,583,000 bales to be the correct one for the final out-turn, this would represent the second largest crop since 1914, with a gain of some 3,500,000 bales over 1923, 3,750,000 bales over 1922, and 5,500,000 bales over 1921. In fact, leaving out of consideration last year's large out-turn, one must go back to the 16,135,000-bale crop of 1914 to find a cotton crop so large. Other statistics, however, lead the cotton trade to the belief that there will not be a large surplus left at the end of the year. This is borne out mainly by the exports, which, at 8,169,000 bales for the season, are 2,400,000 bales ahead of the same time last year. Domestic consumption, too, is greater by almost 500,000 bales than at this time last year. In light of these figures, the veritable scramble for contracts on the exchanges yesterday is not to be considered remarkable.

On the Stock Exchange the nervousness and hesitation which have been evident for the past two or three days appeared to pass overnight. Stocks were once more "bid up" in confident fashion and no less than twenty-five leading issues on the Stock Exchange sold at new high records for the year. Sales were once more well above the "million-share mark." The improved tone was in the face of a renewal rate of 4¼ per cent., the highest renewal for call money since July 14. Back of the betterment in stock market prices was the knowledge that very little stock has been brought to market for sale on the recent reactions. This, naturally, heartened those who have higher prices in mind. However, the stock market at the present time is so very professional that the day-to-day ebb and flow of prices probably is entirely without prophetic value. At any rate, those who set about marking up particular stocks yesterday seemed to encounter only a modicum of opposition.

The Bank of France was able to make a considerably better report yesterday than in the previous week. Circulation declined by 311,000,000 francs and the State repaid to the bank 850,000,000 francs. These drastic changes, of course, are incident to the rehabilitation of the French financial system now under way. The outstanding feature of the statement of the Bank of England was that the ratio of reserve is now 21.16 per cent., the highest since June 21, 1916.

MONEY.

THURSDAY, JULY 23, 1925.

Stock Exchange call money ruled easy, rate dropping to 4 per cent. from opening and renewal at 4¼. An outside market prevailed all day at 4. Decline was attributed to light demand for new money, absence of any sizable withdrawals, while there was a heavy supply on hand and which had been attracted by the maximum charges on Tuesday and Wednesday. There was no feature to the trading in time money, bankers holding the distant periods at 4¼, with a few trades at that figure, and the nearer dates at 4¼. Call loans against acceptances hardened ¼ to ¾ per cent., but otherwise commercial money market was dull and unchanged in discount.

Satisfying a Two-Fold Demand

Just as do well managed public utility companies successfully meet the ever increasing demands for electric light, power and transportation, so do the bonds and dividend-paying stocks of such companies satisfy the demands of investors interested in sound securities yielding a liberal return.

RADIO CORPORATION HAS FIRST DEFICIT

Earnings for June Quarter Show Loss of $391,053—Gross Is $4,584,465.

LAID TO PRICE CUTTING

Firm Steadily Refused to Join in Radio War—Official Sees Sales Revival in Fall.

The Radio Corporation of America reported the first deficit in its history yesterday when its earnings for the quarter showed a loss of $391,053, compared with a net profit of $1,928,329 in the March quarter. This is taken as a reflection of the drastic "unloading" of radio apparatus by competing companies in the last several months.

Despite price cutting due to oversupply, virtual duplication and a distinct let-up in the demand for sets, Radio Corporation has refused to cut prices. This explains the deficit, according to officers of the company, who said yesterday that there had not been sufficient radical changes in radio sets to cause the loss, in spite of reports to this effect.

The company's gross income from sales, communications and other business was $4,584,465, compared with $15,229,923 in the March quarter. Much of this discrepancy is assignable to seasonal conditions, which have always favored the first quarter against the Summer quarter.

General operating and administration expenses, depreciation, cost of sales, patent amortization, estimated Federal income tax and accrued reserve for year-end adjustments came to $4,975,518, or $391,053 more than gross income. In the preceding quarter the company's expenses were $13,301,594.

For the first six months of the year the company reported a profit of $1,537,276.

The company's rapid growth in sales from a gross business of $1,468,920 in 1921 to more than $50,000,000 last year has constituted an industrial romance almost without parallel. In view of the deficit reported yesterday there is considerable interest in financial circles as to what the company's showing for the year will be. Gross business in the six months was said by an official yesterday to have been about $700,000 above last year, while the profit reported was "not as good as last year." A revival of demand for sets is confidently expected in the Fall.

The statement contains no figures on gross or net business for the first six months of 1924. The corporation did not issue quarterly reports until its stock was listed on the New York Stock Exchange last Fall.

ROADS HAVE 83,291 NEW FREIGHT CARS

Total Placed in Service During the First Half-Year Largest on Record.

The greatest number of freight cars on record was placed in service during the first six months of this year by Class I railroads, it is disclosed by reports filed with the Car Service Division of the American Railway Association.

The total number installed during the first half year was 83,291, exceeding by 12,417 the number placed in service during the first six months last year and by 4,051 the number placed in service during the first six months of 1923.

Box cars placed in service during the six months period totaled 43,627, an increase of 12,191 over the same period last year and 10,541 in excess of the same period of 1923. Coal cars number 29,504, an increase of 7,029 over last year but 2,240 below two years ago. The roads also installed 3,382 refrigerator cars, a decrease of 3,531 compared with last year and a decrease of 6,049 compared with 1923.

While the number of cars placed in service during the first six months established a record, there was a substantial reduction in the number of freight cars on order on July 1 of this year, when the total was 28,197, compared with 60,315 on July 1, 1924, and 96,855 on July 1, 1923.

Class I roads during the first half of 1925 placed in service 927 steam locomotives compared with 1,071 during the same period last year and 1,998 during the same period of 1923. There were 279 locomotives on order on July 1, compared with 360 on the same day last year and 1,902 two years ago. These figures include new, rebuilt and leased equipment.

The average capacity of the freight cars owned by Class I railroads on July 1 this year was 44.56 tons compared with 43.88 tons on the same date last year, or an increase of 1.5 per cent. The average tractive power per locomotive on July 1 was 40,215 pounds compared with 39,571 pounds on the same date last year, or an increase of 1.6 per cent.

EASIER TONE IN RUBBER.

Slow Trading and Mixed Cables From Abroad Bring Lower Prices.

Absence of any sizable inquiry by manufacturers for crude rubber and mixed cables from abroad forced a deadlock in the market yesterday which resulted in an easier tone and lower prices at the close. Forenoon trading in spot smoked sheets was reported around $1.20, which was a slight reaction from Wednesday, but later sellers' prices ran off to $1.10. There was no great pressure to sell, however, and in the final hour of trading little actual business was reported.

London cables fluctuated nervously, running a range from 53 5/16d. for spot at the opening up to 54d., with a reaction to 53 5/16d. at the close.

Quotations for the principal grades, spot and later months, follow:

HOTEL ALBA

PALM BEACH, FLA.

First Mortgage 6½% Sinking Fund Bonds

Dated July 8, 1925 Due June 15, 1940
Interest Coupons Payable June 15 and December 15

We summarize as follows from a letter from Mr. G. M. Heckscher, president of the borrowing corporation, and from data compiled in our investigation of this issue:

MORTGAGED PROPERTY: The bonds are a direct closed first mortgage on the new Hotel Alba, now under construction and to be completed and ready for occupancy by January 1, 1926, and land in fee, constituting the site of the old Palm Beach Hotel. The building, of reinforced concrete, stone and stucco, will be nine stories in height, with two towers, containing 533 guest rooms with 494 baths. It will be strictly fireproof. In design, furnishing, fittings and service, it will represent the last word in modern hotel construction. On the ground floor will be 35 shops with entrances both from the street and the hotel.

OWNERSHIP: The bonds are the direct obligation of the Southern Florida Realty Corporation, of which Mr. G. M. Heckscher is president and principal stockholder and of which Mr. August Heckscher is a director. Mr. G. M. Heckscher is not only interested in a number of the extensive realty holdings of his father, Mr. August Heckscher, but is personally the owner of several profitable and successful properties in New York City and in the State of Florida. Among the properties in which he is interested are the 277 Park Avenue Apartment Building, New York City, and the Dallas Park Apartments, Miami, Florida, both of which are security for first mortgage bond issues underwritten by S.W. Straus & Co.

LOCATION: Palm Beach has been firmly established for many years as one of the premier winter resorts of the United States. The Hotel Alba property fronts on Lake Worth between Bradley Place and Lake Trail. This site is in the heart of the best district of Palm Beach, within a block of the Florida East Coast Railway Station, convenient to the high-class shopping center, and surrounded by many costly private residences.

The demand for high-grade accommodations in Palm Beach during the winter season, already extremely heavy, has been intensified by the fires last winter which burned down two of the principal hotels containing more than 700 rooms. Construction of the Hotel Alba will only partly supply this demand. The Alba will be the most desirable hotel in Palm Beach, as it will be the newest, most modern, most luxuriously furnished and will be fireproof.

VALUATION: Land and building have been appraised as follows:

APPRAISER	LAND	BUILDING
Palm Beach County Real Estate Board	$1,341,970
Todd, Robertson, & Todd Engineering Corporation		$5,200,000

These appraisals give a total value of over $6,500,000, and show an equity of more than $2,300,000 above the amount of the first mortgage.

EARNINGS: The net annual rental earnings, based on an extremely conservative rate schedule for a season of 120 days, are estimated at $726,023, more than two and one-half times the greatest annual interest charge and more than $300,000 in excess of the greatest annual interest and sinking fund requirements together.

SINKING FUND: Through the operations of a sinking fund and the customary monthly deposits required by the STRAUS PLAN, bonds amounting to $2,894,000 will be retired before maturity, leaving a balance of $1,306,000 to mature June 15, 1940.

TAXES: Two percent Federal Income Tax paid. Pennsylvania four mills tax, Connecticut four mills tax, Maryland four and one-half mills tax, District of Columbia five mills tax, and taxes up to five and one-half mills levied by Virginia and its political subdivisions refunded upon proper application.

Price: Par and accrued interest to net 6½%

PLAN FOREIGN LOANS ONE OF $50,000,000

Deal With Czechoslovakia Is Reported Held Up for Clearer Political Outlook.

$30,000,000 TO DENMARK

New York Bankers Soon to Offer Issue—$20,000,000 for Tokio Electric Co. Also Under Way.

Negotiations are understood to be under way for a $50,000,000 loan to Czechoslovakia by a New York banking group. It was reported in Wall Street yesterday that the National City Company would head the syndicate making the offering, which is being held back temporarily until the political horizon of Czechoslovakia becomes clearer. No confirmation of the plans for a loan could be obtained at the National City Company's offices. An official is now in Europe discussing loans and it is believed that the Prague deal is among those that will be arranged.

Several other important pieces of financing are being arranged by New York banking groups, one of the most interesting of which is a $20,000,000 loan to the Tokio Electric Company by the Guaranty Company. Official announcement of this issue is expected early next week. The loan represents part of the tremendous expansion that has been taking place in the Japanese electric industry through cooperation of the Government with Japanese business men. A large part of this development has been accomplished with American capital.

More than $40,000,000 of American capital has gone into Japanese public utilities this year, providing for expansion in many fields, including superpower, the furnishing of power for railway and street traction systems, industrial uses and electric lighting in factories and homes. The Guaranty Company last March brought out a $15,000,000 bond issue of the Toho Electric Company and later participated in a $14,000,000 issue of the Ujigawa Electric Power Company. Early this month Dillon, Read & Co. floated a $13,500,000 issue of the Great Consolidated Electric Power Company, known as Dedco, having previously handled an issue of the same company.

Burnett Walker, a Vice President of the Guaranty Company, who has just returned from Japan, where he negotiated the financing of Japanese industries in the American market, said yesterday that he was astonished by the extensive use being made of electricity in Japan.

Another piece of foreign financing being prepared for the New York market is a $30,000,000 loan to the Government of Denmark, which also is being handled by the Guaranty Company. This issue, bearing 6% per cent. interest, is expected to be publicly offered early next week at a price close to par.

NATIONAL CITY BUYS ISSUE.

$20,000,000 Trumbull Steel Bonds to Be Offered Publicly.

The National City Company, it was learned yesterday, has purchased a $20,000,000 issue of bonds of the Trumbull Steel Company, and it is expected that public offering of the bonds will be made in a few days. The price has not been announced.

The Trumbull Company, one of the large Ohio independents, had gross sales of $26,000,000 in 1924, and has working capital of about $10,000,000. The company has had no funded debt, and in 1920 declared a 25 per cent. stock dividend.

With two exceptions this offering represents the largest industrial bond issue floated this year. The exceptions were a $30,000,000 issue of United States Rubber Company bonds by Kuhn, Loeb & Co. last February and a $20,000,000 issue of Hershey Chocolate Company bonds by the National City Company.

AIR REDUCTION INCOME.

Report for Second Quarter Shows Gain Over a Year Ago.

The Air Reduction Company, Inc., for the quarter ended June 30, 1925, reports gross income of $2,563,971 against $2,364,586 last year. After all expenses and depreciation reserves, but before allowing for Federal taxes the company reports net profit of $677,381, equal to $3.02 a share earned on the 191,209 shares of no par value stock outstanding. In the June quarter last year the company earned $2.69 a share.

For the six months ended June 30, 1925, the company reports net profit of $1,093,467 before tax reserves. This is equal to $5.72 a share earned on the capital stock outstanding. Net profits of $1,111,851 reported in the first half of 1924 were equal to $5.82 a share.

HOOVER PRAISES RAILROADS

Says Better Transportation Is Cutting Cost of Distribution.

Secretary of Commerce Hoover, in a foreword to the new "Commerce Yearbook," says, in regard to transportation conditions: "Transportation showed increasing efficiency and its efficiency has resulted in a mild revolution in the distribution of goods. Under assured delivery, long advance orders to manufacturers are becoming less in volume, thus tending to reduce the capital invested in current national stocks of goods and consequently the cost of distribution."

The Commerce Yearbook is an annual review of world industry with special reference to the economic situation in this country.

American Bank Notes Net Off.

The American Bank Notes Company reports total income of $794,285 for the six months ended June 30, 1925, after all expenses and reserves for depreciation and other accounts. This compares with total income of $1,025,595 reported in the first half of last year. After miscellaneous charges the company reports net income of $713,533, which after preferred dividends was equal to $5.55 a share on the $4,945,250 common stock of $50 a share par value outstanding. In the first half of 1924 the company reported net income of $860,176, which, after preferred dividends, was equal to $7.33 a share earned on the common stock.

Transue & Williams Profits.

The Transue & Williams Steel Forging Company for the half year ended June 30, report net profits of $33,666, equal to 33 cents a share earned on the 100,000 shares of no par value capital stock outstanding. This compares with $100,173, or $1 a share earned on the capital stock for the first six months of 1924. For the June quarter alone the company reports net profits of $55,727, equal to 55 cents a share on the capital stock, but in the first quarter of the year loss of $22,062 was reported.

Norwalk Tire and Rubber Sales.

The Norwalk Tire and Rubber Company yesterday reported gross sales in June of $523,000. In the first six months of 1925, gross sales totaled $2,000,000, compared with $1,256,000 for the same period in 1924.

HOLD PORT DISTRICT AN ECONOMIC UNIT

Witnesses for the Authority Present Data at Commerce Commission Hearing.

NEW JERSEY RATES CITED

Industrial Centres There Declared to Suffer in Comparison With New England Points.

Testimony and extensive exhibits indicating the economic advantages of treating the New York Port District as a unit and of establishing uniform freight rates to all points within its boundaries were presented to the Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday on behalf of the Port of New York Authority. The hearing, which is one of a series in the Eastern Class Rate Investigation, was conducted by Commissioner J. B. Eastman and Examiner Howard Hosmer, in the Port Authority office at 11 Broadway.

Billings Wilson, traffic manager of the Port Authority, asserted in his testimony that New Jersey industrial and commercial centres suffered discrimination within the Port District in the matter of shipments to and from New England points. Rates from New England to New York Harbor, he said, should be made on the same basis from points west of the Hudson River; and he pointed out how manufacturers located in Jersey City and Newark suffered because they had to pay the same rates as New York City shippers on traffic to and from the West but higher rates to and from New England.

Activity on Jersey Side.

In maintaining that it was important to establish commercial unity within the Port District, the witness declared that whereas only 24 per cent. of the port's population resided in New Jersey, more than 30 per cent. of the manufactures in the district originated on the New Jersey side. Eighty-eight steamship companies operate 190 lines from 159 piers on both sides of the port, he added, and several lines use piers on both sides of the harbor.

Reports of the Russell Sage Foundation were quoted to show that the New Jersey side of the Port District has been developing faster in recent years than the New York side. In the tobacco trade, for example, the reports showed that whereas Manhattan produced more than six times as many cigars as Northern New Jersey in 1900, in 1921 this New Jersey district produced more cigars than Manhattan.

With respect to proposals to maintain different rates for the east and west sides of New York Harbor, Mr. Wilson testified that this was not the custom at other important cities of the country where lighterage, carfloat or bridge service is involved.

Mr. Wilson said that, in general, the Port Authority indorsed the principles of the Western trunk lines' proposal for making rates to New York Harbor, but opposed the New Haven Railroad's proposals as "arbitrary and out of line with those of other carriers." He argued that it was unfair for a carrier to attempt to justify a higher charge for one kind of delivery than for another without showing a comparison of costs at other large terminals.

The proposal of the New Haven to raise the rates for freight moving through New York Harbor, he asserted, was unjustifiable and unfair in demanding a higher cost for harbor service. He declared that it cost the railroad less per ton-mile to float interchange traffic through New York Harbor than it did to haul it on its own rail lines in New England.

Would Cut Switching Charges.

In regard to suggested rates along the New Jersey shore of the Hudson River, he stated that the rates proposed therein by the carriers on line haul basis were too high. The Port Authority, he said, advocated a sysetm of switching charges approximately $15 per car instead of the class rates proposed by the railroads, which would average nearly $40 a car. He maintained that it was the custom through the East, at all points other than this city and Baltimore, for the steam carriers to establish such switching charges and introduced an exhibit to show that such charges at sixty-three cities were in general less than $10 per car.

Other witnesses included W. F. Willey, representing the Procter & Gamble Company, and Charles J. Fagg, Chairman of the Traffic Bureau of the Newark Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Willey testified that Port Ivory, S. I., where his company has a distributing office, was entitled to a classification with New Jersey rather than New York in computing "short-haul" rates.

The hearing will continue today and tomorrow, Commissioner Eastman will go on an inspection tour of New York Harbor with a group of Port officials.

OIL SHARES AT $5,000 EACH.

Big Advance in Group No. 1 Follows Dividend Announcements.

Two shares of the capital stock of the Group 1 Oil Corporation were reported sold yesterday for $5,000 each. This price represents an advance of $3,000 a share in about a month.

Earlier in the week this company announced three dividends of $200 each, payable in the next few months, following a dividend of $225 a share early in July. The company has only 2,048 shares of stock outstanding, a large part of which is owned by the Texon Oil and Land Company. The company operates in the Big Lake district in Texas.

Rehearing on Road's Valuation.

WASHINGTON, July 23 (AP).—The Interstate Commerce Commission announced today that it would reopen its inquiry into the valuation of the San Pedro, Los Angeles & Salt Lake Railroad in order to receive new evidence, particularly bearing upon the value of water rights. The San Pedro Company had objected to the commission's findings and brought suit in California courts, which transmitted a record of evidence in the case to the commission for further consideration.

OUR BANKERS MAY BACK PARIS UTILITIES PLAN

Financiers Conferring With French Officials on $25,000,000 Loan to Be Floated Here.

American bankers are conferring with French Government officials, it was learned in Wall Street yesterday, on plans to finance the expansion of the Paris electric light and power, gas, street railway and subway systems. If the negotiations are successful, a loan of $25,000,000 will be floated in the New York market.

J. E. Aldred of J. E. Aldred & Co. is in Paris conferring on the project and it is expected that representatives of several other Wall Street houses will join the discussions. If concluded, this will be the first financing obtained in New York by Paris public utilities, which are owned by the French Government and leased to management companies.

It is understood that the Union d'Electricite, which supplied Paris with electric light and power, and the Paris Gas Company are the centre of the negotiations. Mr. Aldred is believed already to have closed a preliminary program with the former company.

The plan is believed to be for American interests to purchase junior securities of the French companies and pledge them behind a new issue of collateral dollar bonds or notes. The American companies cannot gain control of the French utilities, but may obtain the equity, which is not owned by the Government.

UTILITY'S NET GAIN $51,333.

Republic Railway & Light Also Looks for Big Business Next Year.

The Republic Railway and Light Company issued its statement of earnings yesterday for the twelve months ended June 30, showing a gross of $10,725,614, or a gain of $322,515 over the preceding year. The net income was $738,321, an increase of $51,333. Discussing the report, R. P. Stevens, President, said:

"Completion of the initial installation at the new Toronto, Ohio, power plant has made it possible to negotiate for certain large power contracts of which three have been closed. A five-year contract with the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company provides for a minimum load of 10,000 kilowatts beginning next January and will probably reach 20,000 kilowatts during the life of the contract. Other contracts provide for a large increase in the power load. It is estimated that these contracts will produce over $600,000 gross revenue for the calendar year 1926."

$122,000 for Stock Exchange Seat.

The New York Stock Exchange membership of Charles B. Macdonald was sold yesterday to Dwight H. Ellis for $122,000, thus duplicating the record price. The seat of William J. Ehrich, deceased, was sold to Eugene Dutfih Smith for $120,000.

Approve Capital Stock Increase.

Stockholders of the Household Products Corporation, at a meeting yesterday, approved the recent proposal for an increase in the capital stock from 500,000 to 575,000 shares. The increase will be used to acquire additional properties.

RAILROAD TO PUSH ITS ELECTRIFICATION

60 MILES OF ROAD FINISHED

Development Toward the West Is Planned—Virginian's Improvement Involves $18,000,000.

If its lease of the Virginian Railway is approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission the Norfolk & Western Railway Company will pool its and the Virginian's electrical operations, thereby probably suspending for the time being completing the projected electrification of the Virginian eastward to tidewater to concentrate upon its own electrification work to the west. There have been intimations the last few days from quarters outside of New York that the Norfolk & Western's lease of the Virginian had resulted in a decision of the leasing company to forego the Virginian's uncompleted electrification, but it was ascertained yesterday that plans are being considered for a much larger project which will eventually take in both roads.

Such a project, provided approval of the lease is forthcoming, will enable the Norfolk & Western to continue its work of electrification over heavy grades westward from points in West Virginia to Williamson, near the Kentucky border in West Virginia. The sixty-mile line from Bluefield to Iager has already been electrified and is in operation. The Norfolk & Western desires to extend the electric route from Iager to Williamson, and foundations for the electrification of this part of the railroad are expected to be completed this year.

The Virginian's electrification work was started two years ago and involves a total expenditure of $18,000,000. The initial part of the project, extending from Mullens to Princeton, W. Va., has practically been completed. Construction work on the route from Princeton to Roanoke had well advanced prior to the announcement of the leasing of the Virginian by the Norfolk & Western, but reports say a suspension of this work is contemplated and already some workers have been laid off. This is the stretch presumably being held up by the Norfolk & Western pending the Interstate Commerce Commission's approval of the lease.

All equipment and locomotives under the Virginian's contract with the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company have been purchased and the schedule of deliveries is being maintained, inquiries at the Westinghouse offices yesterday revealed. The contract with Westinghouse involves $15,-000,000 of the $18,000,000 total covering the Virginian's coal road electrification. A large part of the equipment and apparatus has been shipped.

For a considerable distance the Norfolk & Western and the Virginian's lines run parallel to each other and both reach tidewater at Norfolk.

2 ROADS REPORT NET GAINS.

St. Louis-San Francisco and Soo Line Ahead of Last Year.

The St. Louis-San Francisco Railroad reports net operating income of $1,713,-900 for June, compared with $1,403,900 for June, 1924. Gross of $7,439,000 compares with $6,770,000. Six months net operating income of $9,986,000 and gross of $43,957,000 compare respectively with $8,870,000 and $41,709,000 for the first half of 1924.

MARTIN-PARRY DIVIDEND CUT

Corporation Decreases Payment to a $2 Annual Basis.

Directors of the Martin-Parry Corporation yesterday reduced the annual dividend on the capital stock from $4 to $2 a share. A quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share was declared yesterday, payable Sept. 1 to stockholders of record Aug. 15. For the past year the company has been paying dividends at the rate of $1 a share quarterly.

F. M. Small, President of the company, stated in connection with the action, that "gross sales are virtually the same as last year. Net earnings have decreased, principally due to the changing from wooden to metal bodies and unusual competitive condition in industry at present."

COPPER, LEAD, ZINC HIGHER

Producers' Stocks Are Small—Further Advances Looked For.

Prices of copper, lead and zinc are all higher than a week ago, The Mining Journal-Press reports. Most producers are well sold out and believe that fundamental conditions are so good that still higher prices may be expected.

Total business in copper for the week was slightly less than half that of each of the two preceding weeks. Practically all of the copper sold since last Thursday has been booked at 14¾ cents. Most of the inquiry has been for August and September.

Newport News and Hampton Utilities.

For the 12 months ended June 30 the Newport News & Hampton Railway, Gas & Electric Company shows gross earnings of $2,032,032, compared with $2,-030,770 in the preceding year. For dividends and surplus there was a balance after fixed charges but before depreciation of $425,015 against $376,724.

Net Income Shows Decrease.

The Texas and Pacific Coal and Oil Company, for the half year ended June 30, reports gross earnings of $2,911,505, against $3,186,155 in the same period last year. After all expenses and certain charges, but before reserves for depreciation and depletion, the net income was $1,081,380, against $1,267,858 in the same period last year.

Hoffman Machinery Income Report.

The United States Hoffman Machinery Corporation and its subsidiaries report net income of $329,057 for the quarter ended June 30, 1925, after all expenses and reserves for taxes, interest and other charges. This compares with $148,983 in the June quarter last year. For the six months to June 30, the company reports net income of $576,104, against $265,450 in the first half of 1924.

American Republics Earnings Rise.

The American Republics Corporation and subsidiaries reports net income of $801,221 for the June quarter. This, after preferred dividend requirements, left $0.13 a share earned on the 200,000 shares of no par value common stock outstanding. In the previous quarter the company's earnings were $2.58 a share, and in 1924, $2.73 a share.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

Danish Kroner Goes to 22.09 Cents, 82 Per Cent. Par—Norwegian Unit Strong.

On a volume of business that totaled many millions of kroner, and for excitement that rivaled that of any session on the present movement, Danish exchange easily proved the feature of the trading in the foreign bill market yesterday. The rate got up to 22.09 cents, an advance of 46 points over Wednesday, and highest for several years. At this point the bill stands at 82 per cent. of par, compared with 73 a week ago. The Norwegian unit also rose, but to nowhere the limit achieved by its sister bill. Oslo remittance touched 18.26 cents, an overnight gain of 21 points.

Bankers attributed the rise in Danish exchange to the large export surplus of dollars and sterling in that country, and which is gradually being turned into their own currency. Despite the efforts of the State Bank and other Government agencies to control a more orderly movement, exchange on Copenhagen has been steadily rising as a result of the splendid condition in dollar and sterling in which the country finds itself.

Trading in sterling and the Continentals was small, with rates only slightly changed from Wednesday. Sterling rose ¼ cent, to $4.85⅝. French francs improved a point to 4.71 cents, while Italian lire eased less than a fraction to 3.65⅝ cents. Holland, Spanish, Belgian and Swiss documents were firm. The Swedish krona was heavy at a decline of 4 points to 26.85 cents. Far Easterns were weak, but South Americans ruled higher.

BETHLEHEM STEEL EARNINGS SHOW GAIN

Net for Second Quarter of 1925 Is $9,708,528, Against $7,400,894 in 1924 Period.

President Grace Says Output Is 80% Greater Than at This Time Last Year.

The Bethlehem Steel Corporation's statement of earnings for the second quarter of 1925, issued yesterday, shows a substantial gain in both net earnings and surplus available for the common stock, compared with the same period in 1924. The report stated that a margin was available for the common stock during the June quarter, despite the fact that the company received $6 per ton less for all steel billed compared with a year ago. In view of this, it was pointed out, the recent improvements installed in the various mills have brought about a sharp curtailment of operating costs.

For the June quarter the company, after providing for all charges and preferred dividends, reported a balance equal to $1.31 a share earned on the outstanding common stock, which is at the annual rate of $5.24 a share. This compares with $1.66 a share in the March quarter. Total earnings for the first six months of 1925 were equal to $2.96 a share on the common stock, which was more than was earned in the full year 1924, $2.56 a share. In the June quarter last year only 11 cents a share was reported available for the common issues, and it was at that time that the directors suspended dividend payments on the junior issue.

The detailed statement for the June quarter, compared with the first quarter this year and the second quarter last year, follows:

	Second Quarter, 1925.	First Quarter, 1925.	Second Quarter, 1924.
Total net earnings	$9,708,528	$10,399,316	$7,400,894
Less interest charges, including proportion of discount on and expense of bond and note issues	3,301,768	3,337,595	3,189,173
Less provision for depreciation, obsolescence and depletion	2,983,569	2,990,205	2,933,444
Less, div. on pfd. stock of Beth. Steel Corp.	1,075,791	1,075,637	1,075,110
Surplus for the period	$2,347,400	$2,995,879	$203,167

	1925.	1924.
Net earnings	$20,107,844	$17,930,043
Interest and other charges	6,630,383	6,268,772
Depreciation and depletion	5,973,775	5,885,119
Net income	$7,494,707	$5,796,152
Preferred dividends	2,151,428	2,140,713

Operations averaged 67.1 per cent. of capacity during the June quarter, compared with 77.5 per cent. in the previous quarter, and 47.7 per cent. in the second quarter last year. Current operations are at the rate of 56 per cent. of capacity, compared with 51.1 per cent. for July last year. The value of orders on hand June 30, 1925, aggregated $50,342,-813, against $65,921,289 on March 31, 1925, and $40,196,938 on hand June 30, 1924.

Commenting on business conditions at present and in the future, Eugene G. Grace, President, pointed out that the company's present rate of production was 80 per cent greater than at this time last year, confirming the forecasts early in the year that there would be a depression in business like that of last Summer.

In connection with the reduction in the volume of orders on hand, Mr. Grace said that this was wholly accounted for by the completion of rail and rail accessory orders which is reasonable business, being usually placed in the third and fourth quarters of the year for the following year's requirements. The demand for the general line of steel products has held substantially uniform throughout the quarter, and sufficient to about support the present rate of operations. All tendency to further price decline, he added, has been checked and in some instances an increase has taken place, citing as an example sheets and steel scrap.

With a current mid-Summer demand sufficient to support an operation of approximately 60 per cent. of capacity for the steel industry as a whole and with no accumulation of stocks, Mr. Grace said, it is reasonable to assume that early Fall demand will require a substantial increase in production. An increased demand for steel rails and other railroad material and equipment is expected to develop during the Autumn.

Mr. Grace said that he looked for no material increase in steel industry operations during the next six or eight weeks, but by September he believes there will be a material increase in operations.

Bankers Seek Utility Stock.

A banking syndicate, the identity of which was not disclosed yesterday, is negotiating for the purchase of a substantial block of the prior preferred stock of the International Utilities Corporation. An offering of the stock for public subscription is expected soon. The corporation owns and operates utility properties in this country and Canada.

WOULD AWAIT RISE IN ST. PAUL RATES

Increase Easier to Obtain During Receivership, W. E. Roosevelt Says.

SEES BENEFIT IN DELAY

Reorganization Plan Opponent Asks That Securities Be Held Back.

W. Emlen Roosevelt, senior member of the investment firm of Roosevelt & Son, who has been opposing the reorganization plan of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad, issued the following statement yesterday:

"We are greatly pleased with the change in the attitude of the reorganization managers of the St. Paul. They recognize our position that rates are of first importance.

"It is quite true that there may be some delay before the increase in rates is obtained; nevertheless we think a delay is better than the acceptance of the present conditions. The extra expense of running the road in a receivership is not so great as to justify the bondholders in accepting the total loss of their present mortgage position and the stockholders in paying such a heavy assessment or losing all their interest in the road. If fair rates are given the reorganization needs will be quite different.

"It is our belief furthermore that just rates can more easily be obtained while the road is in receivership and the attention of the public is focused on this catastrophe than when the road is reorganized and the former security holders have been forced to sacrifice their holdings. An open wound demands attention. A scar does not. There are other objections to the reorganization plan which may well be modified in the course of time. We therefore reiterate our view that securities should not be deposited."

Fairman Dick, a member of the firm, in commenting on the reorganization managers' statement urged all security holders to support the receivers in their plea for higher rates and not adhere to "the doctrine of the futility of efforts to obtain prompt and just relief from present confiscatory rates."

NEW BOND OFFERINGS TOTAL $4,500,000

Water Works Issue of $2,600,000 and Realty Securities in the Market.

Taylor, Ewart & Co. and P. W. Chapman & Co. are offering a new issue of $2,600,000 first mortgage 5 per cent. gold bonds, Series A, of the Roanoke Water Works Company, at 93 and interest, to yield more than 5.50 per cent. The proceeds will be used to retire other issues, and the revised capital structure will enable the company to make extensions and improvements to the properties. The company supplies water, without competition, to Roanoke, Va., and near-by territory.

G. L. Miller & Co., Inc., announce two new issues secured by properties in St. Louis. The first is one of $550,000 first mortgage 6½ per cent. bonds secured by the Hampton Hall Apartments, which have been appraised at $878,690. The other is one of $525,000 first mortgage 6½ per cent. bonds secured by the Greystone Apartment. Normal Federal income taxes up to 4 per cent. and local taxes will be refunded to the bondholders.

S. W. Straus & Co. offer an issue of $500,000 first mortgage 6 per cent. sinking fund gold bonds of the Oak Lane Manor Corporation, secured by the land and a large apartment house to be erected at Oak Lane, a suburb of Philadelphia.

Chandler & Co., Inc., and R. E. Wilsey & Co., Inc., announce the closing of the books on their offering of first mortgage and refunding 6 per cent. gold bonds of the Lexington Utilities Company.

MIDLAND STEEL NET RISES.

Reports Profit of $762,013 for Quarter Ended June 30.

The Midland Steel Products Company for the quarter ended June 30 reports net profit of $762,013, after all expenses and charges for depreciation, interest and taxes. This is equal to $8.20 a share earned on the 73,000 shares of preferred stock of $100 a share par value outstanding and $3.26 a share earned on the 50,000 shares of no par value common stock. In the first quarter of 1925 the company reported net profits of $856,360, after similar deductions, equal to $7.04 a share on the preferred stock and $2.84 a share on the common stock. In the second quarter of 1924 net profits equal $3.93 a share on the preferred and $1.70 a share on the common stock.

For the six months ended June 30 net profits of $1,418,373 were equal to $15.24 a share on the preferred stock and $6.10 a share on the common stock. The company's preferred stock is entitled to receive cumulative dividends at the rate of $8 a share annually, thereafter the common stock is entitled to non-cumulative quarterly dividends of $1 a share, after which the preferred receives 80 per cent. of any further distribution and the common 20 per cent.

The Company agrees to refund the Pennsylvania State Tax of 4 mills, the Maryland State Tax of 4½ mills, the Kentucky State Tax of 4 mills and the Massachusetts tax on income not in excess of 6% upon request within 30 days after payment thereof. Bank of North America and Trust Company, Philadelphia, Trustee.

The following information has been furnished by P. M. Chandler, Esq., President:

Business and Property: Lexington Utilities Company, incorporated in Kentucky in 1909, owns a modern steam power plant and the electric and gas distributing systems in Lexington, and controls through subsidiary companies, the ice and cold storage business in Lexington and Georgetown and the urban and interurban railways operating in this territory. It also owns the electric distribution systems in Stamping Ground and Forks of Elkhorn. Under wholesale contracts with other utility properties, it supplies power to numerous communities within a forty mile radius of Lexington, including Frankfort, the capital of Kentucky, Winchester, Versailles, etc. The Company has just completed a 66,000-volt high-tension transmission line connecting the power house with the Dix River hydro-electric development of the Kentucky Hydro-electric Co., and the steam power plant of the Kentucky Utilities Co., at Pineville (these two latter companies being subsidiaries of the Middle West Utilities Company), thus linking the property with the super-power system being developed in this territory. The territory served has a population of over 225,000.

Security: These bonds are secured by a first mortgage on the power house and high tension lines, and a direct mortgage on the balance of the property owned, subject to the lien of the bonds issued under the Lexington Railway Co. mortgage of which one-half have been assumed by the Kentucky Traction & Terminal Co., leaving only $538,500 outstanding underlying bonds to be paid by the Lexington Utilities Co,, and which are being reduced annually by the Sinking Fund.

Guarantee: These bonds are guaranteed principal and interest by endorsement by the Kentucky Securities Corporation which has no funded debt and has outstanding $2,348,898. Preferred Stock and $2,052,287.50 Common Stock. Through ownership of a majority of stock, the Kentucky Securities Corporation is controlled by International Utilities Corporation.

Roanoke Water Works Company

First Mortgage Twenty-five Year 5% Gold Bonds, Series "A"

Dated July 1, 1925 — Due July 1, 1950

Principal and semi-annual interest (January 1 and July 1) payable in New York. Denominations $1,000 and $500. Pennsylvania and Connecticut four mills and Maryland four and one-half mills taxes on the principal and Massachusetts income tax not to exceed 6% refundable. Chatham Phenix National Bank and Trust Company, Trustee.

The following is summarized from a letter of Mr. F. W. Collins, Vice-President of the Company:

BUSINESS AND TERRITORY: The Roanoke Water Works Company, a Virginia corporation, supplies water, without competition, for domestic, industrial and public purposes to the City of Roanoke, Virginia, and contiguous territory. The territory served has a population of approximately 78,000. Roanoke is located in the southwestern part of the State of Virginia and is on the main lines of the Norfolk and Western Railway and The Virginian Railway.

SECURITY: This issue of Bonds is secured by a First Mortgage on all of the properties, rights and franchises of the Company, which have been appraised by independent engineers as having a sound depreciated value of $4,059,000.

EARNINGS: For the twelve months period ended April 30, 1925, net earnings, as reported by Messrs. Edmonds & Naylor, Inc., were $229,506. The annual interest requirement on all First Mortgage, Series "A" Bonds outstanding amounts to $130,000.

GENERAL: The management of the Roanoke Water Works Company will continue in the hands of the men who have been responsible for its success. In the opinion of counsel, franchises of the Company are without limitation as to time. Independent engineers have reported that the properties of the Company are well maintained and well operated and that the substantial growth of the territory served, together with the promising possibilities for the future, justifies the expectation of a steady increase in gross and net earnings.

These Bonds are listed on the Chicago Stock Exchange.

Price: 93 and accrued interest, to yield over 5.50%

Roanoke Water Works Company First Mortgage 6% Bonds, due January 1, 1936, and General Mortgage 6% Bonds, due Sept. 1, 1934, and Vinton-Roanoke Water Company First Mortgage 6% Bonds due Dec. 1, 1936, may be presented in payment at a 4.50% true discount basis (based on their call price of 102% of par) from date of delivery to Jan. 1, 1926, Sept. 1, 1925, and Dec. 1, 1925, the respective call dates of these bonds.

The above bonds are offered for delivery when, as and if issued and received and subject to the approval of counsel and of any public body whose consent for issuance must be obtained.

CRUDE OIL RESERVE DECREASED IN JUNE

Domestic Stocks East of the Rockies Off 2,033,000 Barrels, Institute Reports.

REFINERY PRODUCTION UP

Output of All Products Jumped 4,805,000 Barrels—Gasoline Drops in West.

Stocks of domestic crude oil held by pipe lines and tank farms east of the Rocky Mountains decreased 2,033,000 barrels during June, according to returns compiled by the American Petroleum Institute, based upon reports received from representative companies in the industry. The net change, it is added, accounts for the increases and decreases in general crude oil stocks, including crude oil in transit, but not producers' stocks.

An increase of 4,805,000 barrels of all products, crude and refined, however, was reported at refineries covering approximately 65 per cent. of the operating capacity of the country. The refineries, according to the figures, reported an increase of 783,000 barrels in domestic crude oil, 86,000 barrels in foreign crude oil, 22,000 barrels in gasoline, 696,000 barrels in kerosene, 3,050,000 barrels in gas and fuel oils and 506,000 barrels in miscellaneous oils. Oil for re-running decreased 151,000 barrels and lubricants decreased 187,000 barrels.

Commenting on the net increase of 22,000 barrels in gasoline held by refineries, the institute says that east of the Rockies there was an indicated increase of 875,000 barrels in gasoline stocks, while west of the Rockies, principally in California, there was a decrease of 853,000 barrels.

The American Petroleum Institute reports the daily average production of crude oil in the United States at 2,115,150 barrels, a reduction of 37,850 barrels compared with the daily average of 2,153,000 barrels reported in the week of July 11. The institute has revised its figures to show the production of the States in the Rocky Mountain district. The latest figures show a production of 81,000 barrels for Wyoming, 15,500 barrels for Montana, 2,600 barrels for Colorado, and New Mexico, 2,850 barrels. According to the institute's figures, every State and field in the Union, except Kansas, reported smaller production last week.

Receipts of California crude oil at Atlantic and Gulf ports last week aggregated 637,000 barrels, against 650,000 barrels for the previous week. Imports of foreign crude oils aggregated 1,929,000 barrels, against 975,000 barrels in the previous week.

The Smackover field in Arkansas reports production of 144,815 barrels of crude from the deep sands on Wednesday, against 152,690 barrels reported produced on Tuesday and a peak production of 392,000 barrels on May 25.

SUGAR PLANTERS RETURN.

One Official Says Industry in the Antilles is Unprofitable.

Among the fifty-two passengers who arrived yesterday on the Clyde liner Iroquois from Barahona, Santo Domingo City, San Pedro de Macoris, Sanchez, Puerto Plata, Monte Cristi and Turks Island, were many American sugar planters returning north at the end of the cane sugar season in the Antilles Islands.

H. Dean, for six years an official of the Cuban Dominican Sugar Company in Barahona, Dominican Republic, said that the island sugar found itself unable to profit.

"We have the greatest crop in years," said Mr. Dean, "but with the price for our sugar only two and a half cents a pound free on board in Dominican ports, we are not able to realize anything."

The Iriquois arrived just as the New York sugar market touched the lowest quotation since the war with Arbuckle figures at 5.25, and other companies expected to follow. Local brokers attributed the situation to over-production and a glutted market rather than to tariff rates.

NEW JERSEY CLAY OUTPUT.

Total of 352,734 Short Tons Exceeds 10-Year Average.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., July 23.—New Jersey's clay production in 1924 was 352,734 short tons, according to figures announced today by the State Department of Conservation and Development, in cooperation with the United States Geological Survey. The output was valued at $1,496,052.

The total drop from the high figure of 1923, when 376,554 short tons worth $1,650,800 were mined, the output last year was well above the average of the last decade. The average annual quantity for the ten-year period was 301,840 short tons and the average annual value $1,169,195.

The tonnage announced for 1924 embraces only the raw material mined and sold as such. It does not include the clay dug by manufacturers for their own use.

AUTO SALES ARE HEAVY.

June Production of 364,806 Vehicles a Gain Over Same Month in 1924.

Generally speaking, production of motor vehicles is at a low ebb for the year, due to seasonal closing down of plants for vacations and inventories, but reports from all sections of the country show that sales continue heavy, according to Automotive Industries in its weekly review.

Production in June was 364,806 cars and trucks. This compares with a June output of 249,808 in 1924, but is slightly below the June, 1923, figure, which was 376,000. Financial statements of the motor car companies are said to evidence an extremely healthy condition.

TO SELL FIRST COTTON BALE

Georgia Sets Record in Delivering Product So Early in Season.

Samuel Hubbard, Vice President of the New York Cotton Exchange, will auction today the first bale of the 1925 cotton crop received from Georgia. The auction will be held on the floor of the Exchange. At the same time the first bale received from Florida also will go to the block.

The Georgia bale has established a record, it being ten first time in twenty-five years that a bale of cotton has been picked in that State so early in the season.

SHIP LINE TO VOTE ON STOCK INCREASE

Atlantic Gulf and West Indies Directors Expected to Approve 100,000 New Shares.

TO ASSUME WARD DEBTS

Arranges for Purchase of New York and Cuba Mail Bonds—Also Will Change Stock Par Value.

Directors of the Atlantic, Gulf & West Indies Steamship Company at a meeting to be held today are expected to authorize an increase in the authorized capital common stock from 200,000 to 300,000 shares. A special meeting of stockholders will be called to ratify the action of the board. The company, it was also learned yesterday, has completed arrangements for the purchase of the bonds of the New York & Cuba Mail Steamship Company and has arranged for the funding or payment of other obligations of the Ward Line.

Stockholders of the company will likewise be asked to approve a change in the stated par value of this issue from shares of $100 par value to shares without par value. It is the intention of the board, if the stockholders approve the action, to issue new common stock to current stockholders on the basis of one share of new stock for each three shares held. This will call for the issuance of about 50,000 additional shares, which at $40 a share, will yield the company about $2,000,000.

The acquisition of the New York & Cuba Mail bonds and the assumption of other obligations of the Ward Line will, according to statements yesterday, involve about $5,000,000. The $2,000,000 to be received from the sale of additional stock, it is understood, will be used in the acquisition of the Cuba Mail bonds, while the remaining obligations will be taken care of by the company.

The proposed plan of the company, it is stated, involves no changes in the capital structure of the company, other than changing the common stock from shares of $100 par to no par.

Earnings of the Atlantic, Gulf & West Indies Company for May and the first five months of 1925 show improvement compared with the same periods last year, according to statements issued yesterday. The May statement showed gross earnings of $2,621,348, against $2,346,689 last year, and surplus income, after charges and taxes, of $280,906, against $168,005. For the five months ended with May the company reports gross earnings of $12,472,769, against $11,281,970, and surplus income, after taxes and charges, of $920,252, against $460,490.

YOUNGSTOWN SHEET INCREASED PROFITS

Comparative Figures for June Quarter Against 1924 Were Favorable.

The Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company, one of the large independent steel companies, reports favorable earnings for the June quarter. After allowing for all expenses and reserves for depreciation, depletion, interest and taxes, and after preferred dividends, the company reported a balance equal to $3.22 a share earned on the 987,606 shares of no par value common stock outstanding. This compares with $3.48 a share earned on the common stock in the March quarter, when more favorable conditions prevailed in the steel industry, and with $1.63 a share earned in the June quarter last year.

For the half year ended June 30, the company reports a balance equal to $6.70 a share earned on the common stock, after all deductions, against $5.18 a share earned on the common stock in the first half of 1924. The detailed statements of earnings for the June quarter follow:

	1925.	1924.

GRAIN EXPORTS INCREASED.

Valued at $535,000,000 in 1925 Fiscal Year, a Gain of $289,000,000.

WASHINGTON, July 23 (AP).—Grain and grain products to the value of $535,000,000 were exported from the United States during the fiscal year ending with June.

The figures announced today by the Commerce Department registered a gain of $289,000,000 over the value of exports of similar products during the fiscal year of 1924, and resulted from higher prices which have prevailed during recent months for cereal products.

Much of the increase was accounted for by the exportation of 195,490,000 bushels of wheat, against 75,733,000 bushels exported the year before. The increase in values was relatively much higher, for the department estimated that 1925 wheat exports were worth $308,608,000, while those of 1924 were worth $87,713,000.

Flour exports for the 1925 fiscal year were 13,896,000 barrels, worth $97,766,000. In 1924 they were 17,253,000 barrels, valued at $88,202,000.

Earnings Double Those of 1924.

The United States Distributing Corporation's current earnings are running nearly double those of 1924. The company has recently closed new trucking contracts and officials believe, based on operations to date and advanced bookings, that 1925 will be the company's banner year.

COTTON PROSPECT CUT 751,000 BALES

BIG SURPRISE FOR MARKET

Government Figures Which Indicate Smaller Production Than Last Year Reversed Expectations.

WASHINGTON, July 23 (AP).—This year's cotton crop, which early gave indication of being one of the largest ever grown, declined during the three weeks ending July 16 to the extent of 751,000 bales. In its second forecast of the season today the Department of Agriculture announces the indicated crop to be 13,588,000 equivalent 500-pound bales. The first forecast, announced July 2, was 14,339,000 bales. Last year's crop totaled 13,627,936 bales.

The condition of the crop on July 16, and the indicated yield per acre by States follow, the first figure indicating the condition in percentage and the second the indicated yield per acre:

Virginia	76	241
North Carolina	77	236
South Carolina	71	152
Georgia	74	126
Florida	82	98
Missouri	80	254
Tennessee	79	176
Alabama	78	140
Mississippi	83	179
Louisiana	76	157
Texas	56	101
Oklahoma	76	150
Arkansas	83	190
New Mexico	82	213
Arizona	94	263
California	92	263
All other States	92	164

The area in cultivation June 25 was 46,448,000 acres. The forecast was based on the condition of the crop on July 16, which was 70.4 per cent. of normal, indicating an acre yield of 140 pounds.

The June 25 condition this year was 76.9, indicating an acre yield of 147.7 pounds, while last year's July 16 condition was 68.5 and the final acre yield 157.4 pounds.

NEW ORLEANS, July 23 (AP).—Cotton advanced $7.50 a bale in excited trading on the New Orleans Cotton Exchange today, after receipt of the Government report.

The condition of the cotton crop on July 16 by States, compared with that of July 1 and that of July 16, 1924, is as follows, the percentages being of a normal:

	July 16, 1925.	July 1, 1925.	July 16, 1924.
Virginia	76	83	54
North Carolina	77	77	56
South Carolina	71	70	59
Georgia	74	76	76

Arizona	94	92	94
California	92	95	90
All others	79	94	70
United States	70.4	73.9	68.5

Following is the forecast of yield as given by the Agricultural Department in each of its reports this year compared with the corresponding reports of preceding years, and with the final reports of 1924, 1923 and 1922. Figures are in thousands of bales:

	1925.	1924.	1923.	1922.
July 16	13,588	11,934	.....	.....
Final	.....	13,627	10,139	9,762

LITTLE CONFUSION HERE.

Edward E. Bartlett Jr., former President of the New York Cotton Exchange and member of the firm of Gwathmey & Co., commenting upon the Government cotton crop report yesterday said:

"The Government figures indicating the condition of the cotton crop as 70.4 on July 16, compared with 75.9 on June 25, were as big a surprise as the market has had in the last few years on any Government report. The whole cotton trade anticipated a report which was just the reverse of this, and even those who felt that cotton at present prices was fairly safe were not long of the market and for this reason the market was in a particularly vulnerable position.

"There may be doubt in some minds as to the accuracy of the Government figures, but the action of the market following the publication of the report indicated that they were pretty generally accepted. It should be borne in mind that the cotton crop still has to pass through several of the most critical weeks of the season, and if the belt should have an extended drought, as has been the case with certain sections, and the boll weevil should become more active it would change the complexion of the whole cotton market and might compel a radical revision of previous expectations for the 1925-26 crop."

Trading was again suspended for twenty minutes at the time of issuance of the Government report. This rule, which was initiated under the administration of Mr. Bartlett, gave the trade ample time to digest the report and readjust its position, and there was comparatively little confusion on the floor when trading was resumed.

CROP REPORT BOOMS COTTON $6 A BALE

After having issued two reports, which proved much more favorable than the trade had expected, the Government yesterday estimated the condition of cotton at 70.4, or considerably lower than private figures. This represented a loss of 5.5 per cent. from the 75.9 on June 25 and compared with an average deterioration from June 25 to July 25 in the past ten years of 3.7 per cent. The indicated crop was reduced from 14,-339,000 bales last month to 13,588,000, or a loss of 751,000 bales in less than three weeks, due principally to drought in Texas and Oklahoma. The Texas condition was lowered from 64 to 56, while that of Oklahoma was reduced from 88 to 76. The best States were Arkansas with a condition of 85, Mississippi with 83 and Tennessee with 79. Prices rose violently over $6 a bale, and closed at a net advance of 126 to 134 points.

Immediately preceding the report the market had been subjected to heavy selling from several directions and October changed hands below 23½ cents. When trading was resumed after the receipt of the Washington figures, buying orders had accumulated from all directions during the quarter of an hour interval when trading was suspended. These were executed on the call in both New Orleans and New York. Tens of thousands of bales changed hands at an advance of a full cent a pound, with October trading over a range from 24.50 to 24.65. While some brokers sold October at 24.50 in one part of the ring, 24.55, 24.60 and 24.65 was being paid for blocks of contracts in other parts. The covering demand proved so urgent that all contracts were readily absorbed and without evoking sufficient selling pressure to cause any reaction. Differences between the various months maintained their normal relations and buying orders appeared evenly distributed throughout the list from October to May.

New Orleans advanced even more rapidly than New York. Prices there opened up 140 to 150 points or about 2 a bale higher than in the local market. The report, in reflecting so sharp a reduction in the indicated yield, induced active buying by Southern interests, as the Southwest has had no relief since July 16 and the last weekly report reflected further deterioration in that region. Texas operators bought aggressively. With covering of lines sold in sections where the crop outlook is promising, the volume of contracts taken from the new Orleans market caused a steady flow of buying orders to New York. December closed above 25 cents. Yesterday's quotations follow:

OPTIMISM IN TRADE JUSTIFIED, HE SAYS

Charles E. Mitchell Sees Bright Outlook for Business Prosperity.

MORE BANK CREDIT IN USE

Disparity Between Prices of Farm Products and Industrial Costs Is Gone, He Declares.

The country is enjoying prosperity at present, according to a statement issued yesterday on general business conditions by Charles E. Mitchell, President of the National City Bank. In addition, Mr. Mitchell said, there is every promise for better business than this country has had since 1920. Mr. Mitchell's statement follows:

"All of the reassuring conditions which contributed to the revival of business at the beginning of this year are still present and the confidence then generally expressed is being justified. Since that time there has been enough pessimistic talk to hold optimism in check and to discourage all enterprise which could be discouraged; but in spite of it, the volume of business has been greater than in the first six months of any other year, and if the crops come through as they now promise, a new impetus will be given to all business.

"In that great section of the country where corn, livestock and dairy products are the mainstay of agriculture, the outlook is exceedingly good. The cotton crop is still in the critical stage, but promises a yield equal to this year's consumption. The winter wheat crop is short, but of a quality demanding the best prices. The Spring wheat crop is not yet safe, but look to be a fair one. All agricultural products are bringing remunerative prices and there would seem to be just reason for the belief that agricultural sections will find themselves in an easier financial situation this Fall than for several years past and will naturally make expenditures somewhat more freely. It is generally agreed that commodity buying throughout the country has been cautious in recent months and that stocks of all kinds are light at the present time, which means that increased demand for consumers will be promptly felt by the industries.

"While there is more bank credit in use than ever before, bank resources are greater than ever before, and while there is not even the beginning of a strain on our credit resources, it may be expected that rates will strengthen as demands increase."

"It is generally agreed that the chief cause of poor trade and unemployment in the last five years has been the disparity between the prices of farm products and the prices of what the farmers have had to buy. That disparity has now largely disappeared. It would be unfortunate to have a general rise of industrial costs which would throw this situation out of balance again."

GULF STATES STEEL REPORT

Net Operating Income of $288,534 Shown for Second Quarter.

The Gulf States Steel Company reports for the second quarter this year, issued yesterday, shows net operating income of $288,554. After all charges, the net profit amounted to $171,455, which, after preferred dividends, was equal to $1.00 a share earned on the 125,000 shares of common stock outstanding. This compares with $2.88 a share earned in the first quarter of 1925, and $1.35 a share in the second quarter last year.

Net profit amounted to $567,798 for the six months ended June 30, equal, after preferred dividends, to $3.98 a share on the common stock. This compares with net profit of $542,789, equal to $4.21 a share on the common stock reported for the first half of 1924.

ACCUSED OF BRIBE-TAKING.

Customs Official and Railroad Agent Under Arrest in Montana.

GREAT FALLS, Mont., July 23 (AP).—Frank Wilk, Deputy Collector of Customs for the last twenty years in the Havre District, and H. G. Amess, agent for the Great Northern Railway, at Havre, are under arrest charged with having accepted bribes in connection with the passage of dutiable live stock into this country from Canada.

Wilk was released under bond of $15,-000 and Amess under $5,000 bond for appearance at the September term of court here.

RESERVE BANK POSITION.

Comparison of the Week's Items With Those of Preceding Periods.

The outstanding note circulation of the entire reserve system, as shown in yesterday's statement, is at the lowest for the year to date. No other item in the system's showing reached the highest or lowest figure of the year.

The following table shows the highest and lowest points reached thus far in 1925, and in a series of years past, by the important items in the reserve bank statements. Figures are in thousands of dollars.

WHEAT RISES AGAIN, BUT DROPS AT CLOSE

Final Prices Show Only a Slight Advance From the Figures of Wednesday.

SHORT COVERING A FACTOR

Other Grains Go Up at the Finish, With Corn and Oats Strongest.

CHICAGO, July 23.—The wheat market climbed 2¼@2¾ cents, but closed unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to 1 cent higher. September was 148 to 148½ and December 149¼ to 149½, with corn unchanged to 1¼ cents up, and oats unchanged to ½ cent advance.

Short covering was on early, due to an unexpected advance of 1@1¼ cents in Liverpool, where values were strengthened by short covering and unfavorable weather in France, but the bulges brought in pressure and the close was at the bottom.

Winnipeg finished ⅛ to ⅜ cent lower in the face of buying there against sales here to close spreads.

Rains were reported in parts of Montana, North Dakota and Canada, which will be decidedly beneficial. But a leading Minneapolis house, in its weekly report, indicated that as much as 40 per cent. damage had been done in Montana from the recent heat wave, with heavy losses in parts of the Dakotas and Minnesota.

The export demand continues decidedly slow and largely in small lots, with an aggregate of 100,000 bushels in all positions for the day.

The par used in figuring the yield in the four Northwestern States in the August report is raised around two bushels per acre, so that any material loss in the conditional figures will be largely offset by the higher par. A private report giving the condition in Canada will be issued Saturday.

Harvesting is expected to start in Fargo, N. D., late next week and weather conditions continue to be against the rapid development of black rust.

Texas mills brought cash wheat at Kansas City, taking 100,000 bushels overnight and outbid the latter market in the interior for supplies by as much as 2 to 3 cents per bushel.

The spot basis was firm with No. 2 red 2½@3 cents and No. 2 hard ⅝@1¼ cents over July.

Primary arrivals today were 1,782,000 bushels; week ago, 1,137,000; last year, 1,360,000. Shipments, 1,250,000; week ago, 1,073,000; last year, 674,000.

Increasing complaints of a lack of moisture for the new corn crop from the States of largest production brought in further short covering. The close was unchanged to 1¼ cents higher, with July gaining sharply on the September.

There were claims of damage from western Iowa and parts of South Dakota, and official confirmation of deterioration in the Nebraska outlook. The forecast was for rains in Iowa and the Dakotas.

There were said to be export bids at St. Louis for new corn for December, January and February shipment, but no sales were claimed, though they were reported as on a working basis.

Local operators are selling December and buying May at 3 to 3⅛ cents difference.

Oats closed ⅛ to ⅛ cent higher and rye unchanged to ¼ cent lower, with a light trade. Hedging pressure in oats is increasing.

Primary arrivals of corn are 436,000 bushels; week ago, 581,000; last year, 803,000; and shipments, 612,000 bushels; week ago, 725,000; last year, 353,000.

DROP OF $28,600,000 IN RESERVE ASSETS

Reductions in Contributing Accounts Cut the Earnings Total for the Week.

DISCOUNTS OFF $12,200,000

Federal Note Circulation Smaller by $21,800,000 and Cash Reserves Decline.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—The consolidated statement of condition of the Federal Reserve banks on July 22, made public by the Federal Reserve Board, shows a decrease of $28,600,000 in total earning assets of $21,800,000 in Federal Reserve note circulation and of $500,000 in cash reserves.

Discount holdings went down $12,200,000 during the week, acceptances purchased in open market $8,900,000 and Government securities $9,200,000.

The Federal Reserve Bank of Boston shows a reduction of $11,100,000 in discount holdings, Chicago of $8,300,000 and Philadelphia of $4,200,000. The Richmond bank reports an increase of $4,100,000, and the Atlanta and San Francisco banks of $2,300,000 each. Relatively small changes are shown by the remaining banks.

The New York bank reports a decrease of $3,500,000 in holdings of acceptances purchased in open market, Cleveland of $2,600,000, and Boston of $2,300,000, while the Minneapolis bank reports an increase of $3,300,000 and San Francisco of $2,100,000.

The system's holdings of Treasury notes went down $11,100,000, while holdings of Treasury certificates went up $1,800,000 and of United States bonds $100,000.

Reductions in Federal Reserve note circulation are reported by all Federal Reserve banks except New York and Dallas, which show a total increase of $1,000,000. The principal decreases in Federal Reserve note circulation were: Philadelphia, $7,400,000; Boston, $4,000,-000; Cleveland, $3,200,000, and San Francisco, $3,000,000.

LAYS QUAKE DAMAGE TO FAULTY BUILDING

Ralph Arnold, California Seismologist, Says Santa Barbara Shock Was Not Severe.

SEES DANGER HERE ALSO

No Section of Country Is Immune, He Declares, but He Would Feel Safer in New York.

Ralph Arnold of Los Angeles, Chairman of the Southern California Section of the Seismological Society of America, said yesterday at his New York office at 42 Broadway that a careful survey of the earthquake damage at Santa Barbara showed that jerry-building was responsible for the loss of life and that ordinary prudence in building construction would not only have prevented loss of life, but would have restricted property damage to a few fallen chimneys.

"Every life lost in the Santa Barbara earthquake may be properly credited to greed or ignorance," he said. "There is no excuse for flimsy building of this type anywhere, but especially not in a city where a known earthquake danger exists."

He showed pictures of the detail of ruined buildings, showing how high brick walls had been erected without support and with hardly any connection with the interior of the structure.

"Naturally these walls fell," he said. "Would you build a wall a foot or two thick and sixty feet high without any supports and expect it to stand up in a severe quake? That is exactly what happened here."

Shows Pictures of Wreckage.

The scientist showed photographs of the City Hall of Santa Barbara after the shock. Not a brick was displaced and not a pane of glass broken.

"It went through the quake without a cent's damage because it was properly built," he said. "It was not excessively built or exceptionally well braced, but is just a plain piece of good building.

"As a matter of fact the shock was not a severe one at all. It was only felt over a short distance and it did no harm to any properly constructed building.

Mr. Arnold said that extreme shortsightedness had been shown by other California cities which, alarmed by the San Francisco earthquake, adopted high standard building regulations, but allowed them to be whittled away as the cost of building increased and the memory of the disaster of 1906 became fainter.

No city or section of the country is immune from earthquake danger, and building regulations everywhere should be drawn up so as to take into account this danger, according to Mr. Arnold.

"For instance, most people think the Mississippi Valley is free from danger of earthquakes," he said. "That is a very erroneous opinion. By far the heaviest shock ever felt in this country since it had a white population was the New Madrid earthquake of 1812, which involved parts of Missouri, Tennessee and Arkansas.

Completely Changed Topography.

"It caused the total disappearance of the town of New Madrid, and it completely altered the topography of those three States along the Mississippi River. It created several lakes, the longest of which is fifty miles and is still in existence. It destroyed the bluffs of Mississippi for miles, ran great ravines and fissures through the country, changed the course of the river, twisted thousands of trees whose distorted growths are still visible, and caused thousands of springs or geysers to break through the soil, bringing up masses of sand which are still to be traced all through the region when the ground is plowed. There has been no great earthquake since in this region, but there is still danger of another. Several minor shocks in the locality in recent years indicate a growing activity along the fault which caused that great shock. A recurrence would be a terrific disaster to all towns on the bluffs of the Mississippi.

"The second greatest shock known in this country was the Charleston quake. It was felt three times as far away as was the San Francisco earthquake and, hence, was approximately three times as severe.

"The East or the Mississippi Valley is quite as likely to be the locality of the next great earthquake as the Pacific Coast is. In case of a severe quake I would feel as safe in New York City as anywhere. It has the advantage of being built on solid rock. Most of the building is very strong and resistant."

California Develops Science.

Mr. Arnold said that California scientists and institutions were laying the foundations for a great modern seismological and geological development by the careful tracing of earthquake faults, the study of earth movements and the intensive use of the seismograph.

He said that the new and cheaper seismograph developed by the Carnegie Institution was so sensitive as to register shocks which the old type of instrument would not notice. The new instrument consists of a tiny mirror hung by a thread. The slightest earth tremor makes the mirror vibrate and causes it to reflect a needle-point of light in a zigzag manner on a revolving roll of photographic paper. A movement has been started to operate such seismographs in many cities and towns of Southern California, obtaining records of the faintest shocks. The mirrors are arranged to show the north and south movement, the east and west movement and the vertical movement of the shocks.

Another cause of the great interest in geology in California, according to Mr. Arnold, was the extraordinary wanderings of some of the peaks of the Coast Range. One restless peak has covered twenty feet in the last few years, he said, and others are en route north at an incredible pace. The latitude observatory at Ukiah, Cal., is located on one of the walking mountains, and its speed is accurately timed from year to year. The ground-covering feats of the California mountains are checked up by the stars.

RECEIVER FOR SILK MILLS.

Liabilities of 3 Jersey Concerns $250,000—Assets $400,000.

Milton M. Unger was appointed receiver for three New Jersey silk concerns yesterday by Judge William N. Runyon in the Federal Court at Newark. The concerns were the Summit Dye Works at Summit, N. J., and the Claire Silk Mills and Jericho Silk Mills of Phillipsburg, all of which were made defendants in equity suits filed by the Silk Trading Association of New York.

Counsel for that association in asking receiverships put the aggregate liabilities of the three concerns at more than $250,000 and the assets at more than $400,000. It was stated that a general plan of reorganization had been drawn up and would be put into effect shortly.

Dr. McClelland to Head College.

The Rev. Dr. Clarence P. McClelland, President of Drew Methodist Seminary for Young Women, Carmel, N. Y., has been elected President of Illinois Women's College, Jacksonville, Ill. He will succeed Dr. Joseph R. Harker, who resigned. The announcement of the election was made yesterday by the Methodist Board of Education, 150 Fifth Avenue.

BATTLESHIP SCORES IN NAVAL AIR TESTS

Guns of U. S. S. Texas Riddle Target Dropped by Shenandoah —Details Kept Secret.

NORFOLK, Va., July 23 (AP).—Experiments in anti-aircraft firing between the battleship Texas and the dirigible Shenandoah off the Virginia Capes today are believed to have met with some success.

Although details of the tests, which are expected to shed further light on the relative value of aircraft and battleships, are confidential, temporarily at least, a hasty examination of a target towed by the dirigible was said to have disclosed a dozen or more holes.

The target, 50 feet long and resembling a miniature dirigible, was towed over the Texas at an altitude of about 5,000 feet. It was retrieved a few minutes after the big airship dropped it at the naval base and rushed in an automobile to the ordnance depot, where it was locked up. How many shots were fired and under what conditions was not known, although plans previously made public provided for firing at ranges of approximately 5,000 feet.

Special to The New York Times.

LAKEHURST, N. J., July 23.—The naval dirigible Shenandoah left her mooring mast at the naval air station at 9 o'clock this morning for a three-day trip to Hampton Roads, where she will engage in manoeuvres with part of the Atlantic fleet. The airship was expected to moor to the cruiser Patoka at Newport News, Va., tonight.

None but the crew under Commander Zachary Lansdowne left with the dirigible. The ship is expected to return to the air station on Saturday.

KILLED WHILE LEARNING TO DRIVE MOTORCYCLE

Jersey Official Fractures His Skull When Machine Crashes Into Curb.

City Councilman William J. Gallagher of Guttenberg, N. J., titular head of the police department there, was mortally injured yesterday morning when a motorcycle which he was learning to drive, crashed into the curb while rounding a curve at Boulevard E in Hudson County Park. He died on the way to North Hudson Hospital. Joseph Scognaniglio, 28 years old, of 1,300 Park Avenue, a park guard, was riding in the sidecar of the motorcycle. He was thrown out but only slightly hurt.

A few days ago Gallagher asked Scognaniglio to instruct him in driving a motorcycle. The lessons began Wednesday. Scognaniglio rode the motorcycle while Gallagher sat in the sidecar and took note of the manner in which the controls were handled. Yesterday they started out for the second lesson with Gallagher driving.

He had been told to retard the gas feed in rounding curves, but according to Scognaniglio, when they neared the turn at Boulevard E, Gallagher turned the feed handle the wrong way. The motorcycle leaped forward and crashed into the curb hurling both men out. Gallagher fell on his head in the roadway, fracturing his skull. Scognaniglio landed on his hands and knees.

William O'Connor of 4 Wegman Place, Jersey City, who was passing in his automobile, stopped and with the aid of Scognaniglio put Gallagher in the car and started for the hospital. Gallagher leaves a wife and two children. He was prominent in politics in North Hudson County and was elected to the City Council on the Democratic ticket about a year and a half ago. He lived at 41 Bergen Line Avenue, Guttenberg.

REAL KURD EXPOSES PRINCE

Board Bill Evader in Berlin Now Believed to Be "Pants Presser."

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, July 23.—Though it is not established that the man who posed as the Crown Prince of Kurdistan is the same "pants pressing" Prince who left a long record with New York, London and Paris bankers, women and police, the Berlin police have established the fact that the man is an imposter.

The arrival of a real Kurdish Prince, Sinan von Sarschatt, completely squelched the "mistaken identity" plea which the fake Oriental potentate has been making to the jailers.

Prince Sinan found that the imposter, who was able to borrow money from ladies, was unable to answer the simplest geographical or historical questions concerning the land in which he claims royal connections.

Prince Sinan also declared the imposter's clothes to be the wildest fantasy, not resembling any Kurdish uniform known. The imposter gave his age as 30 and said he had been an officer since 1905, but did not realize he had commited himself to having held a commission at the age of 13.

The police are awaiting finger prints from London and New York.

Since the mistaken identity defense of the prisoner has been broken down, the belief is strengthened that the tall, bronzed board bill evader is identical with the "pants pressing" Prince.

'BUFF' HURT AT HARPER FIRE

D. C. Bach and Workman Fall to Basement of Old Publishing House.

D. C. Bach, editor of The Stamp Collectors' Magazine, was injured yesterday in a fire in what was left of the old building of Harper & Brothers, publishers, at 84 Cliff Street, being razed to make way for a modern structure. Mr. Bach is well known as a "buff," and for years has made a practice of attending fires in the lower section of the city. A workman was injured, also, and others had narrow escapes.

A cigarette stub thrown in a pile of rubbish on the ground floor was believed to have started the blaze. Mr. Bach arrived with the firemen and was following them with workmen when the plank on which he was walking gave way. Paul McDonald of 362 Pearl Street, a workman, tried to seize him before he fell, but only succeeded in falling to the basement himself, as did several other workmen. The firemen brought them to the street, where they were treated for cuts and bruises and went home.

After most of the firemen had left the fire broke out again, and blazed higher than before, the smoke rolling over the Manhattan end of the Brooklyn Bridge and causing a slight delay in traffic before the flames were extinguished.

Kills Snake Twelve Feet Long.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Pa., July 23.—What is believed to be the largest black snake ever found in Southwestern Pennsylvania was killed on the Stroemder Farm near Waynesburg, today, by James Fuller, a mowing machine severing its head. Its length was 12 feet one inch. The blacksnake is the largest reptile found in this section but it seldom is more than seven or eight feet. The snake slain on the Stroemder Farm was almost a constrictor in proportions, its body being as large as the average man's arm.

Sirdar's Slayers Lose on Appeal.

CAIRO, July 23 (AP).—The Court has refused the appeal of the eight men who in June were sentenced to death for the assassination last November of Sir Lee Stack, Sirdar or British Commander-in-Chief of the Egyptian Army.

OPERATORS RESELL LEXINGTON AV. SITE

Schulte Cigar Stores Company Buys Building Adjoining Fifty-fifth Street Corner.

ALSO BUYS ON FIRST AVENUE

Trading Indicates a Good Demand for Private Houses in Manhattan.

Bernard A. Ottenberg and Roy Foster, operators, have resold 963 Lexington Avenue, adjoining the northeast corner of Fifty-fifth Street, to the Schulte Cigar Stores Company.

The plot is improved with a five-story building, and is in the immediate vicinity of a number of parcels which have been sold in the last month. The first two floors of the building are now used for stores, while the remaining portion consists of studio apartments.

The sellers purchased the property a few days ago from James Blewett, being the first sale of the property in about thirty years. Both transactions were negotiated by Leonard S. Gans of Joseph Milner Company.

The Control Realty Corporation, a subsidiary of the Schulte Cigar Stores Company, has purchased the property 865, 867 and 869 First Avenue, on the west side of the avenue between Forty-eighth and Forty-ninth Streets; size 75 by 100 feet.

The property was held at $100,000. The broker in the transaction was the Joseph Milner Company, Inc.

Benenson Realty Company Resells.

The Benenson Realty Company has resold to Alexander Tishmaan 1,196 to 1,202 Lexington Avenue, three private dwellings and one five-story apartment house. They occupy a plot 83 by 55 feet, located between Eighty-first and Eighty-second Streets. William S. Baker was the broker in the transaction.

Seward W. Ehrich bought through Brown, Wheelock: Harris, Vought & Co. the four-story tenements at 752 and 754 First Avenue and 403 East Forty-second Street, northeast corner, for around $125,000, from Mary Rourke whose family owned it for upward of sixty years. Mr. Ehrich owns the opposite block on First Avenue, from Forty-second to Forty-third Street.

Edward Wolfe and Jaeger & Phillips sold for C. M. Siegel to the Meljo Corporation 310-312-314 East 107th Street, three five-story tenements with stores on a plot of 75 by 100 feet, with rents of over $13,000. The houses were held at $80,000. A resale is pending.

An investing client of Brady & Bowman, Inc., has purchased the northeast corner of Sixty-second Street and Second Avenue, 100 feet on the avenue by 70 feet on the street, held at $175,000.

Cleary & Glynn have sold for Morris Kite the five-story tenement at 60 East End Avenue to Katie and Harry Glatter.

Private Houses in Good Demand.

Trading yesterday indicated a good demand for private residences in Manhattan.

Dr. David H. M. Gillespie sold the four-story dwelling at 28 West Eighty-third Street, on a lot 18 by 102.2 feet. This property has been bought by the tenants, Mattie E. Quence and Hilma D. Corsgreen, who have occupied the premises for some time. The broker was the Houghton Company.

Seaman & Pendergrast and Julia Beverly Higgins have sold for Mrs. Esther Gruber her house at 33 Beekman Place to Jackson E. Reynolds, who will remodel the house for his own occupancy.

Oscar D. and Herbert V. Dike have sold for Mary Keating to Josef Nystad 231 West Twentieth Street, a three-story private house. A resale is pending.

Mary Curtis sold to Loretta Realty and Finance Corporation the private dwelling at 254 West 131st Street, a three-story building on lot 17.6 by 99.11 feet. J. A. Plummer was the broker.

William J. Murphy & Co. have sold for Guy W. Cheney, District Attorney of Corning, N. Y., and sole executor of the estate of Mrs. J. Cruz, the three-story dwelling at 323 East Twentieth Street on a lot 20 by 92 feet. The buyer was James H. Wallace.

Mrs. John E. Quinn sold the four-story and basement private dwelling 44 West Seventy-first Street, on a lot 20 by 100 feet, to Ralph Biaclio, who bought for occupancy. Raymond T. Quinn and Arthur G. Densel were co-brokers in the sale. The property was held at $50,000.

MORE BRONX DEALS CLOSED

William J. Murphy & Co. in Sales and a Lease.

William J. Murphy & Co. sold for J. J. Hill the two-story frame dwelling at 2,825 Sampson Avenue, on a plot 50 by 100, to A. W. Alberti.

The same brokers leased for the Newsay Construction Company a store in the newly completed taxpayer at the corner of East Tremont Avenue and 177th Street for a period of three years to Posino Petrullo, who will occupy the same as a butcher shop, and also sold for George and Louise Mayer to Emil Carlson a plot 50 by 100 located on the west side of Davis Avenue, 150 feet north of Lawton Avenue, a part of the former Morris estate.

LEASE ON FIFTH AV.

Thomas Cusack Co. Leases Building at Twenty-fifth Street.

The Thomas Cusack Company yesterday leased, through Rice & Hill, the six-story building at the junction of Fifth Avenue, Broadway and Twenty-fifth Street. The lessee is a corporation headed by Robert J. Coverdale, which has taken the lease for a term of thirty-four years at a net rental of approximately $1,000,000.

This building was erected on a ground lease taken by the Cusack Company from the Stephenson estate in 1917. The plot has a frontage of 28 feet on Fifth Avenue, 30 feet on Broadway, 80 feet on Twenty-fifth Street, and a northerly line of 90 feet. The site was chosen because of its peculiarly conspicuous position, commanding a view for many blocks over Fifth Avenue and Broadway, as well as Madison Square and adjacent streets. The Cusack Company has occupied the building as its main office for the past seven years, but having recently been absorbed, with other display advertising concerns, by the General Outdoor Advertising Company, these executive offices are no longer required.

Mr. Coverdale is planning extensive improvements to the building, which will render the individual floors particularly desirable to tenants requiring a conspicuous location with exceptional light.

Brown, Wheelock: Harris, Vought & Co. have leased for a term of years to the Oswald Publishing Company, Matthew J. O'Neill, President, a large suite of offices on the eleventh floor in the Pennsylvania Building, 238-241 West Thirty-fourth Street.

NEW MANHATTAN PLANS.

Builders to Erect Apartments and Offices.

Plans for new buildings have been filed with the Manhattan Bureau of Building as follows:

Twelfth Street, 296 to 300 West, for a six-story apartment, 96 by 129 feet; Shearn-Hartman Construction Company, owner; I. L. Cransman, architect; cost $175,000.

Washington Street, 68 to 72, and West Street, 44, for a six-story office building, and printing plant, 74 by 180.6 by 24.7 feet; El. C. Rowe Co., Inc., owner; Barney Ahlers Construction Corporation, architect; cost $200,000.

Lexington Avenue Corner in Lease.

Pease & Elliman leased for the Henry Hesse Realty Company 961 Lexington Avenue, the southeast corner of Seventieth Street, 21 feet 6 inches by 80 feet 6 inches, to an operating company which will alter the present private house on the site to stores and apartments. The same brokers also leased offices in the Park Lexington Building to Albert De Windt.

Auction Result.

East Ninety-eighth Street, 206, south side, 125 feet east of Third Avenue, 25 by 100.5, four-story building; Louis B. Hasbrouck against Joseph Moreda and others; due, $9,842.72; taxes, &c., $1,258.51; to Max Carton for $45,000.

BRONX BUILDERS BUY APARTMENT SITES

175th Street Block Front and Morris Avenue Plot Figures in Resales by Operator.

Streng, Force & Gagnon, Inc., and Charles W. McChesney sold for the Compound Realty Company to a builder the southwest corner of Clarke Place and Walton Avenue, a plot 50 by 96 feet. This plot will be improved with a five-story apartment with stores on Walton Avenue.

The Simplex Building Company, Inc., of 5 East 170th Street purchased from B. A. Greiper of 681 Fifth Avenue a plot on the north side of Gun Hill Road near Perry Avenue, 75 by 100 feet, with plans for a five-story apartment house. The brokers were the Logan Billingsley Realty Company, Inc.

James Oatman, in conjunction with S. Wedemeyer, sold for John Carr the plot of vacant land on the southeast corner of Park Avenue and 168th Street, 50 by 100 feet, to Isidor Ferman, who will improve with stores and apartments.

John J. Reynolds sold for Louis Schmidt the northeast corner of Westchester, Buhre and Crosby Avenues, known as 3,000 to 3,002 Westchester Avenue and 1,764 to 1,772 Crosby Avenue, a new one-story taxpayer of nine stores, renting for $7,500 and held at $60,000. The purchaser has a resale pending.

Samuel Rubin bought from the Preferred Building Corporation the two corner buildings occupying the entire block front on the north side of 175th Street between Townsend and Walton Avenues, the Walton Avenue corner being 100 by 100 feet and the Townsend Avenue corner 100 by 90 feet. The property is restricted to residential purposes only and has been held at $400,000.

Samuel Rubin sold to Preferred Building Corporation plot on the westerly side of Morris Avenue 100 feet north of Burnside Avenue, being 108 feet front and rear by 100 feet in depth, upon which the purchaser expects to erect an apartment building with stores; and resold the block front on 175th Street between Townsend and Walton Avenues to Milt-Her Realty Company, Inc., for investment.

SAYS HE WED TWO IN 3 DAYS

First Wife Makes Complaint—Husband Pleads Not Guilty.

George Kane, 24 years old, of 7,424 Colonial Road, Brooklyn, was held in $2,500 bail yesterday by Magistrate George W. Simpson in the Tombs Court on the charge that he married two girls within three days. The complaint was made by his first wife, Josephine, 21 years old, of 414 Thirty-third Street, who said she had been married to the prisoner in the Borough Hall, Brooklyn, on Nov. 29 last. On Dec. 2, she alleged, Kane was married to Miss Catherine Witsman in the Municipal Building.

Kane disappeared after the second marriage, but his first wife succeeded in making an appointment with him Wednesday night through his mother when he met her at Fifth Avenue and Twenty-fifth Street, Brooklyn, that night. Detective Alexander McKittrick of the Oak Street Station arrested him. Kane pleaded not guilty.

Evolution

200 years ago Charity was the Almshouse. 200 years ago in Lower Manhattan the needy received their doles and were sent out again into the streets to lose what self-respect they still retained.

Today a great charity—Federation with its 91 affiliated charitable organizations has builded hospitals for the sick, orphanages for the young and homes for the aged, provided social centers and schools where religion and useful trades are taught. Health and Help and Self-Respect are dispensed, and Hope and Ambition reborn. What a difference from 200 years ago!

SIX MONTHS' LEADERSHIP

The New York Times in six months this year published 13,587,396 agate lines of advertising, an excess over the next New York newspaper of 5,231,460 lines and 294,264 lines more than in the corresponding period of last year.

SIX MONTHS' RECORD

	The New York Times Agate Lines	Next New York Morning Newspaper Agate Lines
Dry Goods and Women's Specialty Shops	3,037,210	2,031,488
Real Estate	2,102,272	1,168,282
Financial	1,523,822	747,190
